Hard Work for Gifford. Stalin Has No Necktie. Rothschild's Amusement. Our Five Billion Plan.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

AT THE PRESIDENT'S request, Walter S. Gifford, head of the Americaan Telephone and Telegraph Company, takes charge of the unemployment situation.

Mr. Gifford, an able man, great organizer and executive, undertakes a job most difficult, perhaps impossible.

Mr. Gifford is expected "to avoid the dole," also difficult. You can handle millions of unemployed by sending nice ladies and gentlemen from the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., or the Salvation Army around to see what they need and buy it for them. If you can afford for each needy family $15 a week, the best plan is to give the $15. What is needed is to put people back to work, but to do that you must have a plan and we have none. We are just wondering what ails us.

STALIN, powerful, intelligent, discovers that when you want an automobile to go faster you must step on the gas. As with automobiles so with workers.

The workers' accelerator is the pay that you give them, the pocketbook.

The ablest workers in Russia will hereafter get special cash payments, and plants most effectively run will be rewarded with distributions of money. Human nature is human nature, even with a Karl Marx label.

Stalin intends to make his 5-year plan a success and knows that he must do it by making others share his enthusiasm.

TO KNOW, as every intelligent man should, the character of Stalin, who is the keystone of the arch in the Russian edifice, read Isaac Don Levine's, "Stalin" published by the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, in New York City.

To learn that Stalin, possibly the most powerful man on earth, controlling 150 millions of people in a land with potential wealth exceeding that of the United States, does not include any necktie in his wardrobe, will interest you, as it did to read that Queen Elizabeth had more than a thousand dresses in her closets, and no bathtub in her palace. Stalin has a bathtub, and uses it.

BARON DE ROTHSCHILD, surviving grandson of Amschel Rothschild, who established the family, has celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday. He entered the house of Rothschild 70 years ago, and retired 20 years ago, to enjoy life and live long. His Paris house, for years, has been a center of social activity and he is said to have amused himself watching the "best born" scrambling for the expensive presents that he sometimes gave to his guests.

He has given generously to charity, which will be forgotten when he dies, and has given millions to science, gifts that will live forever.

YOUR UNCLE SAM, in spite of all his troubles, goes on piling up gold. On Wednesday he had $4,950,000,000 of the beautiful metal and the Federal Reserve Bank had credits of $1,105,000,000. It is interesting to contrast what seems to be our $5,000,000,000 gold plan, with the Russian five-year plan, and strange that a nation should have a big deficit and be borrowing money when it has on hand $6,000,000,000, and almost $5,000,000,000 of it in gold.

THE GRANDSON of Blucher, the Prussian general, is dead at 65. He lived much in England, and was the second German elected to a British club after the war. The first was the German ambassador.

England may well have a friendly feeling for Blucher. Without his fighting grandfather, Marshal Von Blucher, the battle of Waterloo might have gone the other way. In that case Napoleon might never have seen St. Helena, and Wellington might not now be lying in his fine stone tomb, in the crypt next to Lord Nelson, beneath the great dome of Ft. Paul's.

DR. TYLER, who investigates things at Teachers College, Columbia, says the student of great individuality, or the highly-strung, nervous student, does not get the high marks. They go to the "students of average type."

Later in life, the high marks go to those that have individuality and that are high strung. Being like everybody else is good in little things. Being unlike everybody else helps you in the big things.

CHARLES H. TUTTLE, recently United States District Attorney and Republican candidate for Governor in New York, saying "beer would bring back prosperity," adds, "the prohibition speakeasy creates crime."

HOW MUCH if any prosperity beer would bring back nobody knows. But it would bring back some cheerfulness and convince a considerable number of adults that they are not being treated as children by a government that doesn't even know how to give them a job.

LIGHTING JOB CANCELED AS BABCOCK PROTESTS

Commissioner Charges Works Director Brown With 'Double Crossing' Board

During a heated session of the County Commissioners today, Commissioner E. V. Babcock accused County Public Works Director Norman F. Brown of "double-crossing" him and his colleagues. The flareup, which put the problem of lighting the new Allepheny County airport right back where it started, came during the reading of a letter from Director Brown explaining the award of a portion of the contract. The contract was ordered canceled.

Cancellation of lighting contracts means that commercial operations will be held up at the new county airport indefinitely.

LICENSE DELAYED

With the waning of daylight and the approach of winter, a dozen or more ships arriving on daily schedule as at Bettis airport must depend on lights for landing and, without lights, the United States Department of Commerce will not license the port for commercial operations.

Babcock leaped to his feet when the subject was brought up and declared:

"I think I've been double-crossed. I think this whole board has been double-crossed. I thought we were awarding the contracts for lighting to the Westinghouse Company.

"Director Brown was opposed to this and narrowed it down

JUDGE ASSAILS DE ROSA

Judge James H. Gray denounced the candidacy of Michael De Rosa, Jr., for Alderman of the Twelfth Ward, today at a hearing on a taxpayer's petition to strike DeRosa's name from the ballot because he had been involved in election frauds.

Judge Gray, indicating that the court may not have the power to keep DeRosa's name off the ballot, said:

"It is a pity there isn't some remedy for this. If there is no legal way for the court to act, I think DeRosa should withdraw from this race. If there was any way at all, I would strike his name off the ballot."

Congressman Harry A. Estep and Attorney Louis Little, in behalf of DeRosa, argued that the court was without jurisdiction. They held that the proper action would be quo warranto proceedings in event of DeRosa's election.

Little maintained there was nothing "infamous" about the offense to which DeRosa pleaded no defense, that of negligence, on which he was fined $150.

Judge Gray interrupted:

"You don't think it is infamous to cheat in an election?"

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Hisashi Fujimura, the married Japanese millionaire who went Broadway, often quarreled with his pretty American "geisha girl," Mary Dale Reissner, former actress, during the "show boat" cruise on the liner Belgenland from which the silk importer mysteriously disappeared.

Jan Ribos, staff artist on the liner with a cabin next to that occupied by Fujimura, today told federal authorities of these tiffs in which the Japanese reproached the girl for flirting with other men. Ribos, on arrival of the Belgenland in port today, said:

"I often heard them quarreling. It was usually Fujimura's voice that I heard, as the girl very seldom answered.

"On Friday morning I rapped on the door of their stateroom at about 7 o'clock. There was no answer.

"About two hours later I rapped again and the girl came

Wave Victim's Body Washed Up By Sea

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The body of the Rev. John W. Cannaday, 25, pastor of Olivet Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, one of three persons drowned when a series of freak combers swept the beach here Wednesday, was washed ashore today.

The bodies of the two other victims, one of whom was Charles F. McKenna, of Pittsburgh, had already been recovered.

'Elect Me or Lose Jobs,' Armstrong Warns

North and South Park employes face the loss of their jobs unless County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong is re-elected, Armstrong told 300 of them last night.

They were handed pink slips early in the day with instructions to attend the meeting in the Hotel Henry, "or else—" After the speaking, roll was called and the names checked. Only a dozen failed to attend.

Armstrong, the principal speaker, said:

"Let's go 50-50 on this. I've done my best for you; you do your best for me. If I am not re-elected and some one else gets my job, someone else will get your jobs, too."

Other speakers were Congressman Harry A. Estep, Controller R. G. Woodside, John Jay Burke, office manager of the Bureau of County Parks, and Raymond D. Evans, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court. County Commissioner E. V. Babcock was represented by his secretary, Ben Anderson. Paul J. Riis, director of the Bureau of County Parks, presided.

POLICE QUIZ HINTED BY PHILLIPS

Kline Councilman Considers Asking Investigation of South Side Enforcement

Councilman John M. Phillips, member of Mayor Kline's councilmanic majority, today was considering the advisability of calling on his colleagues to question police officials responsible for law enforcement on the South Side.

Phillips was brought into the law enforcement laxity question in that section by a statement from Mrs. Phillips, welfare leader, that she was trying to stamp out drinking by South Side children.

The most recent case was the discovery of 12-year-old Theresa Marhofka, lying unconscious on the floor of a candy store, as the result, police say, of drinking moonshine whisky.

AWAITS INQUIRY

Phillips, asked his attitude on a Councilmanic probe into inefficiency of police officials in ridding the South Side of the menace, said it required "much forethought and deliberation" before a decision could be made. Phillips is running for re-election to a full term. He is filling the vacancy resulting from the death of Councilman George Kambach, who expired last March.

Phillips said:

"Until I have had a further opportunity to investigate the situation, I don't want to say

By MARK SHIELDS

Unless there is an Armstrong-Mansfield combination, the battle for the two Republican nominations for County Commissioner probably will become an individual fight between County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and Charles C. McGovern, and Senators William D. Mansfield and James J. Coyne.

Such an open contest would result in private deals, separate arrangements in various boroughs and townships, almost in every ward, so widespread and complicated would be the ensuing dickering. Out of such deals the double-cross would emerge as the trade mark of the campaign, with each candidate suspicious of the other, even though appearing to have

Man, 86, Woman, 80; Divorced, to Remarry

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Wedding bells will ring once more tomorrow for Mrs. Emma Martin, 80, and Norville Williams, 86. The couple were first married August 30, 1868, but were divorced in 1897.

Both remarried, the wife in 1914, and Williams in 1915. The former Mrs. Williams, now Mrs. Martin, lived happily with her second husband until his death two years ago. Williams' second wife died this year. Yesterday they appeared at the County Building and obtained a license to wed.

Night at Sea Worst Lindy Ever Faced

MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

NEMURO, Japan, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Lindbergh monoplane progressed a short distance toward Nemuro today—at the end of a tow rope.

After having been stranded since early Wednesday because of fog and motor trouble off Ketoi Island, the "black hole" of the Kurile Archipelago, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were forced to accept the aid of the government steamship Shimushiru Maru in getting their helpless plane to an anchorage safer than the wild little island 410 miles northeast of here.

MOTOR BALKY

Messages told of the towing of the plane from Ketoi to Muroton Bay, 15 miles to the southwest on Shimushiru Island where Col. Lindbergh again went to work on the stubborn motor. Darkness finally forced him to stop.

Incidentally the colonel, who never has said much about the perils of his famous solo flight from New York to Paris in May, 1927, disclosed that his first night afloat in his plane in the treacherous currents off Ketoi was "the worst I ever have experienced."

ANNE SHARES RISK

Mrs. Lindbergh shared that experience with him. They remained throughout last Wednesday night in the cramped quarters of the plane, a few hundred feet from the rocky shores which doubtless would have ground their plane to pieces had it got within reach.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh had dinner aboard the Shimushiru Maru Thursday night, eating with chopsticks a meal consisting mostly of fish and rice. Mrs. Lindbergh apparently enjoyed the meal, asking for a second helping of rice.

PORTER HELD IN STORE MURDER

Sleuths Confident Capture Of Man in Chase Over Hill Roofs Solves Slaying

Captured after a chase across Hill district rooftops, Legion Bedford, 24, an unemployed Negro janitor living at 2016 Center avenue, was arraigned in Center Avenue Police Court today as the killer of Harry Siegel, 23, assistant manager of the Walgreen drug store, Sixth avenue and Wood street. Police say he had not left his home since the killing.

Siegel was shot by a Negro bandit, who held up the store early on the morning of August 4. Bedford at one time was employed as a porter in the store.

TURNED OVER TO SLEUTHS

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg took no action in the case, but turned Bedford over to Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the city homicide squad, who said:

"It is a good arrest and I am confident it will clear up one of the most brutal murders in the city in recent years."

City Detective William Harris, who questioned Bedford before the hearing, said:

"I am convinced that Bedford is the man who killed Siegel."

DENIES KILLING

The prisoner denied the killing. He told Magistrate Rothenberg that he had been giving a party for some friends and had a small supply of moonshine in his home when the police arrived. Thinking they were going to arrest him on a liquor charge, he said, he ran to the roof to hide the bottles and then continued his flight.

A squad from Center Avenue Station, headed by Capt. John Schnurr, went to the man's home at 2 o'clock this morning.

TOLL IN U. S. PLACED AT BILLION

Vast Sums Expended to Enforce Prohibition; Levy Of $6.43 Per Capita Here

Outstanding in the Wickersham report on "Costs of Crime" submitted today to President Hoover, were these facts:

1. A "crime bill" of more than $1,250,000,000 in the nation was found only a fraction of the "staggering burden."

2. Prohibition enforcement is costing the federal government $34,828,550 or two-thirds of all money spent for criminal justice.

3. Pittsburgh pays $6.43 per capita each year for criminal justice.

4. Pennsylvania's annual crime bill is in excess of $66,000,000.

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—A crime bill of staggering proportions is run up annually at the expense of the American people, the Wickersham Commission reported to President Hoover today in a lengthy brochure entitled "costs of crime."

Investigators for the Commission tabulated costs totaling $1,250,000,000, but pointed out this was only a fraction of the whole outlay in supporting the criminal element. They refused even to attempt to estimate the burden in its entirety.

DRY COSTS HUGE

Among the more significant facts developed was that two-thirds of all the money the federal government spends annually in administering criminal justice

CLARK DENIES POLICE OUSTER

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark today branded published reports that Inspectors Dennis Hennessey, of the South Side, and Joseph Elsner, of the "Strip," were to be dismissed as "a lot of political gossip." He said:

"There is nothing to it. Elections of this nature always cause such stories to be circulated.

"If there are any dismissals or transfers anticipated among the inspectors, I have not been consulted and know nothing whatever of such moves."

Hennessey and Elsner, according to the report, were to have been dismissed in order to strengthen State Senator James J. Coyne's campaign for County Commissioner in their district and the same time embarrass the candidacy of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong for re-election.

KIDNAP BROKER, ASK $100,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—A youthful broker, whose parents recently purchased a seat on the New York Curb Exchange for him, has been kidnaped and is held for $100,000 ransom, it was reported to the police today.

Charles Rosenthal, 25, of Lawrence, N. Y., disappeared August 11, soon after the curb seat was bought for him. A short time later his parents received a letter demanding $100,000 and saying he would not be harmed if the money was forthcoming.

The parents turned the letter over to Inspector Harold King, of the Nassau County police, who today asked New York police to send out a confidential alarm for Rosenthal. Detectives have been assigned to the case.

Wilkins Sub Battles Ice 700 Miles From Pole

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition
By Radio via American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation.

ABOARD THE SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, Aug. 21.—In a strong northeast wind and well within the Arctic ice pack, the Nautilus has been drifting and dodging heavy ice all day.

We prepared the superstructure and the ice drills for diving, but the rapid drifting and considerable swells made conditions which were entirely unsuitable for such trials.

We have drifted far south of the point where we were brought to a standstill by the tightly packed, fairly heavy ice.

The temperature is at the freezing point. As we drift we are swept occasionally by thick snow squalls.

We are keeping a constant watch. The heavy, drifting ice is our gravest danger. In fact, we have faced as difficult conditions as we expect to encounter in our whole trip.

The ship's stern and stem have received many hard knocks. When it is necessary we can drop the stern until it is well under water, and then we can safely back the boat.

If the weather clears we will make our first dive today under Arctic ice.

Our first tests will be but short dives. If these prove successful we shall make more, cautiously increasing the duration.

ROOSEVELT WIDENS SPECIAL SESSION TO INCLUDE RELIEF

N. Y. GOVERNOR TO PRESENT PROGRAM

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Gov. Roosevelt today announced he would ask the forthcoming special session of the New York Legislature to enact measures looking toward the relief of the unemployed during the coming winter months.

Previously the Governor had indicated the only proposal which he would recommend to the special session called for August 25 would be that of broadening the power of the Hofstadter committee in order to permit it to grant immunity to witnesses called in its investigation of New York City.

ISSUES STATEMENT

In a brief statement issued at the executive chamber today the Governor said:

"I have decided to recommend to the Legislature at the extraordinary session certain definite and necessary measures for the relief of distress and the alleviation of unemployment."

Recently the State Federation of Labor filed with the Governor a draft of three measures which organized labor urged should be enacted at the forthcoming session. Briefly they are:

1—Have the state create a special emergency unemployment commission with power to provide state work for all adult unemployed citizens during the coming winter months. This work not to be less than two days a week at $5 a day.

FIVE-DAY WEEK

2—Have the state declare in favor of a five-day working week on all state projects.

3—Repeal that section of the state labor law which exempts highway contractors outside cities and villages from the provision of the eight-hour day and prevailing rate of wage law.

Reports were current at the Capitol that Roosevelt hastened his decision to include unemployment in proposals to be considered at the special session because of the fact that President Hoover has just announced creation of a commission, headed by Walter S. Gifford, to grapple with unemployment problems throughout the nation.

Should Gov. Roosevelt become the Democratic party's candidate for President next year, his advisers at the Capitol pointed out today that he would then be in a position to say he had acted in an effort to aid unemployment at the same time as President Hoover.

Hoover and Gifford To Confer in Camp

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—In the quiet of his Virginia mountain fishing camp, President Hoover will weigh and discuss the unemployment problem over the week-end with Walter S. Gifford, newly appointed director of relief activities.

The chief executive will leave tomorrow for his Rapidan retreat. Gifford, president of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, will arrive in Washington during the day and go immediately to the camp.

In addition to discussing plans and policies for the new organization, the President, with the advice of Gifford, will select a number of additional names to be added to the list of the advisory committee announced yesterday.

The entire administrative function will rest with Gifford and with Fred C. Croxton, whom the President has chosen as assistant director. Croxton has been acting chairman of the President's Emergency Committee, which will be absorbed by the larger Gifford organization.

No announcement has been made as to how the Gifford group will be financed. The President's Emergency Committee has received its financial assistance from funs of the Secretary of Commerce. There is still money available in this fund. The service of Gifford, Croxton and the advisory committee will be volunteered.

Phillips Accepts Hoover Relief Job; Awaits Instructions Here

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company and senior vice president of the Philadelphia Company, today notified President Hoover of acceptance of the appointment to serve on the advisory committee to the new national unemployment relief organization.

Awaiting further information from President Hoover and Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, who heads the President's committee, Mr. Phillips declined to comment on possible plans. He was named last night with 59 other national business leaders.

SACRIFICES NEEDED

Mr. Phillips, who is chairman of the operating committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, declared he felt the situation necessitated sacrifices by all leaders to assist in carrying out a co-ordinated plan of relief work.

Gov. Pinchot's recent plea to President Hoover that he call a special session of Congress to provide unemployment relief was scored in a letter to the chief executive from Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce. In it Dunn charged Pinchot with "taking advantage of the people's misery to embarrass and belittle the President of the United States," and accused him of "pillorying poor old Pennsylvania in his speeches."

DUNN SCORES PINCHOT

Dunn wrote in part:

"Who gave you the right to say to the President of the United States, 'I am compelled by the necessities of my people to urge you to call a special session of Congress?'

"Who gave you the right to say that 'hundreds of thousands of my people will starve unless the Federal Government steps in?'

"If the crisis is as grave as you assert, why don't you call an extra session of the Legislature of Pennsylvania and set the machinery in motion at once here at home?

"If this relief must come through legislation, why were you silent during the hundred days our Legislature was in session?"

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Samuel Insull, Jr., who is directing the campaign to raise $8,800,000 for the destitute families of Cook County this winter, is devoting his entire time to the task, it was learned today. He formally was associated here with his father, Samuel Insull.

QUIZ MURRAY'S SON IN KILLING

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—William H. Murray, Jr., son of Gov. 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray, of Oklahoma, today was questioned by federal authorities in connection with the death of Joseph Apud, second purser on the liner Southern Cross, found dead in his stateroom.

A revolver found in Apud's stateroom was owned by young Murray, according to United States Attorney Howard W. Ameli.

Murray told Department of Justice agents that there had been a party in his stateroom, and that later some of his guests went to another party in Apud's stateroom.

He said that when he went to Apud's stateroom he took off his coat and vest and the holster containing his pistol.

He said he had no knowledge of how Apud was fatally shot.

Hoover Appoints Dead Man to Relief Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—President Hoover inadvertently appointed a man who has been dead several years to the advisory council of his new committee for unemployment relief.

A. O. Smith, of Milwaukee, Wis., was named, but today the White House reported word was received that Mr. Smith had died and his name was stricken from the roll.

Policeman Stabbed in Melee; 4 Others Get Penalties In East End Street Fight

A series of near riots at the Highland Park swimming pool, during which a policeman was stabbed and seven persons arrested, marked the attempt of several scores of Negro picnickers to enter the pool in a group. White bathers, resenting the presence of Negro swimmers, attacked many of the picnickers and stoned others who entered the water.

Patrolman Charles Schierlein, of Mt. Washington station, was stabbed twice in the left hand when he attempted to arrest Thelma Brown, 25, Negro, of 3 Dick street. D. H. Lewis, 38, Negro, of 6120 Orphan street, who is said to have attacked Patrolman Schierlein to prevent the arrest, was charged with the stabbing, although police failed to find a knife in his possession.

RIOT CALLS SOUNDED

More than 50 policemen armed with riot clubs were rushed to the park in radio equipped scout and emergency cars when it was learned that a picnic was being held in the park by the United Baptist Sunday schools. Representatives of 25 Negro churches gathered in the park and a few of their number were beaten when they attempted to enter the pool.

The riot calls were sounded when William Struthers, general chairman of the picnic is said to have demanded that the white bathers be ordered from the pool and that it be turned over to the picnickers. This was refused and when a crowd of picnickers swept into the pool, they were set on by a number of young men who had been in the water. Police quelled the disturbance.

Later rocks were hurled from the hillside into the pool. The Brown woman was arrested for inciting a riot, police said, when she urged several of her friends to beat up the white youths. Patrolman Schierlein started to take her to one of the police patrols when he was set on by Lewis, police said. Another battle followed and police finally arrested five other men.

PRISONERS FINED

In East End Police Court this morning Lewis was fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse, and the Brown girl $5 or five days in jail.

Chester Dudley, 21, of 6339 Luther street, and Raymond Legien, 25, of 501 Larimer avenue, both Negroes, and Joseph de Risso, 22, of 105 Stoebner way, each were fined $5 or five days in jail.

Two other Negroes were discharged.

Nine persons were arrested on suspicious person charges, following a free-for-all fight between whites and Negroes at Lincoln and Lemington avenues, last night. Bricks, clubs and other missiles were used by the combatants, most of whom fled when police arrived. The fight came as an aftermath of the disorders at the Highland Park pool, police said.

Nine Negroes were arrested at Lemington and Frankstown avenues a short time after the riot when they surrounded Special Officer Harry Gordon, who pulled his revolver and held them until a patrol wagon arrived.

Four of them were fined $10 or 10 days in jail in the East End Court this morning, when Gordon pointed them out as the ones carrying clubs or stones. The other five were discharged.

Those fined were James Washington, 19, 1300 Vernfred street, Penn Township; John Lindsey, 20, of 11 Torrence street; James Fucella, 19, of 140 Brushton street, and John Taylor, 22, of 10 Torrence street.

MAC DONALD'S LABOR CABINET TOTTERING

Premier's Resignation Seen In Financial Crisis; Trades Union Hostile

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Resignation of Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government became a possibility today as an outgrowth of Great Britain's economic and financial crisis.

The situation became more complicated and difficult as the cabinet maneuvered in vain to reconcile widely divergent views as to how the budget is to be balanced and a deficit of half a billion dollars is to be avoided.

TRADES UNION HOSTILE

In the face of a non-committal but clearly hostile attitude of the Trades Union Council toward the government economy program, the Prime Minister was placed in the position of facing a special session of parliament and trying to force his proposals through with the support of the opposition parties against a section of his own party.

The immediate aspects of the problem became more political than economic or financial this afternoon as the government's predicament was revealed.

BALDWIN RETURNING

Word came that Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, had cut short a holiday in France to hurry back here, and it was agreed that only a serious turn of affairs would have brought him back.

As leader of the next strongest party in the House of Commons, he would be the most likely choice to form a new government should Mr. MacDonald decide to retire.

to where the Westinghouse Company got only 10 per cent of the work and 90 per cent goes to other companies. Westinghouse should have this business. That's what my motion meant. (Babcock's motion gave authority to the airport contractor to sub-let material contracts). I don't want anybody undermining this board."

BROWN EXPLAINS

In reply to Commissioner Babcock, Director Brown said the low bidder submitted a bid of $68,000 for three flood lights. The union arbitrarily added $30,000. The electric combine's bid was $90,000. He continued:

"As each matter involving the county airport contracts came up I submitted letters to the board. My first letter related to contracts for either incandescent or Sperry arc lights, but the Commissioners saw fit to put in incandescent lights, which will be inadequate. I didn't agree to or recommend any contracts. I never did, nor ever will. I have not made any recommendations as to any contractors. The contractors and their materials must meet specifications."

Babcock got the floor again:

"Not knowing enough about lighting to word a resolution, I intended to give the contract to Westinghouse. Now it is down to them only getting three little lights."

"Brown can talk us out of anything."

FIRM SUMMONED

Let's get the Westinghouse people in and hear their side of it. I move the resolution passed by this board authorizing the contractors to let the material contracts be canceled. Cancel them all."

Babcock's resolution was seconded by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and passed.

The Commissioners adjourned to meet later in the afternoon, when they were to hear representatives of the Westinghouse Company.

The lighting contract was awarded to McNeil Electric Company on its low bid of $66,488 last July 16. The cancellation of lighting contracts will not, according to C. W. Forcier, manager of the airport, delay the official opening set for September 11.

Ribos added that while Fujimura drank heavily, he never appeared under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Reissaner, a divorcee, told authorities that the last she had seen of Fujimura was at 1 a. m. Friday morning, the last day of the cruise, when she left him to attend a party given aboard by Mildred Harris, former wife of Charlie Chaplin. She admitted she had quarreled with the Japanese.

A young daughter died at about the time Fujimura was reported missing. Within the past few days, Mrs. Fujimura gave birth to another daughter. A third child accompanied the importer on the cruise.

Officers of the Belgenland were questioned today by Assistant U. S. Attorney J. Edward Lumbard, who wishes to determine if Fujimura was murdered at sea, fell or jumped overboard, or walked past the customs officials undetected when the vessel arrived in port.

the police, she called through the door that she was unable to open it.

POLICE GIVE CHASE

Schnurr broke the glass in the door, crawled through and followed Bedford, who ran upstairs, leaped to a fire escape and from there to the roof of a house next door, and down through the house to Grove street.

Six policemen joined their captain and gave chase through the streets, firing many shots, and to a back yard at 2035 Wylie avenue, where they found the Negro crouched under the rear porch steps.

Police had been watching the Bedford avenue home for some time, they said. Since Siegel was murdered the hunted man had not been seen, and it was believed that he had left town, but would return. Police, after the arrest, said he had lived in the upper part of the house most of the time, his wife attending to all outside work and buying food, which she carried to him.

Movies Stay Closed Pending Arbitration

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Reopening of 100 closed neighborhood movie houses was called off today as representatives of the owners and the locked out motion picture operators agreed to the appointment of an arbitration committee to formulate a new agreement.

The owners protest the operators' union demand that two operators be employed during each shift. The theaters were to have been reopened with operators brought here from New York.

Fighting Irish Priest Starts One-Man War on Gangs

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Out in the West Side district around Western avenue and Roosevelt road, where grudges are often settled with the knife and the pistol, a fighting Irish priest has launched a one-man campaign to "clean up and stay clean."

He is the Rev. Matthew Canning, new pastor of St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church. He has been in the parish only three months, but the hoodlums have learned that priestly fists can be just as hard as any other kind.

His question to undesirables is:

"Do you want to get tough or do you want to go along?"

The usual answre is:

"We'll go along, Father."

There have been a few instances, Father Canning disclosed, when he had to smash an ecclesiastic fist against a hoodlum jaw to get results.

Asked to explain his campaign he said:

"How can I sleep at night hearing the crack of pistols and knowing my boys and girls are out there in the street?

"I have given the Last Sacrament to 12 murdered men and there were five killings here last week.

"Tell the police? How could I keep the confidence of my boys and girls? But give me three good policemen of my choice and I'll clean up this district."

WATER COVERS 9,000-MILE TERRITORY

Associated Press.

Thousands of Chinese have been drowned and millions of dollars worth of property has been destroyed by floods sweeping over vast territory in what may prove to be one of the greatest calamities in modern times.

The swollen Yangtse has taken a heavy toll of life and left 30,000,000 homeless. Hankow itself, a city of 826,000, is believed doomed to destruction.

Eighty counties in the North, covering an area of 9,000 square miles, are under three to 10 feet of water pouring from the Hwai Ho river. The summer crop has been wiped out. There is no estimate of the loss of life, but it is known to be heavy.

The government at Nanking is floating a $10,000,000 bond issue for flood relief.

HANKOW, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Believing Hankow doomed to total destruction by the Yangtse River flood, all natives able to do so were fleeing today as the great stream began to rise again.

Hundreds of thousands of residents of Hankow, greatest inland city of China, and its sister cities, Wuchang and Hanyang, felt the depths of despair as they saw the irresistable waters advance once more after having receded from the record levels of yesterday.

The majority, however, were unable to escape. To hundreds of these, death was a welcome release from conditions in which further existence seemed impossible.

Despite the repugnance of suicide among the chinese, this means of escaping the terrible consequences of the flood was being used by an increasing number.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Flood waters in China's fertile valley of the Yangtze River may be churning up one of the worst calamities of the age.

Chinese reports on the disaster as interpreted by Red Cross officials indicate that the flood is the greatest catastrophe the country has ever faced.

Ernest J. Swift, assistant director of insular and foreign operations of the Red Cross, said:

"It is estimated that 31,000,000 people are affected and that 10,000,000 are homeless and destitute. The effects of the flood probably will be felt for a good many months, and certainly until the waters recede and the natives are able to plant and harvest crops.

M'ARDLE CALLS KLINE 'KING'

Mayor Kline was pictured as a medieval king with absolute power over his subjects by former Councilman P. J. McArdle, seeking nomination at a meeting at noon today in the "Independent" headquarters, Magee Building. He said:

"The mayor is not a king in the modern sense, largely a piece of machinery or scenery, set up as a nominal ruler. He is a king in the medieval sense, posessing a power that makes his will law and his subjects his possessions to do with what he will."

S. J. Topley, Clerk of Courts, and John Vogt, prothonotary, seeking re-election on the "Independent" ticket, also addressed the meeting.

The "Independents" will open their East End headquarters at 5901 Penn avenue tomorrow night with a mass meeting to be addressed by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith, Councilman Robert Garland, John D. Houston, A. D. Brandon and others.

Attorney Joseph Howley is in charge of the East End offices, where noon meetings will be held each noon after tomorrow.

just what I'll do. I am told there is some drinking among children. I may have something more to say on the matter a little later."

Council has the power to investigate the conduct of police.

DRINKING COMMON

On numerous occasions, according to police records, children have been found intoxicated from drinking moonshine in "blind pigs" and speakeasies. Sporadic efforts have been made at certain times to "rid" the city of establishments catering to this trade, but nothing of importance has been accomplished, social workers say.

Police laxness is indicated by the prevalence of the liquor-drinking in speakeasies, reports of the social workers indicate.

Mrs. Phillips, who has done much welfare work in her neighborhood for many years, in an interview, said:

"Whisky drinking by children on the South Side is far from uncommon. We are trying to stamp out drinking by children."

Mrs. Phillips said South Side police, particularly one officer, were co-operating with her in furnishing quick relief to distressed families on the South Side.

UNREMOVABLE POSTER PAINT REMOVED

Signs Which Traffic Bureau Head Said Wouldn't Come Off Streets Do So Easily

Political slogans painted on boulevards and sidewalks in the East End district can be eradicated without difficulty in spite of the belief of Lewis M. McIntyre, head of the Bureau of Traffic Planning, that the signs must wear off, the Sun-Telegraph learned today.

A small can of paint remover and a rag did the work of erasing the two final letters in the slogan, "Boost Soost," on Baum boulevard, near Liberty avenue. It took six minutes to eradicate the letters.

M'INTYRE MISTAKEN

McIntyre said that the paint used was the same as that used by the traffic department for traffic signs, adding:

"I do not know any way for the bureau or anyone else to remove those signs. They will have to wear out."

In Broad street and on Negley avenue sidewalk, signs printed with a different paint were more difficult to remove than those on the boulevard, although it was possible to eradicate a complete sign in less than four minutes.

JUDGES REMOVING SIGNS

Orders to workers supporting the seven presiding judges for renomination to refrain from placing placards in violation of the law, were issued today by Attorney Joseph H. Bialis, chairman of the campaign committee. He said:

"We have received no complaints about our placards covering up parking or other traffic direction signs and I'm sure none were so placed. If anyone will report the presence of our signs in any position where they should not be, we will immediately send out and have them removed. Our headquarters telephone number is Atlantic 6679."

Attorney H. H. Negley in an attack upon the candidacy of the seven presiding judges, deploring the defacing of private and public property by use of signs, declared the judges had violated the law 100,000 times in the distribution of campaign literature, laying themselves open to $1,000,000 in fines.

DO-X NEARING U. S. MAINLAND

SHIP BOMBING IN CUBA STIRS WASHINGTON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The State Department was much concerned today with the report that the Danish steamship Fredericksburg had reported being bombed and machine-gunned by a Cuban airplane off Antilla.

The report was transmitted to the Navy Department in a radio message from Capt. T. L. Johnson, commandant of the Guantanamo Naval Station. The Navy Department relayed it to the State Department.

The State Department's apprehension was caused by the fact that should the Cuban government or revolutionists commit overt acts against foreign governments or foreign citizens, the United States may be drawn into the struggle.

RIOTING IN HAVANA

Meanwhile, American Ambassador Guggenheim telephoned the State Department that with the defeat of the rebel stronghold at Gibara the revolution has been suppressed for the moment.

The Ambassador added that the island in general is quiet. Late dispatches from various points on the island, however, conflict with the Guggenheim report. Rioting was reported in Havana and rebels were said to have landed a second force on the northern coast of Cuba and were concentrating on the city of Nuevitas.

With the revolution supported by a large proportion of the Cuban population, it was learned that the United States had been keenly apprehensive for the last week lest it would have to step in on the side of Machado. This would have involved an expensive military operation as well as a loss of American prestige with the people of the island.

OPPOSE U. S. MOVE

Officials said that no matter which way the fortunes of the revolt turned out, interference by the United States would prove tremendously unpopular.

The State Department disclaimed any knowledge of American intercession on behalf of former President Menocal and other revolutionary leaders who are in jail waiting trial before a military court.

Havana Tense as Firing Shows Rebels Near City

HAVANA, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The nerves of Havana's citizens were on edge today as intermittent firing told them that the revolt had at last reached their city.

Unverified rumors of all sorts poured in on the city from many fronts. One report, later denied, was to the effect that Neuvitas, important port and railway center on the north coast of the island, Province of Comaguey, had been stormed and occupied by a filibustering expedition landing from a steamer.

During sporadic fighting in Havana yesterday one person was killed. Government sources said that the police had thwarted an effort of revolutionary students to capture the Havana Central Police Station.

Jugoslavia Denies Discord in Royalty

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Discord in the royal house of Jugoslavia, hinted at recently, was denied officially yesterday by the Jugoslav legation. It was explained at the legation the date of King Alexander's ascension and the death of his father was the same, and that the day never was celebrated.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Ruth Jayne Cranmer, sprightly beauty in whose Manhattan apartment State Senator Roy T. Yates, of New Jersey, was found shot and seriously wounded, was arraigned today on a charge of felonious assault and ordered released under $7,500 bail.

Ruth's arraignment had been postponed several times awaiting definite word from the hospital where Senator Yates was taken following the mysterious shooting, the details of which both Miss Cranmer and the Senator profess to have forgotten.

Today, however, definite word came that Yates' condition was improved, and the arraignment proceeded on schedule.

September 11 was set as the date for Miss Cranmer's trial on a charge of feloneous assault.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—State Comptroller John McCutcheon, acting as chairman of the executive committee of the Passaic County Republican Committee, today called upon Roy T. Yates, shot last week in the New York apartment of Miss Ruth Cranmer, to resign as State Senator.

Old Church Gets 'American's Carvings

PARIS.—(INS.)—The work of an American sculptor can now be seen in one of the oldest churches of Paris. Edward Minazzoli, of New York City, has recently completed a series of reliefs of the Stations of the Cross for the Church of St. Anne. He has discovered the secret of the famous Della Robbia terra cottas and these reliefs form the largest single pieces of ceramic sculpture ever made. They are beautifully glazed on blue grounds exactly like those of the old Italian master.

MANLEYS START EAST, PLANS UNCERTAIN

Couple Will Not Return to Pittsburgh, Former Pitt Dean Says, Beginnig Tour

LAKE TAHOE, Cal., Aug. 21.—Dr. Louis K. Manley, former dean of the school of business administration at Pitt, and his bride, the former Mrs. Ruth Houston Hill, were heading eastward today from Lake Tahoe, Cal., but not for Pittsburgh. The couple left Tahoe Tavern yesterday. When asked about his plans, Dr. Manley said:

"We had a lovely honeymoon. It was so quiet at Tahoe Tavern. I do not think we will return to Pittsburgh but we are going to travel for a while. Our plans at present are indefinite."

Manley obtained his divorce from Mrs. Sarah Mitchell Manley in Reno several weeks ago. On August 10, Mrs. Hill was given a divorce from Erle Gladstone Hill, who also is a former member of the University of Pittsburgh faculty. Dr. Manley and Mrs. Hill were married a few hours after she had obtained her divorce.

The Manley-Hill romance had been known to exist for some time. When Dr. Manley resigned from the staff at Pitt, friends said they considered the double divorce and marriage a foregone conclusion. While the two were in Reno waiting their divorces, they were seen together many times.

STRANDED GIRL GETS AID

Rose Bernstein, 22, of 1710 Cliff street, who left home Wednesday to go to a movie, was reported stranded in Washington, D. C., today by Capital police, who wired the Missing Persons Bureau here to locate her relatives. A brother, Jacob Bernstein, sent her money to return.

The bureau also was requested to seek a pajama-clad 12-year-old girl, Millicent Dunn, of 115 Fifteenth street, Homestead, and a bare-footed 11-year-old boy, Robert Dunlop, of Willock, Pa. Both disappeared Wednesday, according to reports by their parents. The Dunn girl, clad in white pajamas and green and white sport shoes, has black hair, according to the description given by her father, Christopher Dunn. Robert Dunlop, father of the missing boy, gave his address as Pleasant Hall plan, Willock.

Girl Going Home for Toys Killed by Train in Etna

Tragedy ended "playing house" for three little girls of Etna today when one of their number was ground to death beneath the wheels of a train while on her way home to get more toys.

Anna Novosel, 10, of 23½ Ganster street, Etna, told her playmates, Helen Bursick, of 25 Ganster street, and Helen Cruvovich, of 15 Ganster street, both 7, she was going to leave them for a moment in the woodland playground and go home for a basket of playhouse toys.

Anna had reached the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks nearby when a fast Pittsburgh-bound passenger train flashed by. She was struck by the train and drawn under the wheels, dying instantly.

Helen Bursick said:

"Anna had just left us to go home for her playthings when we heard her scream. We looked and saw her under the wheels."

Besides her father, Michael, 46, and her mother, Anna 47, the dead child leaves six brothers and sisters, Joseph, 17; Margaret, 16; John, 15; Peter, 13; Catherine 7, and Mary, 4.

Mrs. Thaden Sees Derby Turning Into Reunion

By LOUISE THADEN

Winner of the 1928 National Air Derby for Women, and Pittsburgh's Representative in the 1931 Cross Country Derby.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 21.—This is going to be a derby that will go down in aviation history. There are now 19 official entries in the women's division, and more than twice as many in the men's division.

Edith Foiz, who flew in the 1929 derby, is entered, as are Gladys O'Donnell, who placed second in the 1929 event, and first last year; Blanche Noyes, of Cleveland, who has been pushing an autogyro, but who is flying a regular airplane in the derby; Phoebe Omlie, who has her own monocoupe, much to Phoebe's delight, and Poncho Barnes, who cracked up in Pecos, Tex., in 1929 in the same type plane.

All in all, it has turned into a reunion of the first women's derby. If Miss Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols were here the picture would be complete, but Amelia is herding her giro over the country, and Ruth is in a plaster cast. Florence Klingensmith, who holds the outside loop record for women, and who comes from South Dakota, is flying her first derby this year.

I have never seen such a conglomeration of airplanes. They are all sizes and shapes, empowered by all kinds of motors. I have the largest ship in the derby, so we shall see what we shall see.

The ships are being test flown tonight for the handicap. Mine will probably be the last tested.

(Mrs. Thaden is writing exclusively for the Sun-Telegraph of her air experiences in this year's race.)

OPEN BATTLE PROBABLE IN COUNTY

Individual Fight Likely Unless Armstrong and Mansfield Forces Combine

ALLIANCE IN DOUBT

Friends of Armstrong are saying that he will team with Mansfield or no one. It is not considered possible that Mansfield would line up with Coyne and despite the pleasant words said about Mansfield by McGovern and the latter's campaign manager, former Senator C. M. Barr, the McKeesporter is not apt to form any open alliance with the minority Commissioner.

Only on direct order of W. L. Mellon, even if then is it possible Armstrong would combine with Coyne. The attitude of the Armstrong men, together with the recent course of Mellon, indicates that no such order will be issued. It is true that Armstrong is the first choice of Mellon and that as between the remaining three he favors Coyne, but he apparently does not intend to forsake his position of "neutrality" to a point which would entail pressure for any alliance unwelcome to Armstrong.

Upon the return of Mellon next week things will move. By Tuesday night the course of the campaign probably will be set. Armstrong is expected to point out to Mellon his reasons for disliking an alliance with Coyne. He will demonstrate to the former state chairman that such an alliance would be tantamount to turning the county government over to the organization headed by Mayor Charles H. Kline, who is no longer a Mellon underling.

Armstrong, it is declared, will emphasize to Mellon that Kline would ignore Mellon in county affairs as he has done in city affairs, and as he did in the last gubernatorial campaign and throughout the life of the Legislature.

DEMOCRAT THREAT

Should Coyne and Armstrong be nominated, the latter will point out, the next step of the Kline-Coyne organization would be an effort to bring about the election of David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, as the third member of the county board. That organization would go down the line for Lawrence at the general election against McGovern or any one else who might run as an independent, and through its control of certain city wards might elect the Democrat.

Ruefully, Armstrong will recall the history of the 1927 general election, when McGovern scraped through as an independent. The organization learned a lesson in that campaign. It could have beaten McGovern then through its own methods had it not overestimated his strength, and had it not been unnecessarily alarmed at the thought that not only McGovern, but his running mate, might win.

Coyne and Lawrence have gotten along amicably for many years. They probably would do so as County Commissioners, and Armstrong and those who stand with him would receive approximately the same treatment meted out to McGovern during the latter's last four years, the Armstrong people say.

DARK HORSE—HOPES

These are the reasons Armstrong will argue with Mellon that he must run with Mansfield or no one.

A four-way open fight necessarily would involve the contest for other offices, including the judiciary and City Council. There would be no offices for which a county-wide slate could be established, and the entire campaign would be every man for himself, all free to deal for advantage, and all doing it with varying alliances from one district to another.

Out of this would come even more confusion than now exists, with some remarkable results and some men elected to office who had little hope of winning when they entered their names.

POLL OFFICERS APPOINTED

Three new election board officers were appointed and one polling place changed to a new address, by Judge James H. Gray, in Quarter Sessions Court. They follow:

Judge, Tenth District, Fifth Ward—Joseph E. Hutchinson, 927 Bryn Mawr road, in place of William J. Coyle, moved.

Minority inspector, Sixth District, Seventh Ward—Mrs. Blanche Barr, Negley avenue and Elmer street, in place of Hilda Barr Murphy, resigned.

Polling place of Second District, Ninth Ward, changed from 179 Forty-third street to the Croation Fraternal Beneficial Association club house at 146 Forty-fourth street.

New Judicial Body Urged by Canuti

An amendment to the criminal code proposing a board of five members to decide the merit of misdemeanor cases in criminal courts and thereby reduce delays, was suggested yesterday by Attorney Frank P. Canuti, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court at a meeting of the Verona Rotary Club.

Speaking at a political meeting in Duquesne, Canuti said that the muddled political situation in Allegheny County afforded citizens an opportunity to nominate judiciary candidates on their merit alone.

WILLIAM SAXMAN, 11

ASKS $35,000 FOR INJURIES

Seeking $35,000 damages from the Borough of Verona for injuries to their son, William Saxmann, 11, when an embankment gave way under him, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Z. Saxman, of that borough, filed suit in Common Pleas Court.

The boy was walking along the side of Riverview road, also called Rock avenue, Verona, the night of April 15, 1930, when a slide of earth carried him down a steep embankment, breaking his right leg and causing other serious injuries, the suit alleged.

AVOID POLITICS, BOARD TOLD

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21.—Declaring the only duty is to promote the interests of game and sportsmen of Pennsylvania, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today told members of the new Board of Game Commissioners and their subordinates to "keep entirely out of politics." He said the commission in the past has not always been free of politics.

Supplementing the Governor's statement, Ross L. Leffler, president of the board, said:

"America has discovered to her sorrow that conservation and politics do not mix. The lives of birds and beasts have too often been traded for votes. No one can violate our game laws with impunity, which fact has often been demonstrated."

PINCHOT FIGHTS VARE SLATE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Opposition from Gov. Pinchot to the complete city slate of the Republican organization headed by William S. Vare was seen today following induction into office of William J. Hamilton, Jr., new Sheriff.

Hamilton conferred with James J. Shields, chairman of the Registration Commission, and Commissioner Romain C. Hassrick, both praised by Gov. Pinchot as "leaders of militant Republicanism which, I hope, will redeem Philadelphia."

Hamilton asserted at the parley that he was backing Howard A. Luckens, independent, for Councilman from the Twenty-first Ward. Shields said he was backing James L. Milnamow, independent, of the Forty-second Ward.

Infantile Paralysis May Delay Schools

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Opening of the schools here on September 14, may be postponed if the infantile paralysis epidemic gains headway, Health Commissioner Shirley W. Wynne announced today.

In this city yesterday were reported 5[illegible] deaths and 60 new cases, a slight drop. This report brought the number of deaths for the year to 252 and the number of cases to 2,261.

Canoeist Seeks Chum for Gulf Paddle

From Warren, Pa., to New Orleans is a long way to paddle your own canoe—so Frank Larimer, 17, of 702 Lake View avenue, Jamestown, N. Y., is stopping over in Pittsburgh today, and probably tomorrow, in the hope of finding a companion for the remainder of his journey.

Young Larimer left Jamestown Saturday and took to the Allegheny river that afternoon. By easy stages, he reached Pittsburgh yesterday.

He recently returned to his home from an aviation school in San Diego.

Anyone feeling the urge to do a lot of canoe paddling, can communicate with Larimer at 403 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg.

5 MEN NAMED TO CURB VOTE THIEVES

Scully Acts in an Effort to Prevent Usual Election Fraud; Bare List-Padding

A committee of five to assist public officials and courts in enforcing election laws was appointed by Arthur M. Scully, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, as a result of revelations that hundreds of fraudulent names had been added in the city to books for the revision and assessment of taxes.

The committee consists of John T. Duff, Jr., Charles A. Fagan, Jr., John M. Henry, Joseph Richardson and Earl F. Reed, all members of the bar association.

Prior to the appointments Mr. Scully conferred with E. Lowry Humes, a member of the registration board and the bar association election fraud committee of 1928. Neither divulged the nature of the conference.

In announcing the appointments Scully said in part:

"There is every reason to believe that the election crimes which have blackened the name of the City of Pittsburgh and the County of Allegheny with appalling regularity in the past, are about to be attempted in this election. The Bar Association expects, and has a right to expect, that the courts, the District Attorney and the other public officials whose sworn duty it is to carry out and enforce the statutes will take such measures as may be necessary to prevent a repetition of the criminal and treasonable acts which past elections have brought.

"Occasional violations of election laws are perhaps inevitable under our system of government, but the repeated, persistent and concerted crimes which are written large in the records of our Criminal Court can only be ended by an aroused public sentiment. It seems time that the election machinery provided by the constitution and laws of this commonwealth be used to express the will of the people instead of to perpetuate political organizations."

SOCIALISTS SET STREET RALLY

The Socialist party will hold a street meeting at 8:30 tonight, in the interest of candidates for city and county offices, at Station street and Frankstown avenue. Street meetings will be held every night, except Sunday, until primary day.

Scheduled speakers tonight are James Devlin, Leonard Kimball and Chairman Robert Childs.

Meetings will be held at 8:30 tomorrow night at Federal street and Park way, North Side, and at Thirteenth and Carson streets, South Side. Speakers for the North Side meeting include Dan Thompson and Robert Lieberman and Dr. S. L. Rosenberg, candidates for City Council. Speakers expected at the South Side meeting are Dr. William J. Van Essen, candidate for county commissioner, and Maurice Sonnetrov, candidate for district attorney. Miss Minerva Murdock will preside.

The Socialist party announced the publication, in the near future, of a weekly newspaper discussing the problems facing the workers of Allegheny County.

GOLDEN OFFERS TAX REFORMS

Robert S. Golden, candidate for county treasurer, has pledged himself to establish, if elected, tax collection agencies in various parts of the county and to work out a system which will make taxes easy to pay instead of an ordeal for the taxpayer. He says he thinks the collection of taxes should be handled in the same manner as the collection of bills for merchandise.

He also believes the county treasurer should co-operate with representatives of real estate by furnishing tax statements for any list of owners. Golden has been connected with the real estate business in the South Hills for a number of years.

Negley Urges Wide Enforcement of Law

Obedience of law, not only by lay citizens, but especially by lawyers and judges, was urged by Attorney Harry H. Negley, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, in a speech last night to women voters in his East End headquarters.

He called for the election of Judges by the people and said that "Governor-politician made Judges" were not vested with divine right to sit.

Wymard Acclaims Married Judges

Cases coming before the desertion and non-support branch of County Court are better administered by a jurist who, like himself is married, according to N. L. "Skip" Wymard, candidate for Judge of the Court, in a speech last night at a meeting of the Seventh Ward Progressive Organization in McKeesport.

Casey Backs Coyne, Not Mansfield

Pat F. Casey, Republican chairman of the Fourteenth Ward, today denied a published report quoting Alderman Sol S. Goldstein, of that ward, as stating that Casey is for State Senator William D. Mansfield for County Commissioner. Casey declared:

"I am working to the fullest extent of my ability for the nomination of Senator James J. Coyne for that office and have no other candidate."

LINDSAY RAPS COURT COSTS

The cost of Allegheny County's average list of cases is four times higher than Cleveland's according to Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, speaking at a meeting last night in Tarentum Borough Hall. He said:

"In 1929, it cost Allegheny County an average of $89.38 for each case tried. I have no doubt that the cost today is equal to that figure. In Cuyahoga County, O., where the city of Cleveland is situated, there is a unified system with a presiding judge empowered to expedite the business of the courts and the average cost of a case is $21.50.

"Where each of the 14 members of the Common Pleas bench is a law unto himself and no individual is held responsible for the administration of the business of the courts, little improvement can be expected."

Yeager Campaign Conference Called

The "Jacob Yeager for Alderman" campaign committee will meet at 8 p. m. tonight at 716 Brookline boulevard, to complete arrangements for a mass meeting next Monday in Brookline School, according to Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Frank, campaign chairman. Yeager is a candidate on the independent ticket headed by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, seeking re-election.

2 Groups Indorse Baldridge Candidacy

Indorsement of the candidacy of Attorney Carl C. Baldridge, of Edgewood, for judge of Common Pleas Court today was announced by two organizations. Support was pledged by the Steel City Lodge No. 775, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, through William A. McCandless, legislative representative. The Keystone Civic and Political League of the Thirteenth Ward went on record as supporting Baldridge through Dr. W. H. Christian.

NATION'S CRIME BILL REACHES HUGE TOTAL

is devoted to enforcement of the prohibition laws.

The government's efforts to maintain law and order last year cost $52,786,202, and $34,828,550, or 66 per cent, went for prohibition. No effort was made to determine what percentage of the $247,700,000 spent in 1930 by the nation's 365 leading cities was applied in this direction, but it was found that the 11 states maintaining state police forces were devoting 25.5 per cent of their appropriations for those forces to dry-law enforcement. These totaled $2,660,000.

RACKETEER TOLL SERIOUS

Because of inadequate funds the commission found it impossible to determine how much money is diverted from useful channels by racketeering and organized extortion, but reported to the President that the loss was most serious. It was recommended that some other agency be empowered to make a nation-wide, thorough and scientific investigation of the evil.

In its present highly organized state, the racket "is pervading a substantial part of our national economic life." Mr. Hoover was advised, and the public as a whole is suffering through increased prices.

In addition to the more than $350,000,000 spent annually for criminal justice, some of the other costs actually arrived at included $51,720,000 for state penal institutions; $10,465,265 for protection of private property in cities; $47,000,000 for insured losses; $68,634,342 for frauds perpetrated through the mails; $106,222,756 for insurance premiums against types of crime other than arson; $159,000,000 for private watchmen; $6,458,458 for detecting devices; $3,900,000 for armored cars; $1,260,000 for the Pennsylvania industrial police and $850,000 for correctional treatment.

CONCLUSIONS REACHED

The detailed report, drafted by Goldthwaite H. Dorr and Sidney P. Simpson, of the New York bar, reached certain conclusions and recommendations which the commission adopted for its own. These included:

That the enormous sum expended for criminal justice emphasizes the importance of increasing police efficiency.

That the relatively large amounts spent for support of penal institutions, as against the relatively small sums spent for probation, call for investigation from the standpoint of economy in administration.

That the relatively small part of the total cost of criminal law enforcement represented by expenditures for prosecution raises the thought that possibly not enough is being spent on prosecuting agencies.

That a substantial part of the public funds appropriated for criminal justice purposes is not wisely and economically expended due to inefficient organization and administration, and in some instances to political influence and corruption.

That it may be desirable in many instances to increase such expenditures in order to obtain the desired efficiency and in order to deal adequately with new types of crime and criminals.

PROHIBITION FINDINGS

While prohibition was not mentioned by name, the commission investigators made the significant suggestion that one possible way of reducing costs of criminal justice would be "by limiting the extent to which social control by means of the criminal law is attempted." They said:

"It is clear, we think, that the cost of enforcing the criminal law would be less if it did not attempt to forbid and punish acts participated in by large numbers of otherwise law-abiding citizens who do not regard such prohibited acts as 'criminal' except in a technical sense. However, the desirability of thus reducing the burden imposed on the taxpaying public by expenditures for criminal justice will undoubtedly be determined in the light of views as to social considerations with which we are not concerned in this report."

Pennsylvania Crime Bill More Than $66,000,000

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania has an annual crime bill somewhere in excess of $66,000,000.

A report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission revealed that total today in an incomplete picture of the cost of crime in Pennsylvania. Several items of cost, including the pay of federal prohibition agents, not included in that sum, would raise it above that figure.

Municipalities, with an estimated expenditure of $62,500,000, bear the brunt of the price of detection, arrest and detention of criminals, the report showed.

Other items in the total are $3,212,565 for expenses of state penal institutions; $737,656 for state police protection, and $374,271 for prosecution of federal offenders. The last figure includes $153,543 for prohibition prosecution.

The statistics compiled for municipalities, the first such study ever to be made, showed a per capita expenditure for criminal justice ranging from $8.75 in Philadelphia, and $6.43 in Pittsburgh, to $1.67 in Hazleton. The national average per capita was placed at $5.47.

The largest part of the federal crime bill in the state, compiled for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, was incurred in the Western Pennsylvania district, for which an expenditure of $180,254 was reported, the Eastern district spent $113,474, and the Middle, $80,543. Prohibition enforcement prosecution alone cost $88,586 in the Western district, $87,311 in the Eastern, and $49,014 in the Middle district.

Crime Costs Pittsburgh $6.43 Per Capita

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Wickersham report on yearly crime costs gave these figures for Pittsburgh:

Criminal police cost, $2,852,681; cost of criminal prosecution, $202,984; cost of criminal courts, $909,708; cost of penal and correctional institutions, $108,289; cost of probation, $130,043; total, $4,303,705; per capita cost of criminal justice, $6.43.

DUFF ATTACKS TRIAL DELAY

Attorney J. Boyd Duff, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, addressing a mass meeting yesterday in Memorial Park, Tarentum, under auspices of the Borough Council, outlined a plan for greatly increasing the present effective capacity of the courts.

His plan is to re-arrange the method by which judges sit en banc by having special days so that court procedure would not be held up on many occasions in various court rooms. He said:

"Today, it can be fairly said that to prosecute to final judgment a suit requiring, for its determination, a jury trial or its equivalent, takes about three years. The common experience of wronged suitors has been that however correct the final judgment of the court, the great amount of time and other inconveniences undergone in awaiting it, in many, if not nearly all instances, effectively defeats the beneficent and remedial effect of the judgment by so overloading the rights sought to be enforced with expense that little remains."

FREE JUDICIARY NEED STRESSED

Attorney William H. Coleman, Republican candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, urged the election of an independent and impartial judiciary in a speech yesterday before the Rotary Club of McKeesport. He declared in part:

"Nothing is more essential to the preservation of the liberties of the American people than an independent and impartial judiciary. The independence of the federal judges who are appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, is maintained by a life tenure in office.

"My position is that the six candidates for office who received their appointment from Gov. Fisher have no greater claim on your support than the 18 candidates who are not among the sitting judges that are seeking a place on the Common Pleas bench."

Rankin Club Backs Musmanno for Judge

Representative M. A. Musmanno, candidate for Judge of County Court, has been indorsed for election by the McKinley Club of Rankin. The resolution, pledging the unanimous support of the club, reads in part:

"His vigorous stand in the State Assembly for the rights of the people show that he is a true defender of the common people. We have full confidence in his ability and integrity and know that if elected he wil make a Judge of whom Allegheny County will be proud."

O'Neil Would Alter Collection of Taxes

J. Denny O'Neil, of McKeesport, candidate for county treasurer, urged improvements in collecting taxes in speeches yesterday at the G. A. R. Ladies Home, Hawkins station, and at the Magyar picnic in Kennywood Park.

BOAT DWELLERS HELD IN FEUD

For six months Fred Williams, 42, and William Young, 44, have lived in their Allegheny river houseboats as neighbors, police say, conducting a verbal feud over the locations of their boats.

Today, they are in jail after being held for court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg as the aftermath of a fight early today, in which, police testified, Young hit Williams with a piece of wood and Williams fired a shot at Young.

Young was held on an assault charge, and Williams for pointing firearms and carrying concealed weapons. The fight resulted over Young's use of the steps beside Williams' boat landing to reach Barbeau street, police said.

Free Haircut Ban Caused by Young Impostors

Homestead barbers will do no more free haircutting. They have voted to discontinue the practice of cutting poor children's hair as an act of charity, because they believe many youngsters took advantage of it who had money to pay for the service.

The barbers have decided to give 10-cent haircuts to children on the first Thursday of each month.

Parents Ask Search For Aspinwall Girl

Police today were asked to search for Mildred Collins, 16, of 2632 Washburn street, who left her home Wednesday morning to visit a friend in Aspinwall. When the girl failed to return home last night her mother appealed to West End police. The girl was wearing a light red dress and tan coat when she vanished.

203 TAKE TEST FOR U. S. JOBS

Civil service examinations were taken by 203 men and women in Pittsburgh for positions as file clerks in Washington.

Although only a few positions are open in various governmental departments in Washington, approximately 24,000 applicants took examinations in various parts of the country.

Officials in Washington said that many would probably never be placed.

The examinations in Pittsburgh were held in the Fifth Avenue High School under the supervision of Miss Emily Coulron, examiner for the United States Civil Service in the Pittsburgh district.

The applicants will not be notified of their rating for about two months, it was said.

DELAY HEARING OF OFFICER

Patrolman Stephen Mackin, reporting at West End Police Station, who is charged with disorderly conduct, will be given a hearing probably tomorrow in Oakland Police Court. The officer had been missing since Wednesday night, when in a street fight he struck Regis Casteel, 21, of 329 Oakland avenue and knocked him through a store window at Forbes and Brady streets, police said.

Dancing Masters Decide on Toronto

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Toronto was selected as the 1932 meeting place of the Dancing Masters of America at the close of their convention here yesterday. Thomas M. Sheehy, of Chicago, was re-elected president.

Shaw Lays World Ills to Human Conduct

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Human morals, and not economic difficulties, form the basis of the world's ills today, in the opinion of George Bernard Shaw. He said:

"The trouble with this situation is that everybody is talking about the economic situation when they really ought to be discussing the moral situation.

"They want to revise everything but human conduct, but it is human conduct that should be revised.

"When we get that right, the world will be better."

Venizelos Holds Parley With Carol

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Premier Venizelos, of Greece, reached Sinaia today to discuss with King Carol the attitude to be adopted by Greece and Rumania toward Bulgaria's efforts to obtain revision of the Balkan league treaty.

PITTSBURGHERS END TOURS

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Returning from a European cruise of nearly two months, the Rev. D. J. Maladey and sister, Miss Elizabeth Maladey of Homewood; and Arthur D. Goldschmidt of Pittsburgh, arrived late yesterday in the S. S. Lancastria.

Miss Cecilia M. Schmidt, of 510 Borland street, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stroud, of 7126 Monticello street and their daughters, Gertrude, Helen and Cecilia Stroud; the Misses C. A. Dickart and E. A. Dickart of 4735 Baun avenue; Cecilia Till of 6363 Jackson street, Miss Inez E. Wallace, of 125 Hazelwood avenue, Miss Louise Cunningham and Miss Betty Marshall, all of Pittsburgh, returning from a North Cape holiday cruise arrived last evening in the S. S. Translyvania. They covered about 3,500 miles on the cruise which occupied the last two weeks.

Pittsburgher Aids Pythian Ceremony

CARLISLE, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Pythian Sisters late yesterday voted to hold their annual convention next year in Allentown with the Knights of Pythias and then adjourned.

Past Grand Chief Anna G. Fisher, of Easton, installed the Pythian Sisters officers. Norval R. Daugherty, of Pittsburgh, was in charge of the Knights' installation.

5 and 10 Clerk Wins Contract in Movies

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Seventeen-year-old Geraldine Barten, San Pedro High School girl, who works in the Five and Ten-Cent Store on Saturdays, is sure a good fairy sent a motion picture crew to her home to make a short film for home projection and selected her to play the lead.

A one-reel melodrama, "Sally Comes Home," was filmed, and that would have been the end of the story if Darryl Zanuck, Warner Brothers-First National chief executive, had not seen the film run off in his private projection room. Summoned to the studio, Geraldine was given a contract.

One Killed, 8 Hurt As Train Is Ditched

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The division superintendent of the National Railways reported today that one person was killed and eight were injured Wednesday night when the passenger train from Laredo was derailed near San Luis Potosi after a switch had been tampered with.

Fall From Window b Fatal for Child, 3

Lloyd Jones, 3, a Negro, of 313 Larimer avenue, died early today in Pittsburgh Hospital from a fractured skull suffered when he fell from a second-floor window of his home last night, the Coroner's office reported.

Dance Promoter Honored at Party

Johnny Jones, dance promoter, was guest of honor at a party and dance in Palm Garden, Mt. Washington, last night, the occasion being his fifty-first birthday. He was presented a number of gifts by his former employes. More than 600 persons attended the party.

Cornerstone Laying Date Set By Lang

The cornerstone of the new $900,000 pumping station at Brilliant will be laid September 2, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang said today. It will be electrically operated.

Special Tribunal Would Try Alfonso

MADRID, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The government won an important battle in the National Assembly when President Alcala Zamora obtained a modification of the proposal of the Parliamentary Committee to convert the Assembly into a special tribunal to try all the former leaders of the monarchial regime on charges of irregularities.

The committee accepted the President's proposal that those charged with irregularities be prosecuted in the ordinary courts and only former King Alfonso be brought before the Assembly.

Woodville Fugitive Held in Munhall

Raymond Painter, 27, of Lee street, Munhall, who, police say, escaped from the county home at Woodville more than a week ago, was arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Price while walking in Eighth avenue, Munhall, yesterday. He is held pending his return to the county institution, police said.

Parade to End Fair at Greentree

MARINE SLAYER SUSPECT HELD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—With the arrest in Los Angeles of Harry Harper, 28, a crippled sailor, San Francisco police today believed they had solved the torture murder of Felix A. Williams, 36, former Marine, in his apartment here.

Arrested in the Southern City last Saturday as a vagrant, Harper, according to reports, confessed Monday that he had robbed a man in a Bush street apartment in San Francisco, stunning his victim by hitting him on the head with a vase.

When Williams was found dead, spread-eagled and lashed to his bed, an immediate check with the Los Angeles department revealed that Harper declared he had stolen a gun, a ring and $1.25 from his victim and that he was in possession of clothes corresponding to those worn by Williams. He was said to have described the floor plan of Williams' apartment perfectly.

Disposal of the body of the former Marine today awaited instructions from his brothers, August J. Williams, of R. F. D. No. 5, Glasgow road, Wilkinsburg, Pa., and Samuel Williams, of New Kensington, Pa.

BETHEL DENIED HIGHER STATUS

The claim of Bethel Township as a first class township was denied by Judge Sylvester J. Snee in Common Pleas Court, who held in an opinion filed late yesterday that the electors must vote on the question and may do so at the November election.

Judge Snee dismissed a petition filed by William W. Hague, Roy E. Sleppy and Felix A. Gunther, who asked for a writ of alternative mandamus against the County Commissioners and County Bureau of Elections to compel them to recognize the township as a first class township, to receive nomination petitions for first class officers and place their names on the primary ballot.

The commissioners refused to accept petitions, holding that Bethel is a second class township under the act of June 24, recently enacted, providing that townships with population exceeding 300 per square mile under the latest census must vote to change from second to first class.

FOREST FIRES PERIL TOWN

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A force of 200 fire fighters held a forest fire at bay as it surged within half a mile of the town of Placerville, Idaho, today.

The fire, with the ghost mining towns of Quartzburg and Granite, already in its maw, was held in check during the night, but the fighters expressed concern over what the day would bring in winds and high temperatures to spur on the flames.

The telephone operator at Placerville said:

"We can hold it for a while, anyway."

A. H. Burroughs, owner of the Talache mine, the only gold mine in Quartzburg, Idaho, and brother of Davis C. Burroughs, assistant general superintendent of the Duquesne Works of the Carnegie Steel Company, escaped injury in the forest fire, which razed the town early today, according to an International News Service report.

POLICE ABSOLVE LIEUT. BUEL

Police Lieut. Robert Buel, of the Motor Division, was restored to duty today and exonerated of charges brought against him at the trial board in connection with the purchase of two stolen automobile tires.

He was suspended Wednesday by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark. Assistant Supt. of Police Ben Marshall, who investigated the case, recommended Buel's restoration to duty and that he be paid for the time he was under suspension.

Blanks Provided For Gun Licenses

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21. — License forms were mailed today by Secretary of the Commonwealth Beamish to all sheriffs and chiefs of police in the larger municipalities to be used under the Witkins firearms act, which becomes effective September 1. All dealers in firearms must be licensed by the state and owners of firearms required to hold permits.

Chiefs of police in the cities and some of the larger boroughs, as well as sheriffs, have authority to license owners of firearms. A fee of 50 cents is to be charged to persons owning firearms. Persons holding hunters' licenses will be given permits to carry concealed firearms without an additional fee.

Rain Squalls, Gales Sweep British Isles

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Rain squalls swept by gales continue in the British Isles, and a month of almost unprecedented stormy weather showed little sign of improvement today. Bathing has been prohibited at some shore resorts because of the dangerous surf; the rains have damaged crops in many parts of the country, and the Thames is just below flood level.

Three States Toured On $2, Couple Held

Mable McCabe, 24, of Brownsville, and Tony Renzi, 26, of Connellsville, told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today that they had traveled through three states on $2, with the girl dressed in men's clothing and riding on freight trains.

Jones turned them both over to Edward Ridder, of the Department of Justice, for a Mann act investigation. They were arrested in East Carson street yesterday.

Japan's 'Lindbergh' Plans New U. S. Hop

TOKIO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Seiji Yoshihara, the "Japanese Lindbergh," expects again to attempt a flight from Japan to the United States some time in September, it was learned today. Yoshihara plans to make the flight in several hops.

The American embassy yesterday cabled the Mayor of Cordova, Alaska, for information concerning landing places near that city, indicating Yoshihara expected to make one of his stops there.

Tired of Student Alibis, Illinois Dean Resigns

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Thomas Arkle Clark has closed his desk after 30 years of service as dean of men at the University of Illinois.

Known as "Tommy Arkle" to two generations of students at the nation's largest university, Dean Clark stepped out of the office he created in 1900 and into retirement at the age of 69.

"I'm not tired of the job. Just grew tired of waiting for students to think up new alibis for absences and excuses for cutting classes."

Post and Gatty Sued On Legion Contract

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Papers in a civil suit started here against Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world fliers, were on their way to Minneapolis today for service. The suit, alleging breach of contract, was filed by Roy L. Brecke, State American Legion commander, who claimed they failed to appear at the state convention here Wednesday.

The fliers circled the field, then flew on to Chippewa Falls Airport, two miles away, refusing to return to speak to the crowd. Brecke said, because the crowd was "too small."

Ireland to Fight Anti-State Groups

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—J. Fitzgerald Kenny, Minister for Justice, said that at the next session of the Dail additional legislation would be asked to strengthen the hands of the government in dealing with anti-state activities and with subversive organizations.

Kenny said:

"There will be no two armies in this country and the sooner the foolish young men who appear to regard themselves as an army realize this, the better it will be for everybody."

Foster Cites Record In Tarentum Speech

Judge D. Paulson Foster, serving his twelfth year as a jurist in Juvenile Court, spoke in behalf of his campaign for re-election at a meeting last night of Tarentum borough officials and other citizens in Riverview Memorial Park.

He explained that last year he established juvenile night court for the convienience of those that might lose work by day attendance. It was the first court of that character, as near as can be learned, in the history of any Pennsylvania court of record.

STORE DAMAGED BY FLAMES

Flames swept the three-story brick and stone building of Donahoe's Food Store, 412 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, early today, causing damage estimated at more than $15,000.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the rear of the first floor and virtually destroyed the entire grocery stock. Business was resumed at noon.

McKeesport firemen battled the fire for two hours and kept it from spreading to nearby business houses.

Offices of the Donahue company on the second floor were damaged by fire and water. Offices of other concerns and a beauty parlor on the third floor were not damaged.

The jewelry store of F. Z. Weiss, 414 Fifth avenue, was damaged slightly by water seeping through the walls.

Mink Invades County Tax Office

Early morning workers at the Court House were wondering today how a mink worked its way into the delinquent tax office. When Harry Hoffman, water man, arrived at 4:30 a. m., he found George Deverts and George Hirsch, night janitors, trying to reach the animal, which capered about the room.

The men cornered the mink and killed it with a club.

HYMIE WITNESS FEARED SLAIN

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Fear was felt today that gangdom had taken precautions to silence permanently Louis Rothkopf, Cleveland hoodlum sought as the "key man" in the investigation of the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter.

Rothkopf has been sought through the United States and Canada for four months, and failure to discover his whereabouts led County Prosecutor Ray Miller to advance the belief he had been killed to prevent his revealing any information on the murder.

Officials expressed the belief that failure to find Rothkopf would seriously hinder the investigation, which has been directed along lines to reveal the identity of possible "higher ups" in a Cleveland criminal clique.

OIL PRODUCERS DISCUSS 'CZAR'

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A movement has been started on the part of certain independent oil interests for the appointment of a "czar" as an adviser to the oil industry, under whose authority the regulation of oil output can be placed.

The campaign was disclosed in pamphlets distributed in Wall street, which mention Robert W. Stewart, former chairman of the Standard Oil Company, of Indiana, as a likely appointee.

The third in the series of gigantic oil mergers, through a combination of the Standard Oil companies of New Jersey and California, was foreseen meanwhile as the result of negotiations between officials of these companies. The merger, if consummated, would unite producing, refining and marketing properties values at close to $2,400,000,000. Directors and legal counsel of the New Jersey Standard, have been studying the legal phase of the merger, the road to which has been paved by the consummation of the Socony-Vacuum amalgamation.

Prospects of an immediate completion of the long-discussed merger of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company and four other companies, including Tide Water Associated Oil Company, were clouded somewhat, however.

Axtell J. Byles, president of Tide Water Associated, in a statement, said that while appraisal of the properties has been going on for some time, no conclusions or agreement has been reached.

PRESS AIDS WAR ON LOTTERIES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—The Postoffice Department announced today that upon its request, the major press associations of the country have agreed to refrain from disseminating news concerning foreign sweepstakes lotteries which contravenes the postal laws. The department's statement declared:

"The Associated Press, the International News Service and the United Press have assured the Postoffice Department they will co-operate to the fullest extent in its effort to free the mails of unlawful matter concerning sweepstakes lotteries.

"These news associations hereafter will not distribute to their members and clients matter relating to sweepstakes lotteries — either in stories or photographs—just as they always have refrained from handling matter relating to the numerous other kinds of foreign lotteries patronized by players in this country.

"Sensing that this country is a fertile field in which to operate, new sweepstake schemes emanating from foreign countries are appearing almost daily, and the Postoffice Department has been promptly issuing fraud orders against them in Austria, Bermuda, Canada, China, Colombia, Cuba, England, Germany, Irish Free State, Lichtenstein, Mexico, Newfoundland and Switzerland."

Warren (O.) Bank Closes Its Doors

WARREN, O., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The Citizens Commercial and Savings Bank here closed today to protect its assets. In addition, four building and loan associations posted a requirement of 60 days' notice for deposit withdrawals. Yesterday the Union Savings and Trust Company closed to conserve assets and was given over to the State Banking Department.

'Jumping Joe' Savoldi Divorced, Weds Again

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Joe Savoldi, former fullback of Notre Dame, was married here today to Miss Daisy De Witte, 22, of Santa Monica, Cal., by Justice Charles S. Mason.

Savoldi was divorced recently from his first wife whom he married while at Notre Dame. He left the university before the end of last season following disclosure of the marriage.

Railway President Ends Life With Gun

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Gardner F. Wells, 60, president of the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railroad, committed suicide in his Rowes Wharf office today by shooting himself with a rifle, according to police.

Wells, who made his home in Westport, Conn., was despondent over financial affairs and was on the verge of a nervous breakdown, police learned.

Mountain Climbers Report Two Killed

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Word from the Paul Bauer expedition climbing Kanchenjunga in the Himalayas said today that Herman Schaller, 25-year-old member of the party, had been killed when he and a native bearer fell off a precipice into a deep chasm on the northeastern spur of the mountain.

Dewey Fight Witness, German Officer, Dies

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Admiral Oscar von Truppel, retired, 77, former governor of Germany's Chinese colony at Kiao-Chau, China, died yesterday.

As commander of the "Prinz Wilhelm," cruiser of the East Asian squadron, he was present when Dewey battered down the Cavites forts.

SUN-TELEGRAPH CLASSIFIED SECTION

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

I WILL BE criticized for using this letter. I don't care much. Human documents are rare things. Few of us are privileged to receive them. It is my great fortune that people are willing to tell me their stories. Why they write to me, I do not know. Why a lonesome woman, thousands of miles from my territory, will sit down and pour out her soul to a man she will never see is something I cannot comprehend. But it happens. And it happens every day.

I can use but few of these letters. There are many reasons why. Some are too tough. Some are too strong. Some of them are unbelievable. And too many letters in a column make the finger-pointers chirp gleefully that the proprietor is getting lazy.

This one, however, I must use. Bear with me and see why. It comes from a New York City address.

"Dear Mr. Hellinger," he writes. "Less than 30 days ago, just a number. K—26—Essex County Penitentiary. Today or tomorrow, not even a number. Tired, hungry, footsore, discouraged. Too proud to beg; too timid to steal.

"Honest? Certainly. Never stole five cents in my life with deliberate intent. Yet I am an ex-convict, released July 17. Did someone say 'what for'? Well, give me five minutes. It shouldn't take more than that to tell my story.

"My story. It isn't much, I guess. There isn't any climax—and as to the conclusion, who knows? I would mortgage my body and brain for the security of a job and an honest living. Honest men are crying aloud for their inability to provide. What would one expect a criminal (as conventions dictate) to find?

"Let's picture a night 10 years ago—June 21, to be exact, in Montclair, N. J. Two kids in love, kneeling before a beautiful, miniature altar. The bride, an orphan. Her aunts and uncles surrounding, hushed and relieved. The bridegroom just a puzzled and awed kid. His mother and father standing aside, praying and hoping for happiness for two ambitious, colored kids.

"Lovely bride. Devoted groom. Beautiful presents. Three sweet, little rooms all furnished—and ready. Over a hundred guests. The blessings of the priest . . . So we cover two years quickly and then go on with the comedy . . .

"Asbury Park, New Jersey, July 4, 1922. At the Berkeley-Carteret Hotel. There stands Joseph Sterns' Pierce-Arrow—and in the driver's seat is a neat, impressive, colored boy, just 23 years of age.

"Tired—but happy. Why? At the top of his vocation. Sixty-five dollars a week. A wife and a child. A good job. And just about to finish a high school course, in preparation for a bigger field to progress.

"You see the picture? Well, let's get along. In my life, time is but a space of seconds in periods of misery and tortures of mind. So over we go, skipping nimbly, and we find that same colored boy four years later.

"Recognize that former bridegroom? That's he driving that big Cadillac away from the Ross-Fenton Farms. There's a new bride and groom in that car. Who? Scrappy Lambert and his new partner, the former Edna Johnson.

"What's that? The chauffeur seems changed? Well, you're right. He isn't the same, clean kid. What has happened? Only the same old thing. Women. Two women. One—the pretty bride and mother. The other—a neighbor who whispers to the wife and tells her ways and means of getting away with murder.

"What's that you say, Mr. Hellinger? You say the husband is a fool? But you're wrong, sir. Most times, he is still just a kid in love. He is refusing to see, not wanting to acknowledge that his wife could possibly be unfaithful. Yet, in his heart of hearts, he knows.

"Down hill goes the groom. A little faster every day. From job to job. From $65 to $50. From $50 to $40. From $40 to $30. How? Again the same old thing. Liquor. Liquor—until you can sleep. Liquor until you can forget. And then—

"Almost two years to a day. Hear it?

"'Prisoner, hold your head up. Look upon the court. Have you anything to say before the court imposes sentence? One year in the Essex County Penitentiary for violation of the Motor Vehicle Act. You were using a car without the owner's permission. Next case.'

"Then what? Dark days. Bitter nights. Grown men sobbing in their sleep. Hungry men living on bread alone, too proud to be broken in spirit. Weary days of toil. Heart-breaking Sundays. No visits. Nothing to encourage or console.

"Broken of body. Sick of mind. Crushed and humiliated. Exhibited to officials and smirking welfare workers as the contented and reconstructed criminal. And finally turned out into the street with 30 cents to my name.

"Ragged. Almost shoeless. Entirely friendless. No one to go to. Nowhere to stay—except with my sister, already overburdened with her own family and her great struggle to provide.

"Walking downtown every day. Looking for work. A roll and coffee in the morning; a stew or a couple of eggs at night. Walking half the night through the produce markets, trying to earn a dollar. Back to bed at 3 o'clock—tired, hopeless, discouraged.

"And then the thoughts at night. A review of the entire parade. Back again in memory to that quiet, little ceremony in Montclair. Back again in thought to the wonderful girl who used to be. And thinking over and over and over again of that little kiddie, now 8 years of age.

"What will be his lot? Fighting always against the handicap of color. And then, in later years, the tauntings of those companions who will remind him of his father's past. He might be a fine man. He will be a fine man. But how hard he will find it to explain. Perhaps he will never even try. I would prefer it that way.

"Thus, my story is ended. There isn't any moral. There isn't any lesson intended. Draw your own conclusions. Form your own climax. Write your own diagnosis. You are better suited than I. For you are a member of the Social Order that I, an ex-convict, has offended.

"I can't go back over the hill. I haven't touched a drink since the day I landed in jail and, strangely enough, I have no desire for it. All I seek is the right to be self-respecting. All I ask is to earn through honest toil of the body enough to give that kid a break.

"But where is it coming from? And how is it to arrive? I ask no help from you because you are only a teller of tales. I do not appeal. I merely speak.

"What comes tomorrow? What comes the next day? When does the finale arrive? What is it all about?

"You finish this, Mr. Hellinger. I'm very, very weary."

AUTO INJURIES CAUSE DEATH OF STUDENT

5 Hurt in Machine Upset By Hit-Run Driver; Woman On Steps Struck By Car

Injuries suffered 10 weeks ago in an automobile accident while he was visiting school chums near Memphis, Tenn., proved fatal to Donald MacQueen, 18, son of Lawrence I. MacQueen, secretary of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania.

MacQueen, who suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries when the machine overturned, died in his home at 5617 Jackson street last night.

HIT-RUN ACCIDENT

Five persons were injured last night when their automobile overturned after being sideswiped on the William Penn highway, near Wilkinsburg. The occupants of the overturned car had barely extricated themselves when the machine burst into flames and was destroyed. The other machine did not stop.

The injured, taken to Columbia Hospital, were Alfred Sherman, 25, of 108 Fairview avenue, East Pittsburgh; his wife, Mary, and their daughter, Geraldine, 3. Miss Helen Sokolosky, 28, of 1416 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, and Walter Lindish, 26, of Chicago, the driver. Sherman, suffering a fractured right arm and leg, was the only one kept in the hospital.

Mrs. Elizabeth Farley, 42, of 6 Blanche way, North Side, suffered a possible fracture of the right leg when an automobile backed onto the steps of the home of Mrs. J. Crawford, at 3 Blanche way, last night. The machine pinned Mrs. Farley against a wall, but Mrs. Crawford, with whom she was talking, was uninjured.

Police said the accident occurred when Louis Koval, 51, of 1351 Geyer avenue, owner of the automobile, cranked it while it was in gear. Koval was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. Mrs. Farley is in St. John's Hospital.

AUTO, TRUCK CRASH

Miss C. A. McDermott, of 4326 Luster street, Squirrel Hill, suffered severe lacerations of the face when an automobile in which she was riding with her brother-in-law, George Mayhill, of the Luster street address, overturned after colliding with a truck at Murray avenue and Bartlett street. Miss McDermott was taken to West Penn Hospital.

Struck by an automobile which ran over the curb while he was walking in Maple street, Munhall, John Kosak, 56, of 904 Creek street, Munhall, was injured seriously late yesterday. He was taken to Homestead Hospital. Police arrested the Rev. Samuel H. Cook, a Negro, of Orangeburg, S. C., driver of the car. The minister said he lost control of the machine.

3 FIRMS QUIT POWER GROUP

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Resignation of three of the 28 most important members of the National Electric Light Association became known here, disclosing a rift in the internal organization of the association.

The three companies which withdrew were the United Gas Improvement Company, The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and the Philadelphia Electric Company.

Officials of the National Electric Light Association said the letter of resignation tendered by John E. Zimmerman, president of United Gas Improvement, assigned no reason for the break.

The withdrawal of the three companies aroused widespread interest in financial and public utility circles and belief was expressed in some quarters that the action was a protest against the growing importance of the Insull public utility interests of Chicago in the association.

Association officials maintained that the difficulty is in no way related to national politics and the power issue.

W. Va. Owners Deny Importing Miners

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Coal operators of the Fairmont district whose mines have been affected by strikes, issued a statement through T. N. Moran, secretary of the Fairmont Coal Operators' Association, saying that no miners have been brought into the Fairmont area for the reopening of their mines.

Hitler Newspaper Suspended 5 Days

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The National Socialist newspaper Der Angriff, published by Adolf Hitler's close ally, Dr. Paul Goebbels, has been suspended for five days for printing a charge that Republican Reichsbannermen wrecked the Basel-Berlin express train, August 8.

ATTACK ON BANDIT CLOSES RACE BETTING PLACE

ORDER ARREST OF ALL TRYING TO ENTER

Three Men Held on Bond As Beating of Robber Reveals Gambling Resort

Inspector Allbert Beebe reported to Director James M. Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, today the alleged race horse bookmaking resort on the second floor of 546 Smithfield street, where an alleged holdup man was beaten, had been closed. Inspector Beebe said orders had been issued to police to arrest anyone seen entering the place.

The resort came under police scrutiny and recognition when the alleged thug, Frank Witman, 28, of Plymouth, Pa., was beaten by three men he is alleged to have attempted to rob. The three, Sam Black, 44, of 5600 Beacon street; Nathan Weiss, 30, of 10 Smithfield street, and Scott M. Caldwell, 37, of 414 Third avenue, pounced upon the alleged robber when they discovered his gun was empty. Witman, suffering from a possible skull fracture, was under police guard in Allegheny General Hospital, while his intended victims, arrested as suspicious persons, were at liberty in $1,000 bond, pending a hearing when Witman recovers.

Witman told Detective Edward Harkins that he had come to Pittsburgh three weeks ago seeking employment. Harkins quoted him as saying:

"I was up against it. I needed money. I couldn't find work, so I decided to stick up someone. As I walked in Smithfield street, I saw a crowd of men enter this building and I followed them. I decided to hold them up."

NEW FIRM GETS GARBAGE JOB

Formal announcement that he has awarded the city garbage contract to the Modern Service Company at a cost of about $1,800,000 a year is expected to be made by Dr. C. B. Maits, director of the Department of Health, upon his return from his vacation.

Before leaving Pittsburgh, Dr. Maits indicated he did not see how he could do anything else but award it to the lowest bidder, the figured saving to the city being around $100,000 annually or $300,000 based on a three-year contract.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard, of counsel for the company, today said that as soon as the formal ward has been said, the Modern Service Company will start erecting the incinerating plants, as the contracts have already been let.

Trade Board Heads To Discuss Jobless

National unemployment and the coal conference situations will be discussed today at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Allied Board of Trade. The session will be held at the offices of Attorney W. G. Negley, Law and Finance Building, with President Harry Bastow presiding.

High Street Man Wills Widow Estate

Herman Hochrein, of 1200 High street, in his will, left $4,000 to his widow for life, and after her death, half to St. Joseph's Orphanage and half to St. Mary's Church, Lockhart street.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover has named another man to look after the jobless. The latest one is Mr. Gifford, the very efficient head of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. That's a terrible position to wish on anybody: "Here you go out and find jobs for six million men." Well if Gifford can't give you a job he can at least put you on a phone so you can call up your other idle friends. Or he can use these six million to keep that other six million off the line while you are trying to talk. Anyhow we got a big man in a big job and if he gets away with it he is our Moses.

Girls Regained By Trick With Their Mother

New Schools Will End Overcrowding

MRS. MILDRED E. REED AND HER TWO DAUGHTERS: JANE, 6 (LEFT), AND SHIRLEY, 4

Mrs. Reed, 29, 1714 Hays street, Swissvale, and the two daughters she regained from her estranged husband by tricking him into coming to Pittsburgh from East Liverpool, O., and bringing about his quick arrest for non-support. The father, Neal W. Reed, had the little girls.

CITY TO REJECT TOWING GARAGE

Automobiles seized for violation of parking laws will continue to be taken to garages holding city concessions, indefinitely, it developed today.

John S. Herron, president of Council, said nothing would be done regarding an ordinance which was laid on the table last spring, providing for rental of a municipal garage at 3131 Forbes street, recommended by Public Works Director James M. Clark as a means of eliminating the towing evil.

Herron said the measure, which would allow the city to buy the garage for $250,000, looked to him "like a plan to sell the city something it didn't want." Council appropriated funds to rent the garage from May 1 and pay clerk hire.

Man Razing Cell Finds Cache of Coins—Bogus

John W. Thompson, of 136 Hazelwood avenue, a workman engaged in razing the cells in No. 7 Police Station, South Thirteenth street, which is to be remodeled, thought fortune had smiled upon him.

In removing a hollow steel pipe between two cells, Thompson was amazed when a flood of what appeared to be 60 silver dollars fell from the pipe about his feet.

After Thompson suspected they might be counterfeit and took them to William A. Landvoigt, United States secret service operative in the Federal Building, his suspicions proved correct.

Police believe the fake coins had been dropped into the pipe by a prisoner who had been placed in a cell without being carefully searched.

DEFEND PRICE OF POOR FARM

Louis P. Schneider, Pittsburgh real estate man, may have paid $39,163.52 for a 235-acre tract of land in Collier Township and two days later sold it to the County Poor Board for $64,762.50, a profit of $25,599, but the board feels the county received a good bargain.

The transaction revealed today by deeds in the Recorder's office, was completed in September, 1924.

Dr. W. L. Henderson, one of the members of the Board said:

"We are satisfied the county received a good bargain. You have to see that farm to appreciate it. It is now in use and producing splendid crops."

Members of the Board said they did not feel the county paid an exorbitant price for the acreage which adjoins the county home at Woodville and cited prices of other sales in the neighborhood, one of them being the Fryer estate which sold for $400 an acre. The prize paid to Schneider was $275.

HOUSTON O.K.'S SUPPLIES BID REFORMS

Elimination of Trick Specifications Approved By Leader in City Probe

John D. Houston, who recently charged trick specifications were again being used by the Department of Supplies in asking for bids for groceries, today said he was pleased when he learned Col. W. R. Dunlap, supplies director, had decided to readvertise for bids, as a result of recent questions raised, and specify quantities and dates of delivery.

Houston, whose complaint early in the year started the city food probe, returned yesterday from his vacation and, when informed of Col. Dunlap's decision, said:

"I am glad he sees the light. I am pleased that Dunlap has decided to make purchases on a sensible and businesslike basis. My idea was that he should specify definite quantities to be delivered, as well as the dates. I do not think purchases should be made for a period to exceed 30 days."

Col. Dunlap, when asked when the new bids will be sought, said the specifications would be ready in a few days, and added:

"We will specify quantities and dates. Purchases will be made for immediate delivery. Some will also be made for periods of longer than 30 days.

"We will buy in carload lots, if we can buy cheaper. The only reason we are asking for new bids is in fairness to all the bidders and to enable them to cover on contracts."

VET'S BODY DUE HOME TODAY

The body of John Gablehart, which has rested in an unmarked grave near Belleau Wood since he was killed in action there in 1918, will be brought home today to his mother, Mrs. John Galehart, 69, of 1835 Beach avenue, McKeesport.

The body, identified by an aluminum tag attached to the wrist, was recently found in a grave on a French farm. Two soldiers are escorting the casket here from New York. A military funeral is to be held by Carl Everret Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Burial will be at Richland Cemetery.

Violates Friendship, Gets 30-Day Term

City Lifeguard Benjamin Nowak, of Pool No. 1, Monongahela river, had a skiff without oars today because, as he related in Central Police Court, Charles Schwartz, 48, no home, failed to appreciate good treatment. Nowak has been providing shelter for Schwartz for seven weeks, the latter in turn looking after the skiff and oars. Yesterday the oars disappeared. Today Scwartz was given new shelter for 30 days at the workhouse.

IDLE, REGRETS SUICIDE TRY

Roy Murphy, 27, went back to his home at 7370 Hamilton avenue, arm-in-arm with his wife today and with another hope of getting a job.

He was remorseful, he told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Court after police testified that they halted Murphy's attempt to leap off the Sixth Street Bridge into the Allegheny at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Frances Murphy, the man's wife, said that her husband had been melancholy.

An Apple a Day In Wall St. Diet Is Lots of Sauce

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Good news from Wall street. The apples are coming back.

In ticker code an apple is a customer who gives his broker unrestricted rights to buy and sell.

Naturally—a broker is an optimist who doesn't care what happens so long as it doesn't happen to him.

And if he has sole rights to a good old apple, he is as happy as a bee in a florist shop.

And now that the apples are back again you can expect a big bowl of sauce.

And there is a saying in the street that an apple a day keeps the doctor on the wolf's back.

Boy Climbing Pole Burned By Wire

Paul Zallus, 9, of Blanchard mine, near Curtisville, was in a critical condition today in Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum, suffering severe burns of the right side of the head, left arm and leg received when he came in contact with a high tension wire while climbing a pole near the mine last night, according to hospital authorities.

PUPILS TO SET ENROLLMENT RECORD

Additions Ready for Fall Term Opening September 1, in County Week Later

One of the largest enrollments in the history of the schools of the Pittsburgh district is expected when the term is opened this fall, according to city and county school officials. Due to recently constructed buildings, it is expected all pupils can be taken care of without overcrowding.

In the county, large new schools will be opened this fall in Mt. Lebanon and Penn Township. In the city, seven school projects are under construction, but only one, the remodeled Larimer School, will be ready this fall.

School opens in the city on Tuesday, September 1, and in the county the date is September 8. Teachers' institute for the county schools convenes September 1.

Mt. Lebanon will open its complete new junior-senior High School building in Cochran road. The structure contains a gymnasium, library, shops, cafeteria and numerous classrooms.

In Penn Township, a new eight-room elementary school on Verona Heights will be ready about October 1. This includes a combination auditorium and gymnasium. The school board has not announced what steps will be taken to care for the children until October.

The former Union Chapel, in Versailles Township, is being remodeled for an emergency school to be used while an addition is being built to the Bryn Mawr School in that district. A four-room addition has been added to the Gregg School, Scott Township, and a two-room addition to the Floreffe School, Jefferson Township.

In the city, the new wing to the Larimer School will be ready about January 1 as will the new H. B. Davis Elementary School, in Squirrel Hill. The new Lincoln Elementary School and the Mifflin School will be ready about January 1.

Among three large schools under construction are two in the South Hills. These are the Prospect High School at Prospect and Southern avenues and the Knoxville High School addition.

CURRAN KILLERS HUNT PUSHED

The arrest of the alleged slayers of Morris Curran is not awaiting their indictment by the September grand jury, Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson declared today. Jackson, who conducted the investigation of the murder of Curran, North Side beer racketeer, in June, said a nation-wide search for the gunmen is in progress. He said:

"Any statement to the contrary is made to give the public a wrong impression of District Attorney Andrew T. Park's attitude. If we knew where these men are we would arrest them immediately."

Vet, Helper of Needy, Lies Unclaimed in Morgue

The body of John J. Fitzgerald, 42, veteran of the United States Regular Army, known as a friend of homeless and destitute men, lies unclaimed today at the morgue.

He died yesterday in a rooming house at 417 Water street. An autopsy disclosed death was due to pulmonary tuberculosis.

Patrolman Hugh Lavery investigated, he informed the Coroner, and learned Fitzgerald had been absent without leave from the United States Veterans Hospital at Aspinwall since last month. Recently he had been staying at the Improvement of the Poor Home, Duquesne way.

From his pension of $40 a month, Fitzgerald bought food and clothing for numerous derelicts and won their friendship. Lavery today rounded up several of Fitzgerald's beneficiaries and they made an unofficial identification. The coroner is seeking relatives to claim the body.

Mayors of Tristate Area To Discuss Stabilization Plan For Proposed Field

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—J. F. Ebeling, Wheeling banker and chairman of the Ohio Valley Citizens Committee, sponsoring a plan for stabilization of the bituminous coal industry, announced last night that September 15 had been chosen tentatively as the date for another conference in Pittsburgh of mayors of Eastern Ohio, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania towns.

The group meeting here approved proposals including formation of a new competitive field in their territories and the Northern Panhandle Fairmont Morgantown and Southern West Virginia fields, and creation of a tri-state commission to endeavor to unify coal operations and balance production and demand.

Ebeling said conferences at Johnstown, Pa., and Charleston, W. Va., might follow the Pittsburgh meeting at which members of the group will be asked to report on the feeling in their districts concerning the stabilization plan.

Ebeling expressed confidence that the plan, with possibly some revisions ultimately would be employed.

Delegates at Session Here To Act on Proposed Union Of Fairmont, Uniontown

The proposed union of the Fairmont and Uniontown districts of the Pittsburgh Conference of the Free Methodist Church was to be discussed today at the annual meeting of the conference, being held in the Mt. Washington church, Kathleen street. The meeting opened Wednesday and will close Sunday night.

Reports of the ministers on their charges also will be heard today. Bishop William Pearce, of Evanston, Ill., is presiding. There are more than 130 clergymen and delegates in attendance.

Last night the Rev. J. T. Logan, of Chicago, editor of the church paper, the Free Methodist, spoke. Yesterday the presiding elders of three of the five districts of the conference were named. The Rev. R. B. Campbell was named presiding elder of the Pittsburgh district; the Rev. J. B. Foy, of the Butler district, and the Rev. O. Atkinson, of the Rochester district.

Elders were not named for the Uniontown and Fairmont districts pending the proposed union.

EX-FOLLIES GIRL FREE ON BAIL

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Mrs. Evelyn Heath Bell, former Follies girl who tried in vain to obtain $250,000 from the estate of James F. Moran, wealthy sportsman, was free under $5,000 bail today.

She was arraigned in Queens County Court on a perjury charge in connection with claiming after Moran's death that he had promised her $250,000 on the pledge that she would not reveal that they were the parents of a child born November 23, 1916. Mrs. Bell pleaded not guilty.

Trial was set for September 8. She left the court with her husband, Fred Bell, stunt aviator, and said, "there would be fireworks before the case was finished."

Seek to Padlock Garage Used By U. S. Dry

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The federal government today had unwittingly moved to padlock as a "nuisance" a base of operations for its prohibition enforcement officers.

Among 46 applications filed in Federal Court here yesterday for padlocks on places allegedly evading the prohibition laws, was one naming a garage which has been rented for several months by federal agents.

Enforcement officers admitted they rented the garage and had used it as a base of operations to catch law violators.

H. William Holsinger, assistant Federal District Attorney, said all he knew about the place was that he had received several complaints it was a "bad place." Prohibition officers, he said, had never informed him it was for enforcement purposes.

7 HELD FOR QUIZ IN AX DEATH

East End police today held five men and two women, and were looking for a third woman, in connection with the murder of Paul Jackson, 29, a Negro, in his apartment at 6359 Shakespeare street, early today. His wife, Viola, 24, in Pittsburgh Hospital with cuts on her legs, refused to tell police details of her husband's death and her own injuries.

When police reached the house after being summoned by neighbors who complained of loud talking, they were met at the door by Jackson, who collapsed. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. A gash, believed to have been made by a hatchet was in his right breast.

The men and women, held as material witnesses, were roomers in the Jackson home. All were Negroes.

17 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Diphtheria, 1; whooping cough, 10; mumps, 2, and pneumonia, 4.

Chile Has Fourth Ruler in Month

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Manuel Trucco, former director general of the state railways, today was Chile's fourth chief executive in less than a month. Trucco received power of vice president last night from the hands of Juan Esteban Montero.

Montero announced he was taking a leave of absence until October 5, the day after the next presidential election, in order to make his campaign for the presidency as a private citizen.

College Men Asked To Make Dry Study

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A campaign to enlist college students in a prohibition study was announced here last night by Harry S. Warner, general secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association.

Legal Notices 107

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, WESTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA. THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA vs. JAMES COKOS. No. G-1503. In Equity. To the above named respondent, whose last known residence in the United States was East Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, now or late a resident of Sparta, Greece. Please take notice that on the 24th day of July, A. D. 1931, a Bill of Complaint was filed against you in the above court at the above number, praying for an order declaring null and void an order entered September 24th, 1924, in the United States District Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania, purporting to admit you to become a citizen of the United States and praying that the certificate of naturalization issued to you pursuant to said order be cancelled and declared null and void for the following reasons: Because at the time of said application to the United States District Court aforesaid on September 24th, 1924, you did not intend to become a permanent citizen of the United States. Further take notice that on the 24th day of July, A. GUNNERS DRILL AT TOBYHANNA

TOBYHANNA, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Members of the First and Second Battalion of the 107th Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, of Pittsburgh and nearby area, encamped here, spent the day on firing ranges, using sub-caliber guns and ammunition as an economy move.

The First, under Col. Stein, of Danville, took position on Hill No. 8, where every officer was assigned a problem to fire. The Second, under Maj. C. Nuckle, moved to Hill No. 13 on the South Sterling-Laana road early and also carried out a similar program. Col. E. Fisher Wood, commander of the encampment, made a tour of inspection of all points.

He announced that sub-caliber guns and ammunition would be used for the greater part of range work since the shells cost much less than $18 each.

NONUNION MEN IN SCHOOL JOBS

R. C. Carmack, manager of the Allegheny County Electrical Contractors' Association, said today that electrical work had been resumed on several public school construction jobs, through the employment of nonunion workers. The work was tied up by a strike of electricians Monday.

If possible, he said, union men would be employed on the work, but officials of Local Union No. 5, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, refused to furnish them. He declared:

"We shall continue to pay the prevailing union wages, and will use none but competent men. We will not tolerate interference in the conduct of our business."

OBITUARY

Kerr Funeral.

Funeral services were to be held today for George M. Kerr, who died Tuesday in his home. The services were to be held at his late home 218 Wenzel avenue. Burial is to be in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery. Mr. Kerr was a lifelong resident of the South Hills and was a blacksmith, his place of business having been located at West Liberty and Wenzel avenues for 39 years. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Emma L. Sharlow Kerr; two sons, Howard J. and Frank E. Kerr, of Pittsburgh; two daughters, Edna M. Kerr of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Ruth V. Smith, of Warren, Ohio; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Barr, of Mt. Lebanon, and Mrs. George Nelson, of Seattle, Wash.; and four grandchildren.

Tolley Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine Tolley, 87, who died Wednesday, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Aurelia James, of 366 Ridgewood avenue, West View. She was born in old Allegheny and lived on the North Side until eight years ago, when she went to live with her daughter. She was a member of the Smithfield German Evangelical Church. Besides Mrs. James she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Louise McCormick, and a sister, Mrs. Louise Lamb.

Maria Neelan.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maria Neelan, 77, who died Wednesday in her home at 214 Second avenue, will be held Monday. For more than 60 years she has been in business in the Pittsburgh Market, succeeding her mother, who held a position there for 30 years before her. Mrs. Neelan leaves two sons, Michael and John; two daughters, Miss Maria B. Neelan and Mary Neelan Duffy, and a grandson, Frank Malzi, Jr., all of Pittsburgh.

K. OF C. TO FETE 700 ORPHANS

More than 700 children of St. Paul's Orphan Asylum, Crafton, will be guests of the Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus, at a jamboree at the orphanage, Saturday afternoon, August 29. A picnic dinner and a band concert are to be the features. Francis A. Roney is grand knight of the council, and E. A. Coniff chairman of the finance committee.

1,000 Diners Expected At Church Festival

More than 1,000 suppers will be served at the annual ball and corn roast of the St. Aloysius Church, Wilmerding, Tuesday and Wednesday night, August 25 and 26. The Young Ladies' Sodality will assist the Rosary Society in the serving of the dinner from 5 to 8 p. m.

There Is No Substitute For Earnings . . .

What will a security earn during a period of stress? This moot question is answered in the earning performance of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., 7% Class A Shares during 1930 and the first half of 1931.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., and subsidiaries earned during the year 1930, $8,590,869.38, equal to $4.29 per share. In the first half of 1931, $5,267,959.97, which is at the rate of three times the annual dividend requirement. This is outstanding, considering that we are in a period of general deflation.

Mrs. Caroline Shaw Tatom, as chairman, announced a concert to be given at 8 o'clock this evening, at the old Shaw Homestead in Glenshaw. The concert will be given in costume on the porch of the home, while the audience will congregate on the lawn. The affair is for the benefit of the Glenshaw Public Library.

Library Benefit

Mrs. Tatom is being assisted by a committee including Mrs. Martha Shaw Carruthers, Mrs. F. E. Hodill, Miss Sarah Shaw and Mrs. Grant Shirk.

And as usual, I have travel news, too. I mentioned before that Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman is touring Germany with a group of friends, and today I can tell you just who comprise her party.

Besides her daughter, Elda Bella V. Hershman, there are her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Madison J. Keeney, with their two children, Oliver and Belle Keeney, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Michael Kasanaff, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Janice Fredhold Lonergan, of Los Angeles, and Miss Marie Hanlin, Mrs. Thelma Watkins, the Jack Olsens and Kurt and John Paur, sons of Emil Paur, noted symphony orchestra conductor.

Yesterday Mrs. Joseph H. Rohrbacher, formerly of Sewickley, who has been summering at the Elmhurst Inn with Capt. Rohrbacher, was guest at a luncheon for 12 guests given by Mr. L. Halsey Williams, of Newington, Shields, in her home. There was bridge in the afternoon.

Capt. and Mrs. Rohrbacher are residents of Honolulu.

In Bar Harbor recently on their yacht, Viator, were Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander and Maitland Alexander, Jr., of Sewickley. Dr. Alexander, you know, is the commodore of the Dark Harbor (Me.) Yacht Club.

In Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass., is Mrs. James Todd, of Sewickley and New York, as the guest of Mrs. George E. Tener, of Ardarra, Sewickley, at her summer home. The Walter Lyons and the Jack Lyons, of Sewickley, returned the first of the week from a motor trip to Eastern Shore, Md.

Irma Louise Rugh Weds Afthur T. Hood

On Tuesday Miss Irma Louise Rugh, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Rugh, of Pitcairn, became the bride of Arthur Thomas Hood, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hood, of Southburg, Pa., in the Rugh home.

The bride wore a gown of shell-pink net, and her sister, Miss Margaret Anne Rugh, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of blue satin. Carlyle Smith, of Grove City, served as the best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hood are graduates of Grove City College. After a tour of the Adirondacks, they will make their home in Mt. Jewett, Pa., where the bridegroom is to be science instructor and director of athletics in the Mt. Jewett High School.

The reception in Mrs. Corbett's honor is dated for October 13, from which date on to November 24 the club will alternate social meetings with business sessions.

The Christmas party, December 22, will make another little break in the routine as will the luncheon on March 8 for which the members will come up to the Congress of Clubs. A covered dish luncheon is slated for March, also; the annual election and reports for May 24 and the closing outing for June 14.

Mrs. Corbett's staff includes Mrs. D. W. Zeber and Mrs. Edgar Masters, vice presidents; Mrs. C. J. Kinter, recording; Mrs. C. W. Wellons, financial, and Mrs. F. J. Felton, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. C. W. Zehnder, treasurer.

On Thursday, September 10, a candidates' meeting will be held in the Taylor Allderdice High School by the Fourteenth Ward League of Women Voters and the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade. R. C. Dever, chairman of the Board of Trade, will preside and will be assisted by Mrs. H. D. Stark and Mrs. Sydney Kaufman, of the league, and Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty, president of the Squirrel Hill Community Club.

Miss MacDougal Weds Frederick N. Schlegel

Mrs. Mary B. MacDougal, of Waterford street, East End, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Betty Belle MacDougal, to Frederick Norman Schlegel, son of Frederick T. Schlegel, of the East End, which took place in New York on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Schlegel will live in New York.

Carnegie Man Wins Ohio Bride

An attractive wedding was solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Camp, of Dalton, O., on Saturday evening, August 15, at 6 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Evelyn Camp, became the bride of William C. Craig, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Craig, of Carnegie. The Rev. A. E. Stockham, of Creston, officiated, before an improvised altar of palms and ferns.

Miss Lelia Camp was her sister's maid of honor, and Raymond Worley, of Carnegie, served as best man.

Mrs. Ada Goudy played the wedding music, and preceding the ceremony, Miss Dorothy Critchfield, of Wooster, played several selections on the harp.

After the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Craig left for a western motor trip, and after September 1 will be at home in Columbus, O., where the bridegroom is an instructor in Capital University. The bride attended Wooster College, and the bridegroom is a graduate of Wooster College, class of 1929, and of North Western University, Evanston, Ill. He also attended the Western Theological Seminary in Pittsburgh.

Emil Winter, Emil Weil and Charles Rosenbloom, of Pittsburgh, were recent visitors at Baden-Baden in Germany.

The international tennis tournamet will be held there September 3 to 6.

Miss Gildernew Sets Sept. 10 for Wedding

Miss Dorothy Gildernew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gildernew, of Tonapah street, Beechview, has chosen Thursday, September 10, as the date for her marriage to Francis P. Cavanaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Cavanaugh, of Carothers avenue, Carnegie. The ceremony will take place in St. Peter's Church, North Side.

CHARMING EVENING ENSEMBLE FEATURES THE SCARF-WRAP

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—My, what work the scarf is doing this season. It is used to make the entire bodice, and then tie in a bow, it is used as a sleeve and now it is being pressed into service as a wrap. Yes, many a lovely though brief wrap if it could be interviewed would declare that it owes all to the scarf. Sometimes the scarf-wrap masquerades with the aid of one armhole, but frequently it is just skilfully arranged and wrapped round the figure to perfectly simulate a short coatee. For day frocks of course the scarf is well-known for its ability to make a neckline, and act as a color contrast and trimming right down the side of a frock, after having done its bit to create an adaptable neckline. Really, the scarf deserves a vote of thanks from the designers. It simplifies their task and it is always a fitting complement to a delicate evening frock of lace or any sheer weave, when it is simply used as matching though separate scarf pure and simple without any pretense or desire to be a wrap.

THE TWO FIGURES sketched in the accompanying panel show an evening ensemble that features the scarf-wrap. The outfit is by the fine house of Redfern. The dress, which is of soft ivory satin, is simple but highly effective. The bodice is a simple, unadorned affair and there is a cleverly wrapped skirt. A wide strip of the satin is swathed about the hips in Oriental fashion and drawn down to a point in front. There it is twisted and falls in a wide godet with the two outer edges appliqued onto the skirt.

AS HAS BEEN explained, the wrap is nothing more than a long wide scarf of the satin arranged and draped around the figure to simulate a short sleeveless coat with a deep cape. To subscribe to the popular urge for brown and white, the scarf is trimmed with an edging of sable.

Is marriage a trap, unless you have a big bankroll?

Does love always fly out of the window when poverty comes in at the door?

J. T. C. thought it did. According to her, the rosiest love dream became a nightmare after a few weeks of scrimping and saving. Plenty of youngsters listened sadly to her broadcast. For never has marriage seemed a greater risk than today.

Gramma and Grampa, to be sure, married on little or no money. However, they were used to that—used to simple pleasures, crude comforts; accustomed to hardships, loneliness, monotony.

But can Twentieth Century Daisy and John stand a racket like that . . . coddled, pampered Daisy and John, who've had pretty clothes and nightly movies and a thousand little luxuries ever since they were born? Will 1931 dare and endure and sacrifice as much for romance as 1831?

PLENTY OF ANSWERS

We wondered. We had a hunch they would. We didn't believe that True Hearts and Fighting Spirits had disappeared from the world in spite of whiners and quitters like J. T. C. So we put it up to the gang. And did we get answers? We'll say we did! Here's one that would put ginger into the most wilting spirit.

Dear Miss Martin:

Is marriage a trap, you ask? I should say not!

Of course for some people who want to live in limousine style on a flivver income, it might be . . . but as for me, I think it is next to heaven, even if we're not so flush for money.

When Tom and I were married, we didn't have a cent. Now, after seven years, we have a home, a car and a darling little daughter—and on only $36 a week! We aren't "starved" or "underfed," like J. T. C. seemed to think folks like us must be, and neither are any of our friends who have nothing but a few dollars a week.

Some of the girls nowadays think they couldn't be happy on just a few dollars a week. They think that a man must be a money machine . . . and if he isn't—well, they call marriage a flop. They are the kind who could never get along, no matter how much money they had. But we did it. And don't think we didn't have any bad luck, either. Tom was sick, and couldn't work for weeks, and our little one was sick at the same time. Did I feel abused, or leave home, because I didn't have a bed of roses to lie on? No, I didn't. Or because bills were piling up? No, I didn't. And I'm not thinking of it now, because things are slow and work is scarce, and there are still bills to pay! Am I happy? Why, I wouldn't trade my happiness for all the money in the world. And there are plenty like me!

SATISFIED WITH LIFE

Money doesn't make this world go around. It's the love we have for one another that pulls us through, and makes life worth living. And if I had it to do over again, I would. Why, it's next to heaven, being poor and happy . . . and I live in one of those basement flats that J. T. G. talks about, too.

As for my husband "losing his temper" . . . well, wives lose theirs sometimes, too, don't they? And as for husbands "trying to console themselves with other women and hooch" . . . I guess J. T. C. never tried to work the game right.

Everything we have, which isn't much, we made with our own two hands, and without any help from anyone, as we were both alone in this world until baby came.

MARRIAGE NO TRAP

Gee! Women like that J. T. C. give a guy a pain in the neck! Always complaining! Here's luck to your corner, and a big hope that everyone who is truly in love will take a chance on the "for better or worse"—which is mostly for the better, as I think, after seven years of it! MRS. TOM S.

Doesn't sound as if there were much "trap" there, does it, Stranger?

Has it worked out like that for you? Or was "love in a cottage" a failure? And if it was a failure, was it a slim pocketbook that caused it . . . or a slim supply of spunk and sense and love?

Thought Plays Great Part in Falling in Love, Observes Fay King

By FAY KING.

"When did you first fall in love with me?"

Countless young couples in love have asked that question of each other.

The answer is usually that they cannot say just exactly when, but were suddenly aware that love had come.

Now thought plays a great part in falling in love. One begins to fall in love when alone, thinking the best and finest thoughts of the other. These thoughts are full of idealization, sympathy, sincerity and trust.

Thoughts are usually exaggerated a bit, but when they are favorable it does not matter.

When these thoughts change to distrust, criticism and fault-finding it is the beginning of falling out of love.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

He Is 'Head of the House'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What name appears on the mailbox card, "Ray House," "Mr. and Mrs. Ray House," or what?

This is just a family argument we would like to have settled. I think it is just conceit for him to put only his name on the card, but maybe I'm wrong. READER.

It is customary to use, for the mailbox card, the name of the "head of the house." So Ray House is correct.

After the Onion—

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it a breach of correct manners to eat onions for dinner when one has been invited out for the evening—to the theater, to dance, or any place where one comes in close contact with others? A.

Yes, no matter how enthusiastic we are about this delectable vegetable, we should be very careful to consider our post-onion-eating engagements! Else we needn't be surprised if we get a social cold shoulder.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Surprising how well green or mauve powders look on the complexion of a woman who has a fair skin and snow-white hair. Not so effective in the daytime, but at night they impart a velvety smoothness.

The permanent wave is worth its weight in gold when a woman travels. Dollies with a talent for making undulations can get along without a finger wave. It is a matter of steaming the hair, training it into a pattern, making it mind, putting it through a course of sprouts. Even naturally curly hair must conform, be told where and how to toe the mark. If one is to have a lamberquin of curls about the neck, the permanent is a real need.

Massage with the use of proper cosmetics will do wonders for the complexion. It is stimulating, cleansing, youthifying. Take no chances of creating more wrinkles by using a rotary motion; merely slap and pat the skin surface briskly, bringing it to a glow. Follow with an ice rub and the application of a good astringent.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Listens Patiently to Lillian's "Lecture"

I sprang to my feet tense with anger, conscious that my face was flaming at Lillian's cool comment upon my doubt of Philip Veritzen's interest in the first two acts of the play I had written.

"You mean he may be biased because he is in love with you?" she had queried. "But he isn't any more."

She was watching me narrowly, and before I could speak, she flung out her hand and forestalled me.

"Don't say it!" she said. "Of course, you're terribly angry and could grind me into sausage meat with gusto, also eclat. But I can outtalk you, and I'm going to, until you calm down. You're too much of a lady, also you love me too well to walk out on me as you're tempted to do—oh, yes, I've caught your side glances toward the door, but you're not going through it, not just yet."

She paused, literally for breath, but I did not speak, although I remained standing, feeling curiously like a stubborn schoolboy being catechized.

"I meant to make you angry," she said. "But first, let me make something clear. Never from your first meeting with old Phil, when he fell for you worse than any ton of bricks ever mentioned in song or story simile, have I intimated—or thought—that you had the slightest—what is it you like to call it—oh! yes—'romantic interest' in him."

"Thank you," I said venomously.

"You should add 'for the spinach,' or something equally edible," she retorted imperturbably. "I'm speaking the truth, however, and you know it as well as you do the fact that for a year or two Phil Veritzen wasn't quite sure whether his old dome was above his shoulders or attached to his heels by a ball and chain. He sure was nuttier about you than I've ever seen him about anybody, and I've known old Phil for many hectic years."

"But," she went on emphatically, "because I know him so well, I also know this about him. Never in all his life, has he set the seal of his artistic approval upon anybody or any piece of work which did not have somewhere within him, her or it, the divine spark which he is reported—and—justly to be a wizard at discovering. That standard is his ideal, his altar flame, which he tends as zealously as any vestal of old. He would no more swerve from it because of his infatuation for any woman, than he would dive from the roof of his theater for the same reason. And you know you cannot imagine Philip Veritzen 'dying for love and the worms eating him'—which, incidentally, I believe is not to be done by any man."

I sat down abruptly—it simply is not possible for me to remain angry with Lillian for many minutes, and she smiled engagingly at me.

"You know I'm doing this for your own good," she smirked, with so perfect an imitation of a smug mother correcting a child that I reluctantly grinned.

"That's better," she said. "You'll be able to listen to reason now."

I raised my eyebrows, trying to express delicate incredulity, but produced no effect whatever upon my truculent friend.

"So there is no possible reason for you to doubt Phil's genuine good faith in the matter of your play. Now it's all right to be modest, dear one, but for the love of John Smith, Pocahontas, come out of those bushes, and look your world in the face. You know what Phil Veritzen's accolade of a play means. And in order to remove even the shadow of embarrassment from you. I'm telling you what you ought to be very glad to know that he isn't in love with you any more."

She looked over at me, patently deciding that she had broken down my defenses and that it was safe to venture a jest.

"Of course, I know that's an awful shock to give a perfect lady," she said slyly, and I stiffened wrathfully.

"Remember your favorite character," I warned.

"The immortal Egbert, who can be pushed just so far," she supplemented. "All right, I'll try to sprinkle some salt on me, but nevertheless and notwithstanding, it will be better for you—you'll feel more at ease with him when you see him again if you realize that admiration for your ability to carve out a play is your strongest attraction for him now."

I was furious at myself for flushing, but this calm dissection of something, the knowledge of which I always had kept pushed away from me as far as possible, seemed crass, and was humiliating.

"When this operation's over, the patient will not only be living but doing nicely," Lillian said, with eyes sedulously averted from my flaming face.

"Phil's an old fish," she went on after a little pause. "He gets a certain concept of a woman, and proceeds to idealize her—and idolize her, with that particular image in view. Then when that idea of her is changed in any way, the romantic veil which he has wrapped around her is torn away, and though he may be pleased with what he sees beneath, he is no longer in love with that particular lady."

Not for the mint itself would I have had her guess my quickened curiosity at her words, but I could not hide from myself that I was tensely asking a mental question.

What was it that had made Philip Veritzen change his feelings toward me?

Household Hints

Keep the cereals nice and fresh if you want the children to retain their interest in them.

The entire complexion of the old brass bed may be changed by covering it with two coats of flat cream paint, letting it dry thoroughly between each painting. Then cover with a good walnut stain and finish with a coat of clear shellac.

If you do most of your ordering by telephone, it is a good idea to keep your own scales in the kitchen and every now and then weigh the articles sent you. It serves as a checkup, which some time may prove to your economical advantage.

Panic

I miss your love—without it I am lost,
A listless lad—careened by any wind;
For all the nights we spent were worth their cost,
And how I rue that they are left behind;
I miss your smile—the pressure of your hand,
That buoyed me up to face a shabby world,
And now that I have made my final stand—
My shield is down—my banners are unfurled.

No night goes by—but what I think of you,
The sultry breezes stir your charming ghost;
I miss the careless things we used to do,
When I was all that mattered at the most;

And, worst of all, you artful bag of tricks—
I miss the cocktails that you used to mix!
—Kid Kazanova.

Gag

Two drunks were chinning about getting home stewed and hitting "the hay" without disturbing the "Little Woman."

"Well," said the first drunk, "my system is a pip. Instead of taking any chances and bumping into the furniture, I stop at the foot of the stairs and undress there. Then, with my clothes on my arm, I sneak up, see? I lay 'em on the first chair I come to and slip into bed. S'nothing to it!"

"I tried your system last night," he chirped, "and not so good!"

"Why—what happened?" he was asked.

"Well, I got home pretty plastered, and when I got to the foot of the stairs I took everything off, folded the clothes over my arm and started up, and when I got to the head of the stairs—I was in Gray's Drug Store!"

It Really Happened

John Considine, Jr., of Hollywood, is in town seeing things. One of his influential friends has been serving as guide. The other afternoon Mr. Considine was taken through the psychopathic ward at Bellevue.

"Hello, Mr. Considine," cried an inmate.

"Hello," replied the startled Considine. "I, er, er, don't quite place you."

"Don't you remember me?" asked the lunatic. "I used to work in Hollywood—in a publicity department!"

Types I'm Glad I'm Not

St. John Ervine, of London, who was a guest critic here for a while, crashes the rags with a speech in which he denounced Youth. He is reported as asserting that "youth is mean and cruel and narrow-minded," etc.

St. Yawn Ervine, as he is affectionately known in this corner, is 47. He is the critic who gave a sour notice to a show sponsored by Mr. Philip Goodman, and summed up his verdict by arguing that Mr. Goodman could not possibly be a good showman because he had a plump stomach and ate too much food. Ervine gave more space to Mr. Goodman's yen for food and his appearance than he gave to the production.

Youth, he now finds, is mean and cruel and narrowminded and "in this age there is a heresy that the old know nothing."

Apparently, Mr. Ervine.

It was Harpo Marx who suggested that Mr. Ervine be tendered a farewell dinner—the day after he sailed!

"Dear Mr. W. And they execute plans!

[illegible] of the Marx boys were talking about Mr. Broun's revue, and Harpo ventured the opinion that the new shows, as they come into town, would not hurt "Shoot the Works" very much.

"That's true," said Groucho. "Broun is getting a class of people that'll never go to the theater again."

The Retort Lovely

It was in Reuben's the other 3:11 a. m., and the party at the table next to Sam Shipman's had just been served with a caviar sandwich.

"Oh, boy!" ejaculated Shipman, who has written some pretty good and some pretty bad shows, "that's the stuff I like. Say, if I ate a sandwich like that—I could sit down and write a second act."

"You mean," flipped Hoffman, the caricaturist, "that if you could write a second act—you could eat a sandwich like that!"

Enright Has Modern Nell

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Reckless Hour" opened a three-day engagement in the Enright yesterday. Saturday it opens in the Harris.

The film demonstrates that movie heroines aren't the only ones who are reckless. Take the producers of this one!

An interesting enough cast is on hand. But the players are handicapped by old situations and hokum. Which means the picture story, weighed in any kind of balance, is found wanting.

Meet the fashion model, who lives and learns. Meet the rich young blade, who doesn't do right by our Nell. Meet the artist fellow, who has a cozy studio. He's the picture's biggest surprise for he's quite virtuous. And this in spite of a rainy afternoon! Yes sir, 'tis he who supplies the wedding ring at the finale.

The cast features Dorothy Mackaill, Conrad Nagel, H. B. Warner, Walter Byron, Joan Blondell and Joe Donahue.

Mr. Warner is called upon to be a bookwormish father, with one eye ever alert when it comes to daughter's honor. And he's pretty much on the job, too.

There is some comedy in the production. There also are moments when the affair becomes a fairly interesting sex drama. And about in the middle of it Pa Pitt's censors make their debut.

Radio Position For Clark

Close on the heels of the announcement that H. M. Addison, managing director of Loew's Penn Theater, had been elevated to the post of division manager of the Loew Cleveland group of theaters comes word that William A. Clark, Penn publicity and advertising director, is also to leave the local field.

Clark's new duties will take him to Cincinnati, where he is to become associated with the Cincinnati Post in the operation of a recently acquired radio station. The proposition is said to hold exceptional possibilities.

Both Addison and Clark are expected to leave the latter part of the month. No announcement has been made as to their successors.

O'Neill Star

Alla Nazimova will have the leading role in Eugene O'Neill's newest drama, "Mourning Becomes Electra," when it goes into rehearsal in New York in two weeks.

Virginia Bruce Brought Back To Movies After Stage Glorifies Her

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 21.

Last year, the producer came out to Hollywood and bore away with him three girls, whom he thought worthy of glorification. All had done extra work, but were unable to get any further in pictures.

This week, however, Hollywood repaired its oversight by taking back one of the girls. She is Virginia Bruce, and she has a brand new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer calling for parts instead of extra work. Irving Thalberg himself signed the agreement.

Virginia Bruce

As soon as the ink was dry, Virginia boarded a train to pay New York a final visit. She is due back here September 1 to start the hazardous climb to stardom.

EASY FOR SOME

With all of Broadway making eyes at the talkies, Alexander Kirkland fell into a job without even trying.

The Theater Guild actor has been signed by Fox to play the lead in William K. Howard's next picture, "Surrender." Rumor once gave the part to Leslie Howard.

Kirkland's experience is enough to excite the envy of his less fortunate brethren. Under a contract for two years to the Guild, he played opposite Nazimova in "A Month in the Country," and later was loaned to Gilbert Miller for "Marseillaise." He has made but one picture, Tallulah Bankhead's ill-starred "Tarnished Lady."

Some time ago the actor came out to Pasadena for a rest. Through Ruben Mamoulian, he was introduced to film circles where he eventually met William K. Howard. An invitation to make a test for "Surrender" immediately followed. Now the Fox Company is offering him a long-term contract.

LATEST GOSSIP

Clarke Gable has gone to the desert for a rest. That ought to make for record temperatures down there . . .

Harry Bannister

It will be a month yet before Marie Dressler is well enough to report for work . . Joan Blondell is ill, too. Nothing serious. . . . What difference a few years make! Walter Fritzche, wartime engineer on the German submarine U-39, will act as technical director on the U-boat scenes in "Suicide Fleet." While hostilities were on, Fritzche saw 168,000 tons of allied shipping go to the bottom. Today he is a member of the United States submarine service. . Incidentally, the "Suicide Fleet" company has been harassed by many sharks off the Coronados Islands. When Navy men expressed the doubt that sharks would eat actors, Harry Bannister wasn't convinced. "Even in this depression he inquired dubiously." . . Preparations for the Negri film still move slowly. Pathe explains the picture was not promised on this year's program, so they can take their time and get the story right. . Ken Maynard is flying East to the airshow in Cleveland. He pilots his seventh plane. No, none of the other cracked up. . . Although set musicians are rarely used now, Charlie Chaplin is said to pay his orchestra a regular retainer to be sure of getting them when he is ready to go to work.

Practical School Frock

Pattern 2024

By ANNE ADAMS

The well-dressed school girl is simply dressed in cotton or sheer wool—pique, linen, challis, jersey, wool crepe or lightweight tweed. Here is a model she will love, since it borrows its diagonal lines from very smart big-sister frocks. Ample grace and fullness are given with front skirt pleats; they are omitted in back because of mussing so badly. The collar and cuffs are contrasting.

Pattern 2024 is obtainable only in sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 10 requires 2⅛ yards of 54-inch material.

Pattern 709 includes a scarf and a beret for head sizes 20, 21 and 22. Price Fifteen Cents. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE NEW FALL CATALOG is now ready. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes. Also delightful gift suggestions in accessory and transfer patterns. PRICE OF CATALOG, FIFTEEN CENTS. CATALOG WITH PATTERN, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS. Revolt, Sea In Metro News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of the capture of the revolutionary leaders in Cuba by the forces supporting President Machado, form a vivid chapter of history in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The prisoners, including former President Menocal, are shown being landed in Havana from a gunboat and started on their way to the fortress at Cabanas under armed guard.

The bombing of the freighter Mount Shasta at sea off Currituck, N. C., provides a stirring spectacle. The Army fliers are shown dropping scores of 300-pound missiles, only two of which actually hit the target, although many of them strike the water within a few feet of the ship. The Mount Shasta is finally sent to the bottom by the tiny guns of a Coast Guard cutter and is seen sinking in flames.

EVENTS IN GERMANY

At a great mass meeting in the Reichstag Building in Berlin, President von Hindenberg receives a pledge of loyalty to the German republic from a huge audience, which joins in one of the most impressive demonstrations staged since the war.

Mayor James J. Walker, of New Work, arrives at Bremerhaven, Germany, and is warmly received by high officials and others, including Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion. The Mayor, through Hearst Metrotone News, issues a cordial message to the German people.

SAILORS AT RODEO

Sailors and marines of the United States battle fleet, at Long Beach, Cal., try some rough riding in a wild west rodeo, with thrilling results graphically described by the Globe Trotter.

An unusual novelty subject comes from Torrington, Wyo., where S. V. Coffman exhibits what he declares to be the only trained deer in the world doing some remarkable high jumping.

Metrotone cameramen have made their way to the isolated lighthouse at Ar-Men off the French coast and photographed the relief of the keeper after a year's lonely vigil. The pictures were made in a raging sea and entail dangerous hazards for the cameramen as well as the crew effecting the relief.

5 NEW TRAFFIC RULES ASKED

Five new traffic provisions have been recommended by the Better Traffic Committee for a 60-day trial. It is proposed to have no parking on the south side of Lockhart street between Virgin way and Chestnut street 24 hours a day; the south side of Gibbon street from Hooper to Stevenson streets from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., and the south side of Watson street from Hooper to Magee street from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

One-way traffic is asked eastbound in Exchange way between Sixth street and Barkers way. One-hour parking has been asked for the north side ofn Watso street from Hooper to Magee street, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Be Sure Milk Is Pure as Safety First Rule

There is always something new in disease. For the past three or four years those interested in public health have been studying the problem of "undulant fever."

Undulant fever is an infectious disease due to a germ called the "Bacillus abortus," or "Brucella abortus." It attacks cattle, sheep, goats and pigs, and may be transmitted to human beings who care for these animals, or who engage in slaughtering them. Persons who are particularly susceptible may develop the disease by drinking the milk of the infected animals.

It is said that 20 per cent of our cattle are affected with this particular infection. This percentage is sufficiently high to demand great caution. It is important to see that proper tests are made of cows in every herd from which comes the public milk supply.

Efficient pasteurization destroys the undulant fever germ and other obnoxious germs. It is not sufficient to depend wholly upon pasteurization. Milk should be made safe before and after pasteurization, by keeping it absolutely clean and in a temperature not above 50 degrees F. Good milk, the best milk you can obtain, is pre-eminently the best food. If you value health, nothing but the best will do.

Apparently undulant fever does not attack children. But it is not wise to take the slightest risk when it comes to food. The babies and children, at any rate, must be given milk which is above suspicion.

Be careful to obtain your milk from sources which you know to be reliable. Be sure it comes from dairies which are carefully inspected. Get the milk which you are sure has taken the least possible time to travel from the farm to your door. Get the very best grade of milk for drinking purposes.

Even though milk prices soar, see that your kiddies drink a quart of good milk every day. The adult may get along on a pint, because he takes many other protein foods. But give the kiddies lots of pure milk of the best kind you can buy. In the long run, the best is a saving in money and in health.

A Popular Dancer of Today With Her Eyelids Remodeled and in a Costume Which Not More Than Five Years Ago Would Have Sent Her to Prison

THE influence of the American movie has a firm hold on the Japanese. . . . Many sons and daughters of Nippon are not only dressing like the heroes and heroines of Hollywood but actually want round, wide-open, Occidental eyes—and they're getting them.

One of Japan's most eminent eye surgeons, Dr. Kozo Uchida, has transformed more than 10,000 pairs of eyes. . . . With a quick, simple, painless, and inexpensive operation he changes the appearance of his patients' faces. . . . He removes the slant of the "almond" eyes which has always revealed the native of Japan instantly as an oriental. . . . In all the world he is the only man who knows how to do it.

Do you want to know exactly how it is done? . . . You will find a detailed explanation in one of the most interesting articles you've ever read—in next Sunday's American Weekly.

DR. COPELAND :-: Urges Grapes In Diet :-: PRUDENCE PENNY :-: New Ways to Arouse Jaded Appetites

Grapes Known to Be of Great Value in the Diet

Dr. Copeland recommends this fruit because of its nutritious qualities and high sugar content.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

It is amazing to learn what quantities of grapes are consumed every year. It was not so long ago that grapes were rarely seen in the city, except upon the tables of the rich.

The growth of the industry has done much for American health. The poor and the rich are now able to indulge freely in this extremely popular fruit.

Frequent reference to this fruit is made in the Bible. It is said that Noah planted a vineyard, although he made bad use of its fruit. In ancient Egypt, grapes were planted alongside the tombs of the dead. It is evident then that the history of grapes goes back at least five or six thousand years.

Early settlers in America discovered an abundance of grapes. But these grapes were wild and not as appealing to the taste as the grapes of the Old World. It was only after many years of experimentation that our native grapes became so delicious. But now grape growing has become a great industry.

The grape contains certain vitamins and important minerals. In addition to potash, it carries soda, magnesium, lime and iron. These substances aid greatly in maintaining the alkalinity of the body. They prevent the system from developing and storing up harmful acids.

The fruit is a highly nutritious one. It is particularly rich in its supply of sugar. Because of its sugar content it is highly recommended for active people. Sugar is a food that supplies energy.

The fruit is easily digested. It has another advantages too, in that it is the only fruit which is plentiful and inexpensive in times of drought.

This fruit has been definitely proved to be of great value in the diet. It is recommended for all, and fortunately is now within the reach of everyone.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

MEAT LOAF (RING MOLD)—Half pound veal, ½ pound pork, 1 pound beef, ½ small onion, ½ cup carrots, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, ½ cup evaporated milk, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 teaspoon salt.

Grind the meat, onion and carrots. Add remaining ingredients. Grease a ring mold well with a piece of suet trimmed from the meat or with butter. Pack mixture firmly into the ring mold. Dot with small pieces of suet, salt pork or bacon. Set in hot oven for 15 minutes, then reduce to 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves eight. Fill the center with creamed potatoes and garnish with a border of stuffed tomatoes.

STUFFED TOMATOES—Select medium-sized, firm tomatoes. Remove skins and chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, scoop out the centers and combine with chopped cucumbers, celery and cooked salad dressing. Refill the tomatoes. Place a sprig of parsley on each tomato.

RUSSIAN TEA CAKES—Three and three-quarters cups sifted cake flour, 1½ cups sugar, ¾ cup butter, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup eggs, slightly beaten (2 to 3 eggs), ½ cup sour cream, ½ cup blanched almonds, chopped.

Sift flour once, measure and sift three more times. Combine eggs and 1 cup sugar, mixing thoroughly. Add cream, then flour. Toss on slightly floured board, roll ¼ inch thick. Dot with butter, fold dough over, roll and dot again with butter. Place dough in bowl, cover and let stand in refrigerator to harden. Mix ½ cup sugar with cinnamon. Roll dough as thin as possible, sprinkle with almonds, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in 4-inch squares, roll as for jelly roll. Cut each into 1-inch pieces. Sprinkle top with almonds, sugar and cinnamon. Bake in hot oven 35 minutes. Makes four dozen cakes.

COTTAGE CHEESE AND ORANGE MARMALADE SANDWICHES—One cup cottage cheese, 3 teaspoons orange marmalade, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 12 thin slices whole wheat bread, 4 tablespoons butter.

Cream the butter and spread carefully on the slices of bread. Combine the cottage cheese, orange marmalade and the grated peel, season with salt and spread the mixture on six of the slices of bread and cover with the remaining slices. Cut in triangles.

TOASTED MUSHROOM SANDWICHES—One-quarter pound mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon flour, 3 tablespoons cream, dash nutmeg, 8 slices of bread.

Saute the mushrooms which have been cleaned and chopped fine in 2 tablespoons butter. Make a smooth paste of the cream, flour and seasonings and add to the mushrooms, add a dash of nutmeg and cook for five minutes until thick. Butter bread sliced thin, spread with the mushrooms and toast.

FIG AND NUT SPREAD—1 cup figs, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¼ cup finely chopped nut meats, 8 slices graham bread, 3 tablespoons butter.

Chop figs fine and cook in water until tender. Add lemon juice and set away in refrigerator until very cold. Butter bread. Arrange the filling, dust with chopped nuts and nut slices together.

CREAM CHEESE AND GINGER SANDWICH—1 cream cheese, ¼ cup preserved ginger, 8 slices white bread, ¼ cup chopped nut meats, 3 tablespoons butter.

Cream the butter and spread on the bread. Cream the cheese and add the chopped nuts and ginger. Blend well and spread on the bread. Put slices together and cut in any desired shape.

SWEET PEACH PIE—Sift 1½ cups flour, ⅓ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt together. Rub or cut in ½ cup shortening. Add 1 beaten egg and 1 tablespoon cold milk. If the egg is large or makes the mixture too soft, omit some or all of the milk. Chill the pastry. Roll out like ordinary pie crust, and fill pie tins. This recipe makes one pie. Bake in a hot oven, 500 degrees, for 10 minutes. Fill, when ready to use, with well drained canned sliced peaches. Sprinkle grated nutmeg over the top and cover with sweetened cream.

POP-OVERS—One cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon melted butter, ⅞ cup milk, 2 eggs.

SHUN LEAGUE, U. S. ADVISED

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—America was warned today by Lord Beaverbrook, foremost English newspaper publisher, to stay out of the League of Nations.

"A branch of the French foreign office," the English publicist termed it. He added:

Accompanied by his younger brother, Allan Aitken, and Lord Castlerosse, journalist, Lord Beaverbrook arrived here on the Red Star liner Belgenland from Halifax. He declared:

"The United States is far better off out of the League. As it is now constituted, it is nothing but a branch of the French foreign office. The French manipulate it to their own advantage."

gradually to make a smooth batter. Beat whole eggs until light, then add the melted butter. Beat two minutes with egg beater. Pour into hot, well-greased custard cups or hissing hot buttered gem pans. Bake 30 to 35 minutes beginning with a hot oven, 450 degrees, and decreasing gradually to moderate oven as popovers start to brown.

PEACH ROLL—Make a baking powder biscuit dough out of 1½ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons shortening, ¾ cup milk. Roll into an oblong shape. Drain a can of peaches well, or use the fresh sliced peaces if you prefer, and place in the center, reserving two halves for the sauce. Roll up the dough, pinching ends and sides carefully. Steam one hour and serve with this sauce:

To the peach syrup add the two peaches pressed throuogh a sieve. Add a tablespoon sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon almond extract and use over the roll. This recipe serves six.

COCOA—CHEESE BALLS—Two packages (6 ounces) cream cheese, 1 cup shredded cocoanut.

Roll cream cheese into 12 small balls. Roll each ball in cocoanut, which has been either toasted or tinted. Arrange in nests of crisp lettuce, allowing three balls to each serving. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves 4.

MARSHMALLOW FLUFF—One cup cream, ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup quartered marshmallows, 1 cup orange pulp and juice.

Whip cream until thick, fold in other ingredients. Serve cold. Serves 6 to 8.

BACON AND PICKLE SANDWICH—Six slices crisply broiled bacon, chopped, 3 medium size dill pickles, chopped, ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Combine bacon, pickles and mayonnaise. Spread on buttered bread. Makes six sandwiches, 4x4 inches.

LEMON WHIPPED CREAM SAUCE—Four tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, grated rind of lemon, ¾ cup cream.

BANANA SPONGE—Soften 1-3 package gelatine in 1-3 cup cold water; then add 1-3 cup boiling water and 1 cup sugar. Stir until the sugar dissolves, then strain the gelatine mixture over 1 cup mashed banana pulp. Heat to the boiling point, then allow to stand until somewhat cool. Add the juice of 1 lemon, and place the pan in a bowl of ice water, beating the mixture until light and cold. Beat the whites of 3 eggs and then beat these whites into the banana mixture. Turn into a mold lined with sliced banana, and chill. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

CURRANT MUFFINS—Sift 2 cups flour, then measure. Resift with 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar. Beat an egg thoroughly and add it to a cup of rich milk and 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Combine the wet and dry ingredients as quickly as possible. As soon as every trace of the flour has disappeared pour instantly into oiled muffin tins. Bake in a hot, 425 degree, oven for from 20 to 25 minutes. Makes about 12 muffins.

SQUAW CORN—One cup diced potatoes, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup peas, 1 cup corn (canned), 2 stalks celery, 1 slice onion (chopped), 1 quart milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ pound bacon, salt and pepper to taste.

Cook diced potatoes, carrots and celery in a small amount of boiling water until tender. When about half cooked, add peas, corn and chopped onion. Add milk when vegetables are tender. Cut bacon into small pieces and cook crisp, then add to vegetable mixture. Melt butter, mix with flour and salt and pepper. Combine this with milk and vegetables. Heat to boiling point. Serve hot, with bread and jam.

JAMBERLIE—Four slices bacon, 1 medium-sized onion, 1 cup cooked rice, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 green pepper, ½ teaspoon celery salt, salt and pepper. Cut bacon and onion into small pieces. Broil together until brown. Add to this the cooked rice, canned tomatoes, chopped green pepper, celery salt and salt and pepper to taste. Cook until thick.

CORN CUSTARD—Two cups corn, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 3 eggs, 2 cups milk. Beat eggs and milk together, add melted butter, sugar, salt and corn. Pour into buttered ramekins. Set in pan of water. Bake in moderate oven until custard is set.

BAKED GREEN PEPPER WITH CHEESE—Five green peppers, 1 cup cooked macaroni, 1½ cups grated cheese, salt, pepper and paprika, 1 cup cooked tomatoes, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce. Wash, dry and remove the seeds and white pith from the peppers, parboil in salted, boiling water for five minutes. Drain well and cool. Combine macaroni, cheese, tomatoes, worcestershire, salt, pepper and paprika and fill the peppers with this mixture, which has been heated just enough to melt the cheese. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes. Serve at once.

STUFFED EGGS IN ASPIC—Cut 6 hard-cooked eggs in halves lengthwise, and remove the yolks. Mash the yolks with 3 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons pimento cheese, 1 tablespoon vinegar, salt and paprika. Refill the whites with this mixture and arrange the eggs in the bottom of a shallow mold.

For the aspic, soak 2 tablespoons gelatine in 1 cup cold water 5 minutes. Add 2 cups boiling water, and stir until dissolved. Add ½ cup sugar, the 'WONDERLAND' POPULAR :-: C. A. Wakeman Returns To Radio Fold :-: MELTON OR OLIVER--WHICH?

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

A REPORT CARD with gold star attached reached Dave Olson recently for the conduct of his "Trips to Wonderland" series on WCAE which has enraptured the hearts of children in the last few weeks. these ventures into fairyland are plotted with genuine skill and the incidental music arranged by Cliff Marshall is superb. If you would turn Darrell V. Martin back time in its flight and "be a child again just for tonight," twirl the dial to WCAE at 6:30. We don't profess to read tea leaves or study the stars but when we predicted the other day that C. A. Wakeman would return to Pittsburgh radio we were not far wrong. Wakeman starts to work today as director of children's programs at KDKA from 1925 to 1928 Wakeman was chief announcer of WCAE later, while attending State College, he announced for WPSC we presume that with this new attitude toward juvenile broadcasts that KDKA will rescind its long standing order which forbade the appearance of children in its studios except on special occasions.

A picture brief about Marion Davies is Francis X Bushman's pleasure on KDKA at 9:30 tonight the same program features Chauncey Parsons, Pittsburgh tenor.

Question a Day:

If I write to artists will they send me autographed photographs?—Hilda C. Fairmont W.

Answer—Some will. The artists must pay for all photographs, even those used in NBC and CBS publicity, and it costs them a pretty penny.

Studio Lights

Phyllis Morton's delineation of Peggy on WCAE last night was "network" one of the finest exhibitions of emotional persuasion that we have heard . . . let's have more.

Rudy Vallee and Ted Weems were voted the country's most popular orchestra leaders in a recent national contest incidentally, Rudy's contract with NBC has been renewed until March, 1934.

The British Broadcasting Corporation recently laid lines all the way to South Africa to pick up a lion's roar. Ed Harvey, KDKA sound racketeer, produces the same effect by drawing a violin bow across a cord attached to the rawhide bottom of an old oaken bucket.

While CBS claims its television broadcasts are being received in numerous cities, including Pittsburgh, we have yet to hear of a specific example all of which goes to show that there's too much ballyhoo without business and that's not doing radio any good.

Joe Sassano, WCAE musician who does many things with drums of all kinds, xylophones etc., will tell you that when he was with Pryor's Band for five years they never held a rehearsal.

Disagrees on Melton

While we regard James Melton the best tenor on the radio today, there seem to be some readers who disagree with us. Typical is the letter from Frances F. Brown, North Side.

"Dear Mr. Martin:

"I think someone should take you for a canoe ride and lose the paddles for all the time boosting James Melton and overlooking Paul Oliver. Have you ever heard Oliver sing 'Maeushla'? He does it better than Melton.

"I believe, too, that Olive Palmer has a voice every bit as good as that of Jessica Dragonette. Of course Jessica is a sweet little thing and I like to hear her sing. I heard from a reliable source that you and Jessica are secretly engaged. Is this true?

Frances, Melton and Oliver are both good but we'll take Melton ever hear Melton sing "Hills of Home?" Olive Palmer is coloratura, Jessica Dragonette a lyric soprano do not compare their voices Jessica is not engaged to anyone we're for the Gloom Chasers enough to say that we enjoy them better than Amos 'n' Andy.

Home Again

C. A. WAKEMAN

WCAE'S former chief announcer couldn't resist the call of radio after an absence of two years . . . joined KDKA production staff today.

The Loud Speaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—The record in the United States Senate for number of microphone appearances is held by Royal S. Copeland, Senator from New York.

Outside of regular announcers, Senator Copeland has probably made more radio speeches than any man or woman in the country. As a result, the Senator has developed a microphone technique which places him at the top of the list of successful radio speakers.

Much of Senator Copeland's success on the air is due to the hours of preparation he spends on his talks. He tries to get away from speech-making while facing a microphone. He wants his talks to be friendly and chatty. He likes to talk to his listeners, and not at them. He is always at home before the microphone. Just as important to his radio appeal, he is always in good humor in the studios. * * *

In Washington, where he frequently speaks in NBC studios, he knows everybody. Moreover, he greets everybody with a "good morning," inquires as to their individual health. Off the radio his voice is louder than that of the average man. He does not change it for radio. His style of delivery is different from the ordinary speaker's technique. His talks are conversational. They are as personal as he can make them. He dodges generalities as much as possible. * * *

Copeland has been a radio personality since the early days of broadcasting. His talks on health have been—and still are—heard by millions. Their familiarity with his voice proved of excellent political advantage to him when he became a candidate for United States Senator. Voters in New York state had a personal interest in him. Hadn't his words penetrated daily into their parlors? People felt they knew him. The result was the largest plurality ever rolled up in New York by a Democrat.

Strangely, none of his colleagues in the political whirl have shown no particular interest in becoming radio personalities and thereby cementing their political strength. True, none of them can talk authoritatively like him on a subject so close to the human heart as health, but there are other countless topics that could be made the basis of interesting daily chats.

juice of 1 lemon, ¼ cup vinegar and 1 teaspoon salt. When cool, pour over the eggs in the mold. Chill thoroughly. Unmold and garnish with asparagus tips and sliced tomatoes. Serve with mayonnaise.

PINEAPPLE CARAMEL TAPIOCA—Scald 1¼ cups of milk in a double boiler. Caramelize 3 tablespoons of sugar and add to the milk. Then add 4 tablespoons of sugar, 4½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca and a few grains of salt. Cook until the tapioca is transparent. Beat 1 egg, pour the hot mixture over it slowly and return to the double boiler, stirring constantly until thick and creamy. Add the contents of a large can of crushed pineapple and serve very cold.

* * *

PEAR BUTTER—Wash pears. Do not peel. Slice. Cook until very soft. Press through colander and to each cup of pulp add ½ cup sugar and any spices desired. Cook to a paste stirring frequently to prevent burning. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal.

Pare and slice the apples, wash raisins, chop together with nut meats rather coarsely. Mix ingredients, place over fire with just enough water to keep from burning the mixture; cook slowly for ¾ of an hour then add sugar and continue cooking until thick. Pour into hot jars and seal.

TOMATO BUTTER—Four quarts stewed tomatoes, 7 cups light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon ground cloves, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon allspice.

Cook very slowly until thick. Pour into hot jars and seal.

DEVILED HAM DAINTIES—Mash together 1 small can deviled ham, 4 teaspoons horseradish and 2 hard cooked egg yolks. Season well with salt and paprika. Spread on heart-shaped slices of bread sautéed in butter to a golden brown. Pile chopped dill pickle in center and place egg whites on the sandwich to simulate petals. Dust with paprika.

BREAKFAST MUFFINS—Two cups flour, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 4 strips bacon cut in fine strips.

Fry bacon and drain off drippings. Sift together the dry ingredients. Add gradually the milk, beaten egg and butter and last the bacon. Bake in hot greased muffin pans for 25 minutes.

APRICOT CREAM

One teaspoon gelatine.
Half cup cold milk.

Soak gelatine in milk for five minutes.

Remove from fire and add 1 pint apricot pulp and 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Let cool and pour into mold and let set over night.

Peach pulp may be used if you wish.

DEVIL CRABS

9 shells (cleaned).
Cracker meal.
Parsley.
Salt, pepper.
2 eggs.

Bake in moderate oven.

BAKED ONIONS AND RICE

6 or 8 onions.
2 teaspoons butter or other fat.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
Cayenne pepper.
1 cup milk.
¾ cup grated cheese.
8 cups cooked rice.

Pare the onions under water and parboil them until tender, changing the water once. Make a sauce by melting the fat, adding the flour, the salt, a pinch of pepper and the milk. Cook this mixture until it is smooth, let it cool, add the grated cheese, and bring the sauce slowly to the boiling point, stirring it constantly. Place in a baking dish alternately layers of the rice and the onions torn apart, pour on the cheese sauce, and bake for 20 minutes. This will make six or eight servings.

DOUGHNUTS

1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon shortening.
3 eggs.
4 heaping teaspoons baking powder.
1½ teaspoons salt.
1 cup milk.
1 teaspoon grated nutmeg.
Flour to make soft dough.

TOMATO RAREBIT

1 can tomato soup.
1 small can evaporated milk.
1 pound American cheese.
2 pimentos.
2 eggs.

Separate eggs and add beaten egg yolks.

Cook for few minutes, then fold in beaten egg whites.

Serve on toast or crackers.

PIQUANT DEVILED EGGS

1 tablespoon vinegar.
1 teaspoon mustard.
1 pickle chopped fine.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons sandwich spread.
1 green pepper, chopped fine.

Slice the eggs in half. Remove yolks and mash them. Then add all of the above ingredients and mix well. Fill the eggs with this mixture and top with a little paprika.

SPANISH RICE

2 tablespoons fat.
8 cups water.
2 onions.
Paprika.
2 cups tomatoes.
½ cup chopped green peppers or pimentos.
Salt and pepper.

Fry rice in fat until brown, then add water and boil until soft.

Drain. Saute onions in a little fat, add ground meat and brown; mix with tomatoes and chopped peppers and add to the rice. Add seasonings, and bake in a greased casserole for about 30 minutes.

STRING BEANS WITH SOUR DRESSING

2 quarts string beans.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons vinegar.
½ cup evaporated milk diluted with ½ cup water.
Dash pepper.
Dash paprika.
String and wash beans.

Add salt.

Add butter and vinegar, then diluted milk, pepper and paprika.

Continue boiling for two minutes.

Serves six.

FRESH STRAWBERRY PIE

Heat together 3 cups of boiling water.
1 cup sugar.
¾ cup wash, hulled and crushed strawberries.

When this strawberry syrup is boiling, 2 tablespoons of cornstarch, which has been blended with enough cold water to form a paste, is stirred in.

The mixtures is cooked for 2 minutes longer, taken off the stove and beaten, and then returned to the stove to cook until thickened.

While it is still hot it is poured over washed and hulled strawberries, and when it is cold, served with whipped cream.

DATE WHIP

½ cup sugar.
½ cup water.
½ cup chopped walnuts.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 tablespoon butter.
3 egg whites.
1 teaspoon corn starch.

Pour into a shallow, buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven, (300 degrees) for 45 minutes.

Serve with sauce or whipped cream.

Baked through and through

■ ■ Braun's Wheat King Jumbo is a hearth-style loaf. Jumbo owes its rich flavor, finer texture, to the way we form it before baking.

Then, to thorough baking at even, steady oven temperatures.

Careful women know that the way to insure a well-baked loaf is to let direct oven heat penetrate every part.

Give as much baking surface as possible, is the rule.

Braun's Wheat King Jumbo has a third more baking surface than the average loaf.

We want you to give this large, fine-tasting loaf an early trial. Let your family decide TONIGHT!

HARMAN'S OUTLOOK AT PENN

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, on her way to her seventh national title at Forest Hills this week. But for the fact that she did not compete in 1926 and last year, she might now be bidding for her ninth consecutive crown.

HERE WE HAVE the former Little Poker Face. She now is Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and, playing in the best form of her amazing career on the tennis courts, she is sweeping toward her seventh national women's title at Forest Hills, L. I., where this picture was taken a few days ago. Not only is she the best player of her sex in this country, but also in the entire world.

She first won the championship in 1923 and did not compete in 1926 nor after her marriage last year. But for this fact she might now be in the position of passing the tournament record, held by Mrs. Molla Mallory, no longer a contender for major honors. Mrs. Mallory, as Molla Bjurstedt, a young Norwegian girl, gave way to the California star in 1923 after having won the championship seven years in a row, and, when Miss Wills did not compete in 1926, she again won the laurels. Her last four triumphs were as Mrs. Mallory. Last year Miss Betty Nuthall, of England, seized the title with Mrs. Moody not defending.

BIG BILL TILDEN won the men's singles crown seven times before turning professional, six years in a row, from 1920 to 1925, inclusive, and again in 1929.

It is the history of the national tennis championship that whenever an outstanding player appears on the scene he or she generally dominates the field over a period of years. Richard D. Sears, the first men's champion, reigned from 1881 to 1887. H. W. Slocum, Jr., was the champion the next two years; O. S. Campbell the following three years; Robert D. Wrenn four of the following five years; Malcolm D. Whitman in 1898, 1899 and 1900; William A. Larned in 1901, 1902, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911; Maurice McLoughlin in 1912 and 1913; R. N. Williams, 1914 and 1916, with Billy Johnston the victor in the intervening year; R. Lindley Murray was the champion in 1917 and 1918, and two French players interrupted Tilden's streak, Jean LaCoste being champion in 1926 and 1927 and Henri Cochet in 1928. John H. Doeg, Jr., won the title last year.

THE WOMEN'S HISTORY runs just as true to form since the championship tournament was established in 1887. In recent years we have had Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman as champion in 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1919, Miss Mary K. Browne the titleholder in 1912, 1913 and 1914 and since then the long reigns of Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Moody.

These long runs have their counterpart in the English championships at Wimbledon, where Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen won the title five years in succession, from 1919 to 1923 inclusive, and then regained the heights in 1925. Mrs. Moody won the championship four years hand running up to this year, when she did not compete.

Tiger Joe West

ONE OF THE best fighters around here these days and perhaps one of the least appreciated ringmen is Tiger Joe West, of Brookline, a light-heavyweight, who has been winning his bouts lately and deserves a better deal than he has been getting. In his last two starts he defeated Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, whom he had on the floor a few times, and knocked out Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O. Despite his success, he has been unable to get main bout recognition, while less able fistmen have been dragging down the big money shots.

West is a good boxer and can punch and always is in condition to put up his best fight. How about bringing in some worthy opponent for him and sticking him in a top spot to test him out? It is not yet too late to give him such a well-earned opportunity before the outdoor season closes. If it does not materialize within the next few weeks, Motor Square Garden might well avail itself of his services in a main bout for one of its early shows.

THREE YEARS AGO Dick McMahon, veteran Grand Circuit harness racer, laid up in a hospital with a broken shoulder in a cast and severe face and body bruises, vowed he'd never ride in a sulky again. . . . Yet just the other day he drove Calumet Butler to victory in the Hambletonian Stake, America's richest trotting feature . . . He's 62 years old and has been riding behind winners for 40 years . . . Charley Pyle is in again . . . The ol' Cash and Carry Man has a radio transcription business going full blast in Hollywood, Cal., which turns out those records the broadcasting studios use and has a $150,000 plant manufacturing them.

HERMAN TAYLOR and Bobby Gunnis, Philadelphia's outdoor boxing promoters (they promote outdoors because Gunnis is too large to fit indoors) will stage two heavyweight shows in Havana next winter . . . One of their attractions may be a meeting between Primo Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun, and don't think the gold-toothed Basque doesn't figure to give Primo plenty of trouble . . . He's a short, chunky guy, all arms and elbows, who knows how to fight, and those big fellows usually encounter a lot of grief against short, shifty opponents . . . You may or may not know it, but when an irresistible force meets an immovable object two attorneys generally get to work to clean up the mess . . . The University of Buffalo eleven, which meets Carnegie Tech in the Tartans' opening game at Buffalo, September 26, will be coached by Bill Pritchard, former Penn State back, who formerly was assistant to Biff Lee there . . . Jimmy Belmont, the Braddock boxer so much in the limelight just now, was born George Tiliehy and got his fighting name from the Hotel Belmont, in Braddock, when it was run by his first manager, Jim McLaughlin, the erstwhile boxing judge.

Harvey Harman

HARVEY HARMAN, former Pitt star tackle, is in a tough spot at Penn, where he takes up the head coaching reins this fall in an effort to put a new spirit into the Red and Blue's football scheme of things under the new Gates plan . . . There are some die-hards there who can't see the new order of things at all, despite the big upheaval that was precipitated last fall when Lud Wray got the ax . . . It was charged at that time that the seniors were not playing the game of which they were capable and that the lackadaisical spirit finally had infected even the sophomores, with two more full seasons ahead of them . . . It will be interesting to note developments.

FOUR ENGLISH ACES REMAIN IN TOURNEY

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Four Californians and as many Britons were left for the quarter-final round of the women's national tennis championships today.

The survivors included all of the four top-seeded players, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of San Francisco, and Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Cal., and Phyllis Mudford and Betty Nuthall, of Great Britain. The seeding as originally made when the field of 64 started play on Monday forecast a semi-final round involving Mrs. Moody and Miss Mudford in the upper half and Miss Jacobs and Miss Nuthall in the lower.

The matches for today were:

Mrs. Moody vs. Dorothy Weisel, Sacramento, Cal.

Miss Nuthall vs. Mrs. Dorothy C. Shepherd-Barron.

All but three of the quarter-final brackets had been filled Wednesday in the program abbreviated by rain, and yesterday Mrs. Shepherd-Barron, Miss Mudford and Miss Jacobs all gained places in the round before the semi-finals.

Mrs. Shepherd-Barron had to play only one set to eliminate Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, of Wilmington. They had divided two sets on Wednesday when rain forced a halt and the British star quickly won the third set, 6-3, when play was resumed, for a match score of 6-8, 6-0, 6-3.

Miss Mudford had to play at top form to defeat Sarah Palfrey, of Sharon, Mass., 6-2, 7-5, but Miss Nuthall had little trouble with Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, Cal., whom she eliminated by scores of 6-3, 6-2.

FAVORITES WIN IN TECH PLAY

Favorites were returned victors yesterday as the Carnegie Tech Tennis Club's annual tournament was resumed on the Tartan courts after two days of enforced idleness. Two first and two second round matches were run off.

Harry Wald, former Schenley High luminary and Schenley Park champion, and Billy Creighton, former St. Marys of the Mount High School star, advanced to the third round. Wald eliminated Joseph O'Neil, 6-1, 6-2, and Creighton downed William Corshenhausen, 6-1, 6-4.

Bud Leyda, of Bellevue, a local entry in the recent national junior championships, defeated Leonard Jacobs in a first round match, 6-2, 6-3. Play will be continued today, with remaining first and second round clashes to be accounted for. The summary:

First round—Bud Leyda defeated Leonard Jacobs, 6-2, 6-3; Louis Dietrich defeated William Purnell, 6-3, 6-3.

Second Round—Harry Wald defeated Joseph O'Neil, 6-1, 6-2; William Creighton defeated William Corshenhausen, 6-1, 6-4.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE BORDEN RESIDENCE OF WESTPORT, MASS.—The comfortable looking farmhouse belonging to Mrs. Alice Borden, situated at the junction of Sanford and New Fall River roads, in Westport, Mass., has been in three towns and two states, but never has been moved. The land of the old Borden homestead is now in Westport, but it formerly was part of Tiverton, R. I., and at another period was within the Fall River, R. I., boundary lines. UNLAWFUL FOR ITALIANS TO TAKE WATER FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN—Italy levies a small but universal tax on the consumption of table salt. In order to prevent acquisition of salt through the boiling of sea water and avoidance of the tax, the people must not take water from the Mediterranean—unless for medicinal purposes, when they must be accompanied by an officer.

TOMORROW: WHERE THE SHIPS CROSS MOUNTAINS.

JIM M'LARNIN EASY WINNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The clan of McLarnin can rest easy today so far as the threat of battle-scarred little Billy Petrolle, the one-time Fargo Express, is concerned.

Chunky, pink-faced Jimmy McLarnin, the pride and joy of the clan, settled the matter quite convincingly last night in their "rubber" match before a small and only mildly aroused crowd at the Yankee Stadium. Jimmy whipped and battered Petrolle so decisively, in 10 rounds, that it became quite monotonous before the formality of raising the glove by the referee.

This was McLarnin's second straight triumph over Petrolle. It was by far the more decisive of the two and altogether wiped out the stigma attached to the McLarnin escutcheon by the slugging Jimmy absorbed one night at Madison Square Garden last winter.

Before receiving the unanimous decision, McLarnin did everything but put Billy on the floor. Petrolle managed this himself, on one occasion in the fifth round when he fell flat from the force of a wild swing that completely missed its target.

McLarnin hasn't the dynamite in his right hand any longer. He seems to favor it since sustaining an injury. At least a dozen times he landed it flush on Petrolle's chin without putting the tough Dakotan down.

Seldom has McLarnin given a better exhibition of all-around boxing. Through the first half of the fight, he jabbed Petrolle dizzy with his spearing left, started a swelling of Billy's right eye and cut his mouth. By the sixth, Petrolle was in bad shape, bleeding profusely but rallying gamely enough to make McLarnin wary. By the ninth Billy's right eye was tightly closed.

The fight, with a $9.10 top, drew only $41,000, a crowd of 18,000 witnessing it. The promoters had anticipated receipts of $100,000.

Gainor, Ice Star, Traded to Rangers

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Dutch Gainor, wingman of the Boston club of the National Hockey League, has been traded to the New York Rangers for Joe Jerwa, defense man, and a cash consideration.

The Bruins also transferred their negotiation rights on Ossie Osmundsen, of Vancouver, of the Pacific Coast League, to the Rangers.

VINES, PARTNER GAIN FINAL

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, outstanding contenders for next week's national doubles tennis championship, today entered the final round of the Newport Casino team play by defeating their fellow Californians, Jack Tidball and Lester Stoeffen, of Los Angeles, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis Cup doubles players, gained the semi-final round by taking the deciding set from the American internationalists, Sidney Wood and Francis X. Shields, by a 6-2 margin. The scores for this match, halted last night by darkness, were 4-6, 9-7, 6-8, 6-1, 6-2.

Bridgeport Wins In Legion Series

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Bridgeport, Conn., captured the opening game of the American Legion junior baseball eastern championship series by defeating Baltimore, 4 to 3, yesterday.

Columbia, S. C., defeated Manchester in the second game of the series, 9 to 0. Manchester was able to get only two hits.

Columbia will meet Bridgeport, Conn., today and Princeton, Ind., and Jackson, Miss., both of which drew byes, will clash.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Stockton, Cal., and New Orleans, yesterday advanced through the first round of the all-western junior baseball championship conducted by the American Legion. Stockton eliminated Albuquerque, N. M., 6 to 0, and New Orleans defeated Milwaukee, 6 to 5.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Bill McKechnie's tough Braves are getting no softer fast, take it from the Pirates, who have made a specialty of winning and losing hot battles by one run while competing against the Tribe both here and in Pittsburgh.

The Braves and Bucs have staged some of the best pitched games in the National League this year, two more of those one-run margin battles being fought at the Wigwam yesterday as the two clubs divided a doubleheader.

The third clash of the four-game series is on the books for this afternoon. The impending fight may bring a duel of southpaws or it may produce a fight between righthanders. Manager Ens has Ervin Brame and Larry French ready for slab action, while Skipper Bill seems to be able to choose from Ben Cantwell or Tom Zachary, with a possibility of Harry Seibold getting the ticket.

GET EVEN BREAK

Ens likes to keep Brame in action against a righthand foeman in order to cash in on the percentage in big Ervin's bat. So he may wait until just before game time before he makes his decision. He often has done this in the past.

The dual scrap of yesterday provided two battles of the kind that are not decided until the final out is made in the final round and in the case of the first fight the last putout was not recorded in the last regulation inning, the struggle waging to the tenth, when Earl Sheely drove over the winning run for the Tribe. The score of this slab classic was 2 to 1. The Pirates had to field like phenoms to cop the nightcap, 5 to 4.

Remy Kremer and Eddie Brandt did the pitching honors in the first clash. It fell to the sad lot of Steve Swetonic to lose the game in the tenth after the native son had flashed a brilliant bit of pinch pitching in the ninth.

Through seven rounds, Kremer and his lefthand foeman threw back the batters without allowing a run. In the last half of the eighth, Fred Maguire and Rabbit Maranville worked a perfect squeeze play to score what looked like the payoff run, Maguire opened with a double and he moved ahead on Brandt's sacrifice. Rab then put over the clever trick for the run.

WIN IN TENTH

Kremer made way for a pinch hitter in the ninth and Bob Osborn went to the slab. Bob walked the first batter and had two balls and no strikes on the next when Swetonic reached the danger zone. Steve got out of the sticky mess, but Steve also faltered in his control in the tenth and with the bases loaded and none out, Sheely hit a long fly to Comorosky to break up the game. Brandt allowed only four hits and Kremer yielded but five.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21.—Babe Ruth tells about a 40,000 crowd that turned out in Boston the other day to see the Red Sox play the Yanks. It proves there's gold in them thar hills if you level 'em off and make a baseball diamond.

Nick Altrock

Boston may be called the Athens of America, but that's because it has so many Greek restaurants. It's just a pop-eyed baseball town that gets all steamed up when the Red Sox are fighting the White Sox for sixth place and thinks it's a crucial series.

Then I see the Cardinals declared a 20 per cent dividend on their stock this year. I heard the chain store industry was getting along O. K. in the depression, but I didn't know it was doing that good.

GIANTS DEFEAT REDS, GAIN ON CARDINALS

Yarosz Feared Victim of Broken Hand as He Wins Easily Over Randall

WHITE SOX TOP A'S; INDIANS BEAT NATS

Associated Press.

What gaining was done in the National League pennant chase yesterday went to the credit of the New York Giants. Some timely hitting behind Carl Hubbell, with Fred Leach's homer as a climax, gave New York a 3-to-1 victory over Larry Benton and the Cincinnati Reds. This triumph put the Giants a full game ahead of the defeated Chicago Cubs and eight and one-half behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals, who were rained out in Philadelphia.

The Cubs could make no headway against Watson Clark, of Brooklyn, until the ninth inning, and by that time Brooklyn had come through with an eighth inning rally against Charley Root that netted them four runs and a 4-to-1 victory. Jack Quinn relieved Clark with the bases full in the ninth and checked a Chicago rally.

BRANDT WINS 16TH

Ed Brandt, who has been pitching for the Boston Braves for several seasons without even threatening the .500 mark in the averages, not only has surpassed all his own hurling marks this year, but has made himself one of the best southpaws in the National League.

Brandt turned in his sixteenth victory of the year yesterday when the Braves downed the Pirates, 2 to 1, in the 10-inning first game of a doubleheader. He has lost eight contests, giving him an average of .667, which only Bill Walker, of New York, has beaten among the league's lefthanders.

Despite Brandt's victory, the Braves could not gain in their struggle with Pittsburgh for fifth place. The Pirates came back strong against Bill Sherdel in the second game and won, 5 to 4.

Heavy hitting again played the big part in the American League program, and with it came the broken record that has become almost a daily occurrence in the circuit.

Earl Averill, Cleveland slugger, crashed his twenty-seventh home run of the year as the Indians made it three straight over Washington's second place Senators by a 10-to-8 count. The homer broke the Cleveland record set last year by Eddie Morgan.

BABE'S BLOW WINS

This defeat, the fourth in succession, left Washington only 3½ games ahead of the New York Yankees, who used the home run route to a 7-3 victory over St. Louis. Lou Gehrig hit his thirty-third of the year, then Joe Sewell hit for the circuit, and finally Babe Ruth crashed out his thirty-fourth four-bagger with the bases full in the ninth inning to provide the winning margin.

The Chicago White Sox won their third game in 17 starts against the Philadelphia Athletics by pounding Waite Hoyt and Eddie Rommel for 19 hits. The final count was 11 to 6. Boston dropped a 7-to-2 decision to Detroit.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Kelly, of Dayton, hard-hitting southpaw welterweight, will be gunning for revenge when he meets Eddie Brannon, Negro of the Hill, in one of the two eight-rounder bouts at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. Brannon knocked him out in a bout at the Monroe Temple last winter, finding Jimmy's southpaw stance made to order for his straight right cross. Jackie Rodgers boxes Vidal Gregorio in the 10-round main bout and Marty Gordon and Ray Collins are in the other eight-rounder, with Bobby Winch paired with Jimmy Reilly in the six-round opener.

Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, meets a speedy and classy foe in Baby Face Matthews, of Buffalo, in the 10-round windup in Erie tonight. Matthews is managed by Tommy Ryan, former Duquesne bantam, who met all of the stars of his time.

Charley Jones, formerly of McKeesport, but in recent years of Louisville, now is permanently located in Pittsburgh and has shipped in two star boxers, Charley Baxter and Midget Mike O'Dowd, here. Jones brings into the fight game as the manager of Tuggery Ryan, Duquesne bantamweight years ago, and has been all over the country handling good boxers ever since. His return should inject a lot of life into the local fistic colony. Promoters may reach him by calling Cedar 6270-J.

Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, will box Jimmy Vasho, of St. Michaels, in one of the six-round bouts on the Feller Fund card at Johnstown, Thursday night of next week.

Joe Dobrinski, of McKeesport, has a stable full of fighters of all weights crazing action, and wants the promoters to know about it.

Hickey Park still is angling around for an opponent for Frankie Bolarski, of Erie, in its windup next Thursday night.

Benny McArthur, new the lightweight champion of Michigan, boxes Benny Duke in a windup at Traverse City, Mich., one week from tonight. Frankie Reffo, brother of Jimmy, is in with Young Taylor in a six-round preliminary.

MIDGET WOLGAST LOSES.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Aug. 21.—Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion of the world, ran into an unexpected setback here last night when Chris Pineda, champion of the Philippine Islands, outpointed him in a 10-round bout. Wolgast rallied toward the end, but could not overcome Pineda's early lead.

MRS. CURRY . . . . . 6 UP AT THE END OF 18 HOLES

Mrs. Margaret Curry was well on her way toward regaining her city women's golf title as she started off on the last 18 holes of the final 36-hole final round match with Mrs. Eva Blair, the defending champion, at Schenley Park this afternoon, sporting a lead of 6 up. She was 4 up at the end of the first nine. Mrs. Curry won the title by beating Mrs. Blair in the final round in 1929 and was beaten by Mrs. Blair in the final last year.

MRS. CURRY FAR OUT IN LEAD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Mrs. Margaret Curry, champion in 1929, was leading Mrs. Eva Blair, the defending titleholder, 6 up, at the finish of the 18-hole morning round in their 36-hole final round match in the annual women's city golf championship tournament at the Schenley Park municipal links today.

Today's duel marked the third time in as many years that Mrs. Curry and Mrs. Blair have battled it out for the city links crown, and the commanding lead which Mrs. Curry gained in the morning play indicated that she is almost certain to be returned the victor in the "rubber" match.

PUTTING FAULTY

Nervous at the beginning of the battle and faulty putting on many greens cost Mrs. Blair several holes on the out nine. Mrs. Curry, playing confidently and with no little brilliance, captured the first three holes in a row. Held even on the next three holes, the former champion boosted her advantage to 4 up by capturing the seventh, and then, after losing the eighth, won the ninth with a nifty par 4 to maintain that advantage at the turn.

MRS. CURRAY PADS LEAD

«Play on the in nine was of the see-saw variety, only three holes being halved. Mrs. Blair's work around the greens showed improvement and her game was stronger generally, but Mrs. Curry, not at all new to tournament fire, refused to weaken or be shaken and calmly padded her edge on the journey to the clubhouse.

The title duel attracted a large and enthusiastic gallery. The final holes are being played this afternoon. The morning round cards:

Par out	444	433	341	33
Mrs. Curry out	465	534	364	40
Mrs. Blair out	587	534	555	47
Par in	443	453	444	35—68

TENNIS VET WEDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Elmer J. Griffin, internationally famous tennis star and who has been coaching Mrs. Helen Wills Moody for her championship matches, was en route to New York today with his bride, Miss Ruth L. Turner, of San Francisco. According to word received here the couple was married in Reno last night.

HAMBLETONIAN STAR LOSES

AURORA, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Calumet Butler, victor in the $50,000 Hambletonian stakes at Goshen, N.Y., last week, disappointed his following in the 2:06 pace, feature event of yesterday's Grand Circuit program at the Central States Fair, finishing far behind Winnipeg and doing no better than to finish second in one heat.

Winnipeg, which has a mark of 1:57¾, took the first two heats, but was forced to trail Kinney Direct and Calumet Butler in the final and fastest heat which went in 2:03.

Dr. Walker, a black gelding, won the Merchants and Manufacturers stake, for 2:10 trotters, in a race that went an extra heat. Peter Patch gave the Doctor a great battle in the extra heat, but could not withstand the winner's closing rush.

Canonsburg Club Cards Gun Events

A full program of trapshooting events is carded for the Canonsburg Gun Club traps tomorrow afternoon. Leading gunners of the district are expected to compete.

The program includes a main event of 150 targets at a six yard rise and two doubles events of 25 targets. Levis class optionals will be offerred for both events. The club will give $10J in special prizes to first and second high guns in the A, B, C and D classes.

TEDDY FLOORS FOE FOR NINE IN SIXTH

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Fidel LaBarba vs. Finio De So, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Eddie Anderson vs. Tracey Cox, 10 rounds, Indianapolis.

Patsy Perroni vs. Rush Hefner, Frankie Bauer vs. Stanley Cooper, Jimmy Taylor vs. Steve Mullner, Eddie Latko vs. Harold Krill and Don Gonzales vs. Marshall Conette, 6 rounds each, Cleveland.

Ted Yarosz, Monaca's undefeated welterweight prospect, today was to learn whether or not he broke his right hand during the seventh round of his 10-round windup battle with Tiger Joe Randall, Negro, of Elizabeth, in their fourth battle last night in the Hickey Park arena, Millvale.

Dr. J. W. McMeans, commission physician, who examined the hand immediately after the bout, said it bore indications of a break, but an X-ray photograph would be necessary to establish definitely whether or not a fracture had occurred.

If the hand is broken, it will mean that Teddy, just at a point when he is very much in the limelight and in a position to make some serious money for himself, will have to go on the sidelines for upwards of a couple of months.

RANDALL TAKES COUNT

Last night's bout was the forty-seventh professional start for Yarosz and he has yet to see a decision go against him. He won handily over Randall to chalk up his fourth win against the Tiger. It was a fast fight, with Randall trying hard, but able to win only one round, the third, and hold his own in the next one.

The high spot occurred in the sixth round, when Yarosz floored Joe with a right to the jaw in a flurry of fighting and saw him stay down for a count of nine. He injured the same hand trying to follow up the advantage in the following round.

Yarosz fought a clean fight, in contrast to his work against Bucky Lawless recently. He was warned a couple of times for wrestling when Randall held on, but refrained from hitting on the breaks, mugging and the other stuff that marred his work against Lawless and thereby regained much of the regard he lost among the fans in that exhibition. And he left no doubt that he is Randall's master. He beat him both at boxing and slugging. His next big shot, if his hand is not as seriously hurt as was feared last night will be against Jimmy Belmont, that other reigning local favorite, on an early card at Motor Square Garden.

EDWARDS BEATS RUDY

Teddy weighed 148¾ pounds and Randall 151¼ at 3 p. m., yesterday, both being over the limit stipulated in the articles, which was 147 pounds, give or take a pound.

Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., 150, gave Young Rudy, of Charleroi, 146¾, a good going-over in the eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout, Rudy winning only the last round, in which Edwards coasted and in which they fought after the bell and then laughed it off. James Mason, veteran local manager, just returned from a long stay in Chicago, was in Rudy's corner, his first appearance as a second hereabouts in months.

Mississippi, a Negro boxer, of the Hill, 128, proved a setup for Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, 134, in the second bout, which was stopped by the referee with five seconds to go in the opening round after Mississippi had taken three counts from rights to the head.

WEATHER HITS CROWD

Anson Green, Homestead Negro, 155¼, outslugged Jack Miller, of Lawrenceville, 157¼, in the opener, which was stopped in the third round to save Miller.

The crowd was only fair, due to the cool and threatening weather. Al Grayber and Eddie Kennedy alternated as referees, with Freddie Lux and Frank Hogan the judges. Max Zeugschmidt and Normand Borland the timers and Harry Klaas the announcer. —HARRY KECK.

NEW SWIM RECORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Walter Spence today held a new world record for the 100-yard breast-stroke. Spence won a brilliant match from his brother, Wallace, here last night, covering the 100-foot course in the striking time of 1 07 1-5, clipping his own international mark of 1 07 2-5, established four years ago.

Fight Results

At Hickey Park, Millvale—Ted Yarosz defeated Tiger Joe Randall, 10 rounds; Freddie Edwards defeated Young Rudy, 8 rounds; Jimmy Kelly won by technical knockout over Mississippi, 1 round; Anson Green won by technical knockout over Jack Miller, 3 rounds.

At Chicago—Tom Patella defeated Baxter Calmes, 10 rounds; Young Stribling won by a technical knockout over Mickey McLaughlin, one round; Steve O'Malley defeated Johnny Paduck, 8 rounds.

At New York—Jimmy McLarnin defeated Bob Pastor, 10 rounds; Billy Donohue defeated Max Pronser, 8 rounds; Phil Stark defeated Jack Terranova, 8 rounds; Young Terry defeated Benny Miller, 8 rounds; Andy Sheftics and Mary Goldman drew, 8 rounds; Joe Scalzo defeated Al Schaaf, 10 rounds.

Swissvale Legion Nine in Exhibition

The Swissvale American Legion nine, which won the Pennsylvania state title in the annual Legion baseball championship tournament recently, will oppose a team made up of players who represented Swissvale in the Legion tourneys in 1929 and 1930 in an exhibition game at the Union Switch and Signal grounds at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The contest gives promise of being a real battle, for the former Legion stars have been playing as a team all season and boast a record of 19 wins and 4 defeats.

By TOM BIRKS

If the rainy spell keeps on sandlot leagues in the district are going to have a tough time getting in their second half championship games.

Many clubs are away back in their schedules, and the fact that most of them only are able to get one night a week is not going to help matters to any extent.

A number of good ball games are scheduled for this evening. Out at Garfield Park, the Martin Club, of Garfield, will clash with its traditional rival, the Homestead Aces.

Jack Fertig has the Steel Workers all primed for the battle, and seeing that his club is trailing the Linwood and Reliance teams, it expects to stop the Martins.

MARTINS FIGHTERS

Charley Martin has gathered together a good club to represent the Hill, and next season, when the club gets away to an even start, it can be expected to make quite a showing. Already it has the reputation of fighting harder than any team in the district.

Marty Griffins will make the trip to the Turtle Creek High School Stadium to meet the Community Builders. Manager Americus, of the Hill club, has lost the services of Zigiotti, his star pitcher. Zigiotti has been pitching too many games for outside clubs, and his arm has gone.

DORMONT, THOMAS CLASH

The City League will feature three big games with both the leaders swinging into action. Dormont will entertain the J. L. Thomas nine, of Bloomfield. While it should be in the books for the South Hills club to win, there is a chance that the Bloomfielders may upset the dope.

Books, fighting for a place in the limelight, will travel to Wilson field to meet Johnny Dunsky's North Side Buicks.

The Homestead Grays and the Baltimore Black Sox continue their series with a night game at Youngstown tonight. Tomorrow, the rivals will clash in a double header at Forbes Field here.

BOOKS ANNEX CITY LEAD

Joe Vitelli, young speedball pitcher, blanked the Dormont nine, of the City League, first-half champion, at Olympia Park last evening, the Books winning, 1-0, and taking full possession of first place in the league's second half chase. Vitelli turned back the Dormonters with five scattered hits.

Edgewood and Iroquois tied, 2-2, in a Greater Pittsburgh League fracas. In the Steel City League, Mifflin walloped the Penn nine, 11-3.

The Homestead Aces landed a 8-0 victory over St. Joachim in the West Penn circuit, and in the North-South League, Jena nosed out St. George, 2-1.

The Crawfords blanked Verona, 6-0, in an independent tussle. Emil Hinch, twirling for the Gonzales club, turned in a no-run, no-hit performance, beating the Harrison A. C., 12-0. Bellevue downed Ben Avon, 12-5, and the Wally Smiths defeated the Hollywood Girls, 9-8.

Canzoneri Signs For Title Bouts

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, of New York, will defend both his lightweight and junior-welterweight championships in the three-week period beginning next week and ending September 9.

Tony has signed to defend the junior-welterweight title against Henry Perlick, lesser of the Kalamazoo, Mich., twins, in a 10-round bout at Bayonne, N. J., next Thursday night. Three weeks later, September 10, he puts his lightweight crown in jeopardy in a 15-round battle with Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, at the Polo Grounds here.

Schmeling to Remain Out Until November

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—On the advice of his physicians, Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, will do no boxing until November, his manager, Joe Jacobs, said today.

After some preliminary gymnasium work, the champion will appear in exhibitions in London and Paris, Jacobs said, with an eye to the possibility of a title match with Mickey Walker either at Miami, Fla., or Atlantic City, N. J., in February.

FAVORITES COP AT DETROIT

By PAUL SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—Racquet aces from all quarters of the country battled through to semi-final positions in men's and women's singles and doubles in the National Public Parks tennis championships at Gladwin Park here yesterday. Representatives of municipalities as widely scattered as Washington, Los Angeles, Chicago, and Dallas having forged through bracket-of-eight tussles to attain status within striking point of titular distinction.

George Jennings, Chicago southpaw slasher and defending champion in masculine singles and doubles, encountered stiff opposition before downing Arnold Simons, Louisville, fifth seeded contender in five sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-8, 6-1, 6-0.

Jennings and his Windy City partner, Gordon Braudt, later entered the dual semi-finals, the Louisville pair, Al Schmitt and Charles Spencer, offering valiant resistance, but succumbing at 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

ROYER ADVANCES

Breezing into the upper man-to-man semi-final bracket along with Jennings was Fred Royer, Dallas mainstay, late of the University of Oklahoma. Royer carved out an impressive win over Braudt, 9-7, 6-4, 6-0, the giant Chicagoan cracking badly in the face of the Texas blond's consistency.

The remainder of the men's singles semi-final quartet will be determined today as Dooley Mitchell, Georgetown luminary, from Washington, tangles with Harold Bartel, Cleveland husky, who eliminated Frank Broida, Pittsburgh entrant, in a stiff duel Tuesday, and George O'Connell, slim Chicago satellite, encounters Bud Markey, Notre Dame product.

CASTLE, PECKOFF WIN

Jack Castle, one time Pittsburgher, at present starring for Buffalo, landed hero laurels yesterday by hustling himself and his youthful team-mate, Casey Peckoff, to upset triumph over the third seeded duo, Royer and Simons, and thus to scrimmage into the two-man semi-finals, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 7-5.

The top of the women's seeded list ran entirely true to form in achieving the semi-finals in singles, Ruth Martinez, Washington driver and 1930 runner-up, was pushed hard to annex a round-of-eight verdict, her Detroit rival, Constance O'Donovan, fighting to the last before losing, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5. The champion, Virginia Ducker, of St. Louis, sped easily past Irene David, Cleveland dark-horse, 6-0, 6-3.

Cincinnati Golfer Wins Printer Title

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Carding an 83 on his final round, Eddie Gableman, of Cincinnati, yesterday won the International Union Printers golf championship and the Walter Hagen trophy with a 72-hole total of 330.

Five strokes behind was the defending champion, C. D. Radabough, of Detroit. M. Deans, of Toronto, was third with 339, and J. E. Voll, Washington, fourth with 340.

Washington, New York and Chicago turned in victories in the baseball tournament. Washington defeated Cincinnati, 7-2; New York walloped St. Louis, 7-1, and Chicago Indianapolis, 12-5.

Chuck Britton, Pittsburgh hurler, has been drafted by Cincinnati for the remaining games.

Sheriff Permits Hurler to Quit Cell for Game

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Sacramento, of the Pacific Coast League, needed the services of Tony Freitas, a pitcher, in last night's game with San Francisco.

But still more fortunately, for Sacramento fans, Sheriff W. B. Sellmer, of Novato, is a broad minded officer.

He agreed to let the pitcher leave his cell for the night, and escorted by a deputy, go to San Francisco for the game. After the game Tony was returned to the jail.

S. A. R. VICTOR HAS NET 70

W. R. McCommon came through nobly yesterday to carry high honors in the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution golf tourney, held at the Edgewood Country Club. McCommon had low net for the day, a net 70.

Dr. Harry H. Sargent, host for the party, and W. H. Cogswell, tied for low gross with 87s, and split the prizes. Dr. Guy D Engle had the least number of putts, 31, for the 18 holes; M. C. Adams had an aggregate of 14 for the short holes, winning that prize. Dr. H. R. Decker won the award for the most birdies, and A. R. Collingwood won the laurels for low score on the twelfth hole, where he tallied a 3.

The guest prize was won by Harry Williams, of the Oakmont Country Club. It was a beautiful box of tees.

A fine field turned out for the mixed foursome invitation tourney at the Country Club of Pittsburgh. Mrs. G. G. O'Brien and J. W. Crawford, of Oakmont, won low gross with an 85, and tied for low net, with Carl Schusler, home club champion, and George Burgess, for low net, at 74.

Low net and low gross score in the second division was carded by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kohman, of the Wildwood Country Club, who recorded 96-24—72. A pair of Alcomans, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Donald, were second with 98-24—74.

With a smash of 265 yards 2 feet, J. B. Gunning, a district sandlot baseball pitcher, won the Western Pennsylvania amateur driving championship at the Bob-O-Link range, Aspinwall, last night.

Dr. J. B. Steinberg, of Schenley, finished second with a drive of 258 yards 1 foot. Carl Lundeen, another Schenley entry, took third place with a mark of 242 yards 5 inches.

SCOTS REGAIN M.-A. LEAD

Scottdale regained possession of first place in the Middle Atlantic League yesterday by defeating Cumberland, 6-2, while Johnstown, with which the Little Cardinals had shared the leadership for a day, was splitting a dual bill with Beaver Falls.

Rose, hurling for the Scots, gave up eight safe hits but kept them scattered.

Crafton Horse Sets Butler Track Mark

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 21.—All existing records at the Butler race track fell yesterday when Peter Cochato, a black gelding owned by Dr. I. B. Reed, of Crafton, went the second heat of the 2:12 trot in 2:07¾, lowering the record 1½ seconds.

SEEDED STARS NAMED FOR AMATEUR

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—In the absence of Bobby Jones and George Von Elm, the United States Golf Association has nominated Garrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul, at the top of the seeded list for the national amateur golf championship starting August 31 at the Beverly Country Club, Chicago.

The first 10 follow:

No. 1—Harrison R. Johnston.
No. 2—Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J.
No. 3—T. Philip Perkins, New York.
No. 4—Johnny Goodman, Omaha, Neb.
No. 5—Charles Seaver, Los Angeles.
No. 6—Francis Ouimet, Boston.
No. 7—Maurice J. McCarthy, New York.
No. 8—George J. Voigt, New York.
No. 9—Dr. Oscar Willing, Portland, Ore.
No. 10—George T. Dunlap, Jr., New York.

Of these, only eight will be seeded for the first round of match play and if withdrawals or qualifying round failures cut so deeply into the first 10 that fewer than eight are left when match play begins, the vacancies will be made up by lot from a second 10 named by the U. S. G. A. as follows:

PIRATES SPLIT WITH BRAVES

ning this fine scrap in the seventh on the merit of Pie Traynor's double with two of his mates on the runways. The two resultant tallies proved just enough of an advantage to carry over the Prince of Luxemburg.

WANER BOYS STAR

The Waner boys saved the game on two pretty catches. With the bases jammed and two out in the third, Brother Lloyd sprinted in for a brilliant capture of a low liner.

The Braves had the tying run on second and the winning counter on first in the eighth, with one out, when P. Waner raced to deep right center to haul in Richbourg's bid for a victory drive. Meine took the Braves out of the scene in order in the ninth.

Forbes

Can Salesmen Become Our Salvation?

By B. C. FORBES

MUST WE STOP looking to so-called big men to push business off what Owen D. Young calls its "dead center?" Must we turn, rather to salesmen?

B. C. Forbes

The public has ceased to expect any demonstration of super-leadership from the highest financial and industrial quarters. It is not that all our most conspicuous men of affairs are indifferent to human suffering or that they would not rejoice were they able to lead the nation out of the quagmire of depression and unemployment. They just don't know how, apparently.

Here is one sample of how they and their conduct are regarded by an ominously large number of ordinary folks; it is a letter from L. J. Reese, a Westerner:

"Some of the so-called mergers, stock dividends, etc., of some of our recently called 'big men,' then the kiting of their stock with little or no assets behind the new deal, its unloading then to the dear public while they stepped out from under, was nothing short of thievery on a gigantic scale. And yet these same men are the ones who are crying the most about these mythical Reds now!"

THAT IS AN ALTOGETHER too-harsh analysis, but it is published here as an example of how a tremendously large number of rank and file citizens feel today. It is not a pleasant situation.

Turning now from leaders who have done painfully little effective leading to salesmen, consider the following two timely contributions. President W. W. Reed, of the Kent Chamber of Commerce, Kent, O., writes me, in part:

"In the early part of June, the Hon. Martin L. Davey, president of the Davey Tree Expert Company, of Kent, wrote a letter to his salesmen. If we can summarize his thought in one paragraph, it was this: 'After the active forces that cause a depression have subsided, the fear and melancholy and gloom that are caused by them remain, and recovery is unnecessarily retarded by this state of fear. Salesmen, by confident and determined salesmanship, can break down this barrier and hasten the recovery of business in general.'

"Mr. Davey's arguments were so well accepted by his own salesmen that he sent copies of his letter to the presidents of all of the larger corporations, and countless thousands of similar letters have gone out from them to salesmen of the industries of America. Their response was really extraordinary, for it is a known fact that the salesmen of America are now presenting a united front to fight the psychological phase of this depression."

This is the opening paragraph of Mr. Davey's letter:

"A few days ago our purchasing agent told me that never in all of his experience had it been so easy to say 'no' to the salesmen who call upon him, as it is at the present time. He said that the salesmen call on him expecting to be turned down; that their whole manner indicates that they are licked, and that most of them are making their calls in a perfunctory and half-hearted way."

THE SECOND communication comes from W. H. M. Stover, Remington Rand Business Service, St. Louis. Here is the gist of it:

"In his own sales experience the writer has observed that the salesman with better than average income is frequently found working at his desk or in the field long after the less successful salesman had turned in his portfolio and called it a day.

"A recent experience illustrates the point. On a highly competitive deal every inch of the ground was fought tooth and nail by three competing salesmen. Two of the competing companies have their products well entrenched while the third had not a single installation in the locality. This third salesman had already done all that was required of him by both the customer and his house.

"However, there was one point on which this particular deal apparently hinged—a minor but rather technical matter of how many motions were required to perform a certain machine operation. The third competitor set out to draw up a motion study chart of operations on the particular job. Three extra days and nights were required to complete the comparison, but it was this chart developed through 'extra hours' that secured the order for the third competitor against large odds.

"If that great horde of men called salesmen throughout the United States would adopt the 'extra hour' plan, it would not be long before the wheels of industry were again humming."

WE ALL KNOW the temptation these days to whine weakly: "There isn't any business, so what's the use of trying?" That gets us nowhere—except deeper into the mire.

Buck up! Go to it! Hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of business is done every day. Why not a little more of it by you?

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Turns Heavy — Local Stocks Narrow

SHARES SHRINK UNDER LIGHT TRADING

Early Gains Disappear As Popular Issues Lose One to Two Points

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The stock market was a weak and listless affair today.

Continued lack of convincing signs of autumn recovery on trade, news ticker discussions of the prospect of wage cuts in the steel industry, gossip in automotive circles indicating a somewhat protected period of quiet before new models are put on the market around November 1, all tended to dishearten the bullish element. Even the oil shares ran into considerable profit taking, and turned distinctly heavy.

Losses of 1 to 2 points appeared in such issues as United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Air Reduction, Standard Oil of California, Texas Corporation, Atlantic Refining, Socony-Vacuum, Atchison, Bethlehem Steel, New York Central, Johns Manville, Safeway, Penney, Case and American Tobacco B. In the motor and accessory shares, losses were largely fractional, although Bohn Aluminum, a recent pool favorite, fell back 3 points. Selling was more active after midday.

The weekly merchantile reviews reflected little save summer quiet. Bradstreet's said:

"Nothing more can be said for trade in general than that it continues dull. But in the east, particularly, fall showings are beginning to be made in the stores, with some interest shown among customers."

Regarding industry, this agency reported a little more cheerful feeling, saying "most of the basic lines are still marking time, but with the new season nearer, leaders are anticipating some natural pickup, and are planning accordingly."

PREDICT $1 OIL BY TONIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 21.—Oklahoma State officials and oil experts predict that the price of crude oil will be one dollar a barrel before tonight.

Gov. Murray refuses all compromises as to price.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—An increase of two cents a gallon in the retail price of the so-called "competitive" grade of gasoline, the low priced fuel recently put on the market by most companies, was posted here today by independent marketers and the Sinclair Refining Company. The new price is 13 cents a gallon.

Independent marketers said they took the step to show the major companies they were not attempting to prevent higher crude oil prices by keeping gasoline prices down.

The first major increase in the price of midcontinent oil since the Oklahoma and Texas shutdowns were made effective came today when the Texas Company posted a top price of 70 cents a barrel for high gravity Oklahoma oil.

Halt Trading in Oil Merger Stock

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The Chicago Curb Exchange has temporarily suspended trading in the new common stock of Commonwealth Petroleum Corporation, in view of the fact that officers of the Sinclair and Prairie Companies felt that dealings in the stock at this time would interfere with the orderly consummation of the merger.

The stock was admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis yesterday.

Rubber Growers Plan Curtailment

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 21.—Restriction of Dutch rubber output by 25 per cent, including native rubber, has been proposed by the Dutch Rubber Growers' Association in a plan which has been published and delivered to the government.

New Bond Offerings Tumble in Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—New bond offerings during the past week amounted to $8,446,000 comparing with $71,699,041 last week and $28,539,500 in the corresponding period in 1930.

Moore, Storms Join Investment House

WALL STREET HEARS

That opposition to the gold standard is growing in England, and that bimetallism is being increasingly discussed in important quarters.

That Skelley Oil may be an important factor in a merger of Mid-Continent companies.

Money Market.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Bar silver, 12 13-16d per ounce. Money 3 per cent. Discount rates—Short bills, 4 1-16@4 3-16 per cent; three months, 4 3-16@4 5-16 per cent.

PUBLIC WORKS SEEN AS AID TO TRADE

Economic Sages Urge Steps for Restoration Of Business Normalcy

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—It is perhaps well to remind the gloomy that in the past business recovery has not waited for the poetically just solution of all pending problems.

As Malcolm C. Rorty has remarked business recovery in the past has not even waited for the full restoration of confidence but has gotten under way when the blows to confidence ceased to fall.

Mr. Rukeyser

Economic sages at the institute of politics at Williamstown have been discussing what it needed to set in motion the processes of economic recuperation.

Arguing for a program of enlarged public works and deliberate central banking policies of easement, Prof. Jacob Viner concluded:

"There are great financial risks involved in the plan of deliberate and concerted government and central bank action, especially if there is participation in it by all the important countries, but the emergency is serious enough to warrant taking the risk, and if it is not taken, and the depression continues, there may be little left soon to safeguard from risk. It has never been tried before, but in large-scale experiment with it may lie our only salvation."

Economists and others, who have been advocating a program of public works as a means toward restoring normal business, report that the idea has won more support among industrialists than among bankers. One practical problem is whether there are enough sound projects at hand to comprise a sufficiently large program. Well-informed experts on public works say that the federal departments have enough plans on hand to absorb a $5,000,000,000 program.

GOLD SUPPPLY IN U. S. UP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The United States crept nearer to the point of owning half of the entire supply of gold in the world in the week ending August 19. The gold stock of the Federal Reserve System then amounted to $4,983,000,000, a new high record.

The previous high record was set on July 14 when the monetary gold stock of the system reached $4,968,000,000. During the last week this country gained $19,000,000 in gold, bringing the total increase for the last year to $491,000,000.

The entire gold supply of the world at the end of June as held by 45 countries was estimated by the Federal Reserve to total $11,262,000,000. The United States held more than twice as much as any other country, France being second with a total of $2,290,000,000 at the end of July.

CANADA TARIFF INCREASED

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(INS)—Canada's building operations on her tariff wall against the entry of goods from the United States are steadily continuing, with a drop of 31 per cent in American exports from the total of last year already recorded, a survey of the situation revealed today.

Within the last few days new imposts and regulations have been put into effect which add still further to the difficulties of American manufacturers selling their commodities in the Dominion.

The new government which came into office last year has increased the tariff on every commodity by a straight 4 per cent, 1 per cent being a special excise tax on all imports and the remainder representing the increase from 1 to 4 per cent on the sales tax on domestic and imported goods.

Wheat Growers In Kansas On 'Strike'

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 21.—An extraordinary sellers "strike" has developed among the Southwest wheat growers, with receipts at markets the lightest on record in relation to the harvest, which was the biggest in history.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Curb stocks were dull today and prices of most issues were fractionally lower on week-end profit-taking.

Public utility shares continued to provide much of the volume and the recently buoyant oils lost some of their gains. Such activity as developed was concentrated among a few well known issues such as Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Appalachian Gas, all of which lost fractions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

JERSEY PLANS MERGER

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Active negotiations are taking place in California looking toward a merger of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Standard Oil Company of California, official announcement regarding plans may be forthcoming soon.

Walter C. Teagle, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, arrived in California Thursday it is understood and will confer with officials of the California company soon. Legal representatives of both companies now are in San Francisco and will be present at the conference.

HUBBARD SELLS TWO PLANTS

The proposed merger of a group of shovel manufacturers to form the Ames-Baldwin-Wyoming Shovel Company will not affect the corporate structure or the operations of the principal plants of Hubbard & Co., S. L. Peirce, Jr., president, declared today.

Hubbard & Co. has shovel plants at Montpelier, Ind., and Alton, Ill. These are the only plants to be included in the merger and represent only a small part of Hubbard's business.

Fanchon Is Met at Train By Evelyn's Aunt

CHAPTER VIII.

She hadn't thought of that. Tony might see the picture. . . . Tony might recognize her. . . .

The picture was, however, taken. She thought courageously that, after all, some hope was left. Newspaper pictures were notoriously unrecognizable; the borrowed hat had shadowed her face; and her face itself was pale and almost gaunt with the shock of what she had been through. He might not see it, or, seeing, recognize her.

They asked her about "Miss Smith." To all their questions she replied—as there was now no one left of all the party to bear witness against her—that she had never seen the other girl until they boarded the plane together. That she understood she had made her home in San Francisco and was leaving it to take up work—library work, Fanchon thought—in New York. And that she had heard "Miss Smith" say that she had no living relatives. No, she did not know her given name, had never heard it.

One reporter mentioned carelessly, that the girl had died . . . an hour or so before they had boarded Fanchon's train.

FREED BY DEATH

Fanchon's eyes filled with nervous tears. Dead, Evelyn Howard constituted no danger for her. Living, she would have been a perpetual menace. Dead, Fanchon could remember that she had been young, that she had loved life, that she had looked forward with eagerness to what life was to hold for her. Dead, Fanchon could forget that in Fanchon's own trouble Evelyn Howard had been cold, unkind and condemnatory. Dead, Fanchon could forget that Evelyn had refused to help her—and had branded her—without words—a gangster's girl . . . a girl that one "didn't know," whom one couldn't "afford" to know.

Dead, Evelyn Howard was free; and her death made Fanchon free.

The reporters left, apologizing, pleasant, hurrying back to their news, "Sole Survivor's Story of Plane Crash Which Killed Seven," they would tick out in their keys. It would presently be flashed over the wires of the Associated Press.

The train moved on. Fanchon leaned her head against the dusty plush cushions and closed her eyes. She couldn't go back now. She had irrevocably committed herself. There was nothing to do but to permit herself to be carried on—and on . . . and eventually to step off the train into whatever destiny awaited her.

FANCHON WONDERS

She found herself speculating upon Mrs. Carstairs' son, Collin. Upon the reason why Evelyn had not mentioned him to her. It would have been more natural had Evelyn mentioned him, more in keeping with Evelyn's character. Evelyn had been more than a little caste conscious when it came to Jennie Carstairs; she had been more than a little proud, more than a little anxious to impress upon Fanchon the glories and bruited wonders of Mrs. Carstairs' social position and money. Of the woman herself she had had little to say, which was also natural, as she had never known her. But she had not spoken of the son at all. This seemed extraordinarily strange to Fanchon, thinking it over, as it would have been the most comprehensible thing in the world for Evelyn to have mentioned this "eligible" cousin, this big game hunter, this polo player.

Why, then, had she been silent?

The train pulled in at the station. Stood, panting and throbbing. Fanchon gathered her few borrowed—and she thought, wearily, stolen, belongings together and moved with the passengers toward the platform. Some of them looked at her curiously. All looked at her, whether curiously or kindly. One woman spoke to her, saying something breathless and hurried about . . . dreadful accident—fortunate escape . . . great interest . . . People drew aside to let her pass, whispered among themselves. Everyone knew, then. There might be more reporters waiting. The old sense of being hunted, the cold panic seized her again. She was conscious of a hysterical desire to laugh . . . long—shrilly. . . . If the reporters, eager, intent and courteous, back there at that big station, sitting there in the drawing-room, had known, as they questioned her, that it was not alone the "sole survivor" who answered them, who replied wearily and reluctantly but with a like courtesy, that it was not Evelyn Howard at all but the Mystery Woman, the Gangster's Girl, who had occupied the press for some days past, what would they have said?

NAME UNKNOWN

For the press had been as unhappy as the police at not finding Tony's "broad." They had not even learned her name. For Tony, although Fanchon had not realized it at the time, had been rather careful where he was seen with her. He had not been "seen" with her at all . . . until that one last fatal night. And then it had been Rosie who had upset the apple-cart.

But Rosie had not known Fanchon's name, either. Yet the press would have been very happy to have found her, as happy almost as the police, for the press would have made a front page human interest story out of it which would have echoed from coast to coast.

But they had questioned her as the "sole survivor" and as Mrs. Carstairs' niece, and had gone away, ignorant and perfectly satisfied in their ignorance.

Now she was walking up the stairs. Now she was approaching the barriers. She bit back the desire for reckless hysterical laughter. Tears were in her eyes. Tears of fatigue; tears of terror; of shaking nervousness.

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

"Evelyn—my dear!" said the woman.

Her voice was very deep—very low. She was, Fanchon realized instantly, in a moment of stunned amazement, the most beautiful woman she had ever seen. She carried more than 60 years like a banner. She was tall and slender. She had great blue eyes and a clear pallor and a sweet, curved mouth. Under her small hat her hair was silver white. She had lovely hands. And there were tears on her cheeks to match Fanchon's own tears.

Synopsis

Leaving Hawaii shortly after her father's death, young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith goes to San Francisco, where she meets and loves a handsome man named Tony. Fanchon is shocked to learn that Tony is a racketeer, implicated in a recent murder. She, too, is now wanted. Fanchon escapes in an airplane under the name of "Smith." Evelyn Howard, whom she had met on the boat coming from Hawaii, is aboard. Evelyn is en route to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she has never met. After Fanchon confides in Evelyn, the latter treats her coolly. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. She decides to escape Tony and the past and start life anew by masquerading as Evelyn. She requests a doctor to wire Mrs. Carstairs that "Evelyn" is safe. A wire comes from Mrs. Carstairs saying that Collin cannot meet Fanchon. Fanchon learns Collin is Mrs. Carstairs' only son.

DAILY SHORT STORY

'Educated Up'

Wealthy Man Falls in Love Through Girl's Picture

The widow Burgess rocked back and forth on the gallery of her mountain home and smoked her corncob pipe complacently.

"They got education, Mis' Burgess," Clay Jackson argued.

"Such as 'tis, down to th' Three Forks schoolhouse, but shucks, Clay, that hain't scarcely th' three R's."

"But what more education could a body want, Mis' Burgess? You and me and th' rest of us got th' same—we had our readin', 'ritin' an' 'rithmatic down to that schoolhouse and our paws an' maws got th' same, afore us."

The widow Burgess shook her head.

Clay Jackson was considerably disturbed. He wanted to marry the widow Burgess and she was not unwilling, only she said that she wanted to educate her two "gals" first.

"That'll cost you nigh to half of yore insurance money, and what good will it do you? Either you air one of us mountaineers or you air becomin' a furriner, I reckon."

"I'm mountaineer, Clay, an' proud of hit—but my Leeola and my Davine is goin' to get education."

"I reckon you air a lot like that sister of yourn who merried an' went to furrin parts—Louisville."

"Saint Looey, Clay, and I reckon I ain't nigh as much like her as I'd like fer to be. I was to see her that time brother Stan come back from that there war over in Africky or some place—"

TELLS OF CITY

"You mean in Belginum, Mis' Burgess."

"Some furrin' place. Stan he got wounded up and was to a hospital in Saint Looey. Well, I went to see Mandy and she took me to see Stan. True as I'm settin' here, Clay, a smokin' my pipe, my sister Mandy lived in a house half as big as Chinquapin Hill, it had as many as 14 floors on it and Mandy jest stepped into a sort of gold cage and a nigger boy done somethin' and cage and all shot right up to where she lived. I screeched somethin' awful when that cage started to go up."

"Yep, Mis' Burgess, I heard about them—they call 'em elevatums."

"Well, I reckon my sister Mandy thought she'd joke up with me for she keeps a straight face and says as how 'lectricity made that big white chest all cold, she even said that 'lectricity made them chunks of ice—she must a thought me awful dumb, to believe red-hot lightnin' could make ice. Anyhow, my gals might meet up with some nice furriner or other and go live in Saint Looey or some of them furrin places, like their Aunt Mandy—and they got to be educated."

"Shucks, Mis' Burgess, you wouldn't 'low your gals to go off to live with no furriner from Saint Looey or Chick-car-go, would you?"

JACKSON DEPARTS

"What air you hittin' at, Clay Jackson? I reckon my gals would go to live any place whar their lawful husbands was gettin' their livin'."

"Of course—you meant if they married up with some furriner. But look here, Mis' Burgess—have we got to wait ontil them gals of yourn get educated up?"

"I expect so—I'm sendin' 'em to Knoxville to a school—and what would yore gal Lidy do if we was to git merried up?"

"She'll go live with her merrid sister over to Grayson, and it's time them gals were gettin' merrid up. Most gals hereabouts sort of reckons a gal is an old maid if she ain't got herself a husban' when she's sixteen."

"My gals will git merried up when they finds the man they want."

"We oughter git merrid up right soon now, Mis' Burgess."

Clay Jackson knew well enough that it was useless to argue further at this time. He picked up his squirrel rifle and his jug and started home. He had brought over some corn for the widow, as she had no still or men folks to run one.

It was two weeks before Clay Jackson went over the ridge to the widow Burgess again. She was sitting on the gallery, busy with sewing. This was unusual. Clay smiled.

"Well, now, this looks mighty good to me, Mis' Burgess," was his greeting as he leaned his gun against the rain barrel and sat down on the edge of the gallery. He fished out a store plug of smoking tobacco and gave it to her.

"I reckon you pondered our gettin' merried up and now you air sewing you one of them troosoo things some wimmen wear to get merried up in."

"You're th' beatenist dunce, Clay Jackson—hit's my gal, Leeola, she's to be merried up to Rance Luther next Sabbath."

"Good—then you ain't a goin' fur to send 'em to Knoxville fer education?"

"Davine is a goin'—she's a goin' next month. Leeola she's a goin' to live in th' Mandon place which Rance has bought offen his sister who heired hit when Mandon died."

"I'll be at th' weddin', Mis' Burgess and I'll send over a couple shoats an' a keg of corn for a weddin' gift. Now how about you and me gettin' merried up, Mis' Burgess? You was a ponderin' of hit."

"Well, after Leeola's merried off an' Davine is to her school into Knoxville, I reckon we mought as well git merried up, Clay."

And so, after the wedding of Mrs. Burgess' daughter, Leeola, and after Davine had been sent to the school down in Knoxville, Clay Jackson, widower, and Melissa Burgess, widow, were duly "merried up," a parson coming up from Abington for the ceremony and all the neighbors for miles around attending the festivities.

When Davine came home from Knoxville on her next summer vacation Clay Jackson had his daughter Lidy come home so that the girls might be company.

Davine was not spoiled by living in "furrin' parts," as the hill folks called any locality away from their own beloved environs. Both Davine and Lidy were wholesome girls, and rather more attractive than the average mountain girls. They got along extremely well together. Davine had a little camera, it was a prize she had won at the school.

MUCH EXCITEMENT

There was a great deal of excitement and "fussin' up," as they called dressing up, when Davine took their pictures.

Clay, properly coached, took a picture of Davine and Lidy together. There was much excitement when the prints came up from the drug store in Wytheville, where they were sent to be made.

Clay wanted to send this picture to his brother, who lived in Memphis, so Davine had another one made.

After a while Clay received a letter from his brother, who had gone to Memphis some 10 years before to handle such "moonshine" as his neighbors cared to send or bring through. This was because they all trusted him. Bart Jackson had prospered mightily, according to mountain standards, and he wrote that his partner's young brother was coming on to see him because his heart was set on marrying one of those girls.

"You best let Lidy marry this feller, Clay," the brother wrote, "because he is a regular Midas."

The young man arrived in due time, in an attractive car.

To the surprise of both Davine and her mother, Lidy treated this young man, Peter Thompson, quite coolly. Peter promptly wasted no time with her, but began to court Davine. The result was that Davine was to marry Peter the following spring.

She wanted to finish the winter term of school in Knoxville.

"What amazes me," Davine's mother confided to her, "is the way Lidy sort of turned a cold shoulder to Peter—and him a mighty possessin' appearin' young man."

"I'm glad she did—he's a fine man, Maw."

"I reckon. But seein' as how he come up here through Clay sendin' your picture to his brother in Memphis, it was Lidy's right to expect to marry up with Peter if she wanted to."

"She jest said to me that she didn't want him," Davine confessed.

"Now, Maw, Lidy's a right smart pretty gal."

Clay Jackson scolded a little mildly about sending Davine back to school again, seeing that she was to be married. He didn't like to see his wife spending so much of her insurance money "wastefully on education the gal didn't have no need fer."

However, the following spring Peter Thompson and Davine were married. They went to Memphis to live. Davine wrote glowing accounts of her husband.

"He's right down rich and we got us a beautiful home and he gives me everything," she wrote to her mother. "I don't believe it," Clay Jackson insisted.

When in the fall Davine and her husband drove up to pay them a visit and Clay saw their costly car and the beautiful clothes and jewelry Davine had, he was more puzzled than ever.

"I wouldn't a believed it, I didn't let Lidy merry up with him because he was a miser," Clay told his wife.

"He is no miser," Davine declared.

"I can show you where my brother writ it out that he was a miser—Bart never lied to nobody, 'ceptin a revenooer."

PRODUCES LETTER

Clay produced the letter. He showed the paragraph:

"You best let Lidy marry this feller because he is a regular Midas."

"Bart he meant I best not let Lidy merry—"

Davine was laughing.

"That isn't 'miser,' that's Midas, it means a powerful rich man," she exclained.

"Thar, Clay Jackson—you went an' belittled education—now see what it done to you—or a lack of education done to you—if you had been educated, or yore Lidy, you'd a knowed your brother Bart meant that Peter was as rich as old Midas."

"Don't tell Lidy," he begged. "'cause she thinks it's all foolishment to get educated up. I reckon she's wrong, but hit's too late now."

ALL IS FORGIVEN, SHE SAID, SMILINGLY!
WHY DO YOU SUPPOSE MR. SMYTHE-VAN-SMYTHE LIKES PRISSIE IN PREFERENCE TO ME?
HE PROBABLY THINKS YOU'RE TOO FAT! YOU REALLY AREN'T TOO FAT, OF COURSE—JUST OVEREMPHASIZED!
I'M NOT AS FAT AS I WAS! I'VE REALLY WASTED AWAY TO A SHADOW!
YES, A SHADOW OF THE PYRAMIDS! I REMEMBER WHEN YOU WERE ABOUT FIFTEEN YOU HAD THE MUMPS FOR THREE WEEKS BEFORE ANYONE KNEW WHAT WAS WRONG!
WELL IF YOU'LL HELP ME TO GET THIN, ELLA, THE FRENCH IN ME WILL PROMPT ME TO GIVE YOU A GRATEFUL SMACK ON EACH CHEEK!
AND IF YOU DO THAT, THE IRISH IN ME WILL PROMPT ME TO GIVE YOU A SMACK ON THE NOSE!

I WENT SHOPPING WITH GLADIOLA TODAY. MY STARS HOW THAT WOMAN THREW MONEY AROUND. SHOES $16 A PAIR! GLOVES JUST PLAIN ONES, WITH A FANCY IMPORTED LABEL $4! THINGS LIKE THAT.
OH WELL PUNISHMENT LIKE THAT MEANS NOTHING TO A PERSON LIKE BUFFLY WITH A ROLL OF $1000 BILLS.
SHE BOUGHT ONE GOWN THAT COST AS MUCH AS I SPEND ON CLOTHES IN FIVE YEARS. DIDN'T EVEN ASK THE PRICE WHEN SHE SAW IT. MERELY SAID IN AN OFFHAND WAY, I'LL TAKE THAT AND HANDED THE SALESLADY ONE OF THOSE $1000 BILLS.
$1000! THINK OF IT, AND HE CARRIES THEM IN HIS POCKET AS THOUGH THEY WERE A LOT OF OLD TRANSFERS
I NEVER ENVY ANYBODY, BUT AS I STOOD THERE WITH MY EYES AS BIG AS SAUCERS I JUST COULDN'T HELP THINKING HOW I'D LIKE TO SPEND MONEY LIKE THAT FOR A CHANGE. THAT'S THE LIFE! THE CLERKS IN THOSE EXPENSIVE STORES ARE SO POLITE TOO.
WELL SO MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING I KNOW A POEM, IT GOES: LET ME THINK...? AWAY, AWAY O GLITTERING GOLD
WEALTH IS A POISON KNOWN OF OLD. A QUICKSAND OF... LET ME THINK...? WHAT IS THE REST OF THAT? OH YES—A QUICKSAND OF... LET ME THINK?
OH GEORGE, AFTER WHAT HAPPENED TODAY I'M NOT ONE BIT INTERESTED IN THAT MUSHY POETRY RUNNING DOWN MONEY. IT'S WONDERFUL! EVEN AT SECOND-HAND THE THRILLS I GOT TODAY WILL BE IN MY MIND IF I LIVE TO BE AS OLD AS METHUSELAH. YES SIR! DON'T TELL ME MONEY IS JUST A BOTHER!

Lots of sun and air are good for Jim-Dandy Ace-High What-a-Men, although they should not hang in a draft, and should be well covered at night. Preying on Misery

The Spoils System Is Seen at Its Worst in the Distribution of County Jobs for Laborers.

James O. Corbett, Independent Republican candidate for Recorder, has boldly voiced in a public address a shameful rumor that has been circulating lately. It is that applicants for laborers' jobs on Allegheny County's public works are required to have the indorsement of political leaders supporting County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong before their applications will receive consideration.

The applicants for laborers' jobs are in many cases in desperate need. Their families are suffering, their children in want of food and clothing. They are almost ready to enslave themselves to earn a few dollars.

They know the county uses an army of laborers. They find that to get a chance to earn a few dollars on public work they must be sponsored by an Armstrong lieutenant—that is, of course, that they must be Armstrong supporters themselves. Jobs, in effect, are traded for votes for Armstrong—a scandalous betrayal of the public.

Vultures prey on weak and defenseless creatures, robbing and killing them.

How vulture-like the action of the Armstrong organization in preying on the misery of the unemployed, taking unfair advantage of their necessities, robbing them of their political independence, of their birthright as American citizens, killing their self-respect!

Leave Road for Repairs

Better to Drive a Short Distance with a Flat Tire Than to Run the Risk of Losing Your Life.

The tragic death yesterday of Harwood R. Smith calls attention again to the danger of doing repair work on an automobile while it is standing on the highway.

Mr. Smith's car developed motor trouble while he was driving along the Lincoln highway at night. He stopped to make some adjustments, and while he was partly under the machine another car came along and killed him.

The safe plan is always to pull off to the side of the road, completely off the pavement, if possible, when it is necessary to make repairs. This is especially important at night.

If there is no parking place beside the road at the point where the puncture is first noted, better drive for a short distance with the flat tire than run the risk of losing one's life.

Extra Voting Machines

Commissioner Armstrong's Proposal to Place Two in Certain Districts Has Much to Commend It.

The proposal of County Commissioner Armstrong to place an additional voting machine in districts where the registration is heavy, or where experience has shown that voting is congested in the closing hours of election day, should receive the assistance of Commissioners Babcock and McGovern.

Under the best conditions, in an election embracing as many candidates as the primary next month, voting would be tedious and require much time for each individual, especially for independent voters. When voting machines are being used for the first time this condition intensifies itself, and in the first 15 wards of the city, where the machines are to be used, there is grave danger that voters who have taken every step toward eligibility will be disfranchised through congestion at the polls.

In an election as important as this one every voter should have the opportunity to express his preference. That can be assured only by the use of two machines in some districts, even though their registration is less than the legal requirement to compel the use of an additional machine.

Senator Coyne's Plan

His Project to Relieve Unemployment Deserves Consideration on Its Merits.

Senator James J. Coyne, candidate for County Commissioner, is submitting to the voters what appears to be a carefully thought out plan for relieving unemployment next winter.

He proposes that pre-cast slabs for highway sidewalks be made in cheaply constructed frame buildings erected at suitable points throughout the county and when spring comes distributed along the highways and quickly put in place.

The plan deserves consideration on its merits, and entirely apart from its political aspects. On first thought it looks like a good plan.

Neglected Revenues

Schooley's and Beamish's Discoveries Suggest the Desirability of Further Inquiry.

Not long ago City Treasurer Roy Schooley discovered an ordinance taxing vending machines which had practically become a dead letter. He announced his intention of enforcing it, saying it would yield the city a tidy sum.

Now comes Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth, with the discovery of a law requiring corporations chartered in other states to pay a $10 license fee for operating in Pennsylvania. The law has never been applied since its passage in 1911, but Beamish says he is going to apply it, and he estimates it will bring hundreds of thousands of dollars annually into the State Treasury.

It would be interesting to know why these sources of revenue have been neglected. What officials have been to blame for the negligence?

It would also be interesting to know if there are other neglected sources of revenue that might be brought to light by study of the ordinances and statutes.

If you, the voters, want this old horse to wake up you know what to do. If you won't take the trouble to wake him he won't wake up.

When a woman feels restless and adventurous, she has a facial, puts on her most becoming clothes and prays for something to happen; when a man feels that way, he has a drink, glances over his telephone list, and starts right out to MAKE something happen. Love is not blind; it is merely astigmatic. It makes a woman see twice as much in a man as there really IS.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

Why put off the work you know must be done eventually and should be done now.

You may get away with it and let your duties accumulate but there comes a time of reckoning sometime and you will suffer for your neglect.

Perhaps you like to read or study and physical effort is distasteful.

So you don't send your clothes to the cleaners till the day you wish to wear them.

Perhaps it is mending that you might have done as well as not, if you are a woman, and yet let the little rip become a great big tear.

Then a new garment must be purchased and if the family budget is limited, you may be taking it from a sister's or a brother's share when it is replaced.

Is that fair to your family or to the one who furnishes the money?

Others are dependent upon them and they feel responsibility.

But in many otherwise well run homes, when it comes to daily duties, the caring for clothes, putting them away so they will be safe from moths and the like, its the "just one thing more" that is neglected.

Perhaps if you had a seasonal plan you could manage better and save more, and husband would not get so discouraged.

ENGLAND DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LONDON, Aug. 21.—It is noticeable almost everybody in England partaking of alcoholic beverages drinks whisky neat. There seems little taste for mulled ale, barley wine and other enkindling brews for which the country has been poetized.

Even port has become a special after dinner formality instead of a custom. The England of leisurely tap rooms, stone mugged drinks, floating with cinnamon like driftwood, and long stemmed clay pipes remains only on fading old prints. Genial wassail has given way to a speak-easy hurry.

In a hundred other ways London is swiftly shedding its antiquity. There is a freshness—a safety razor and quick lunch tempo in central streets that once bespoke so convincingly of other days. Modernism breaks with sharp angles through ancient architectural crusts.

It will likely call down the wrath of Englishmen in America upon this venerable gray head to say architecturally London appears to be aping New York, but so it strikes me—more so this visit than any other. There is a distinct "Fifth avenue look" to Regent street.

Bow street might be a cross street in the Forties sans skyscrapers. This morning my wife took me to see the Crimean monument at the end of Victoria street. On the site once stood Gatehouse Prison, where in 1660, Samuel Pepys was a prisoner on the charge of divulging secrets to the French about the navy.

It was in the same prison Sir Walter Raleigh spent his last agonizing night prior to his execution. In one of the cells Sir Richard Lovelace wrote: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage." Later we visited an old pub which Pepys is reputed to have frequented.

The place is in Tothill street—appropriately derived from "Toot Hill"—where gay wights of the 16th century tapped tankards, sang ribald songs "and so to bed with our poor heads aching all the long night." We also crossed Battersea Bridge which Whistler so ably immortalized.

A restaurant in Jermyn street at noon provided a little scene I never witnessed before—a red-headed young man making love to an equally red-headed girl. It has been my observation that redheads seek opposite types and I've often wondered if a red-headed couple ever married. Anyway, this pair held hands and made eyes across the table top and now and then he would kiss the tip of one finger and transfer the kissed tip to her lips. Redheads in red hot pash!

I like the Englishman best in his home. Almost any place else he has an irritating starchiness but by his own fireside he mellows. No other race produces such marvelous hosts. The moment one crosses a British threshold there is a studied effort to put a guest at ease and make him feel perfectly at home. The well-bred Englishman, too, unbends at home and one invariably finds he has an extraordinary store of knowledge about art, music, ceramics and other cultural achievements. He can even discuss lace without giving one a whoops impression.

Whitechapel is London's Bowery. I started there today, but remembering a past experience, avoided it. On that occasion a drunk lurched toward me and in rich Cockney growled: "One syde! I got no better sense than to biff you stiff!"

Those mutton faced clubmen with drooping mustaches who blow noses with a ripping snort and clear throats with a hearty garumph are not altogether creations of the comic paper. Peter Arno's Cadwalladers may be found peering at life from every club window. They are the retired colonels, generals and major generals brought back from colonial campaigns to a Scotch-and-soda valetudinarianism. They cannot accustom themselves to a life without military bluster. If they ask for a match in a restaurant it is with the ferocity of rebuking a lowly subaltern. I met one the other day in a Claridge lounge. He arose with a gouty twinge, glared and sat down without a word. "A nasty tempered old buzzard," I remarked afterward to the introducer. "All side," he replied. "He blubbers at the cinema."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Here is a letter. Not an unusual letter in these days. Simply a working girl's remarks about her married sister. But historians would tell you that it is as significant as a war... that it is, indeed about a war, the war between the old woman's world and the new.

That war is going on in every house on your street. Every woman you know is in it, on one side or the other. Reading this letter you, too, will takes sides. Which side? I wonder.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I don't know whether subjects like this come into your column, but I feel I must talk it out to someone. It is about my sister.

First I must tell you something about us. My sister and I are orphans. She is 26 and I am 24. I have lived with her since she married, six years ago.

My brother-in-law and I work in the same building. He works in the circulation department of a newspaper and I work in the classified ads. Al is 32 years of age. He is a nice fellow and we get along fine although I think he is kind of conceited. He works very hard and makes a good salary—about $75 per week. He and my sister Harriet have a lovely little home, a small car and two babies. She has a cleaner in once a week and sends out the washing.

Now here is the trouble. When Al and Harriet married they were crazy about each other. Everything went pretty good until after the first baby was born—then the trouble began. I might as well tell you right now that I think it is mostly my sister's fault, Miss Robinson. From the day the baby came she began slopping around. She wasn't sick and the baby was troublesome—but she just acted as if she had done so much for Al by having that baby that she didn't have to keep up appearances any more. Sometimes she is dressed up and has the house tidy and dinner ready when we come home, but nearly always she hasn't. She never uses the least bit of system.

Now this gets Al's goat terribly. He is a very systematic man. He has to be in his work and so do I. At first he was so crazy about her that he didn't say anything. He just pitched in and helped her do the work she had left undone. Sometimes he worked until after 10 clearing up, and let her go to bed. I would help, too. But after a while he got sick of it and so did I. Now when he comes home and finds things in that mess he says something sarcastic or puts his hat on again and goes out and eats in a restaurant. Then my sister cries terribly.

She says she is sure that some other woman is taking Al away from her. Once she caught Al eating at our lunch counter beside one of the girls from his department. She watched and she saw him pay the check. I tried to tell her that all the fellows and girls do that, but she wouldn't believe it. She says she will kill any woman who steals her husband.

Miss Robinson, I love my sister and I know Al has his faults but I think she is all wrong about this. It is her own fault. It all comes because she won't see that marriage is a business like any other job. If I loafed on my job and muddled it all up, the way she does, I'd be fired in a week. She says she doesn't loaf but I have seen her spend a whole hour gossiping over the phone. And she'll lie down and read a novel with the dishes piled in the sink.

I guess it's a terrible thing to say, but I don't think it is very surprising if men fall for working girls when their wives act like that. A working girl has to keep neat and attractive, good-natured, peppy and up to the times. No matter how she feels she has to be a live wire. But a wife can act anyway she pleases and she thinks her husband ought to stay crazy about her. How do they get that way?

Alice Whitely.

Imagination Is Important

It Must Be Stirred in Various Ways.

GIGANTIC WONDER-WORKING CRUCIFIX CARRIED IN A RELIGIOUS PROCESSION.

These two religious pictures, illustrating solemn religious celebrations in Hungary, interest and impress those that realize the importance of stirring up the imagination of human beings, usually sluggish mentally.

The procession in which the great crucifix appeared was held in honor of St. Stephen, King of Hungary, and held in honor of the Holy Right.

Such processions as these, that have recently been forbidden with great severity in Mexico, in Spain, and in some places in Italy, give great satisfaction, religious inspiration and pleasure to masses of the population.

It is necessary to take human beings as they are, and to appeal to them in such a way as will best reach their imaginations.

The gigantic crucifix that you see, with its many striking features, added to its reputation for working wonders and miracles on its passage, will inspire deep reverence in the millions that see it.

The nails in the hands and feet are made very conspicuous. Above the mournful crown of thorns there appears a golden crown of power, showing that the period of suffering will end in glory.

Below, not usually seen on crucifixes, is a skull with a serpent twining about it.

To deprive Mexicans and Spaniards of these processions, since they desire them and feel that they are made better by them, seems to be useless severity.

LOUIS AGASSIZ

By Archibald Henderson

One of the great naturalists of his time was Louis Agassiz, whose career is in considerable measure associated with the United States. A man of eager spirit and impetuous temperament, he occasionally came to conclusions which were not adequately supported by research. Moreover he was a man of very determined, if not obstinate character, and remained throughout his career a strong and consistent opponent of the Darwinian theory.

Louis Agassiz was born at Motier, in the Canton of Fribourg, Switzerland, on May 28, 1807. He had a magnificent education, attained in turn at Lausanne, Zurich, Heidelberg, Erlangen and Munich. The son of a clergyman, he was graduated in medicine, and took a further degree in philosophy. But none of these subjects appealed to him; his real taste was for zoology. In Munich he became associated with Martius and Spix.

His work in arranging and describing the latter's collection of Brazilian fishes brought him to the attention of the great naturalist Cuvier, whose pupil he became in Paris. Agassiz was so brilliant that he was appointed professor of natural history at Neuchatel at the age of 24. During the next 12 years he produced a monumental work in five volumes on fossil fishes. Passing from the study of fishes to that of invertebrate animals, he soon won a European reputation. He made several visits to England, formed the acquaintance of the singular and unfortunate genius Hugh Miller, and made researches which resulted in the work entitled "Fossil Fishes of the Old Red Sandstone."

Turning away from natural history proper, on his return to Switzerland, Agassiz made extended reaches in erosion and glaciation, for which Switzerland furnished such an ideal field for study.

The work of Agassiz, Forbes and Guyot, much of it done in collaboration with each other, has proved of great value in explaining the part that has been played by the glacial era in erosion, as affecting man and the animal kingdom.

Because of his fame as a scientific lecturer, Agassiz was invited in 1846 to deliver a course of lectures at the Lowell Institute in Boston. This led to his appointment as professor of natural history in the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard. His subsequent researches, at Cambridge and far afield, in the Alps and in Brazil, won international attention. One of his contributions of permanent importance was the founding of the Museum of Comparative Zoology. He was a pioneer in the establishment of a practical school of marine zoology. His "Contributions to Natural History of the United States," in four great volumes, is a work of lasting value. His influence as a scientist was immense. He died at Cambridge on December 14, 1873.
